Work on Arlington Quartermaster Depot Halted; Roosevelt Prefers Its Location

The War Department ordered all work stopped on its Quartermaster Depot in Arlington late yesterday, and The Post learned that President Roosevelt desires to locate a smaller Army "dream building" on the depot site and that the change can be made without further action by Congress.

The Quartermaster site is north of Columbia Pike, near Washington-Richmond Highway, and the President wants the new Army offices built there rather than just across Memorial Bridge, where they would mar the view of the National Cemetery and Lee Mansion.

The Memorial Bridge site, approved by Congress, and the Quartermaster tract are on opposite sides of the old Arlington Experimental Farm.

Well-informed officials pointed out last night that Congress, in voting 35 million dollars for a War Department office building—"largest in the world"—specified merely that it should go on the old Experimental Farm land or adjacent territory, but did not require that it be built on the Virginia side of the Memorial Bridge.

Due to this flexibility in the language of the seven billion dollar Army supply bill, which carries the office building appropriation, officials said that the President can sign the big appropriation measure and then change the site of the office building to the Quartermaster Depot tract.

Workmen on the new Quartermaster Depot had just started laying the foundation when the order came suspending all activity until further notice.

Busy on New Plans

The orders came from the War Department, it was learned, where three shifts of architects are at work designing new plans for the projected office building, on orders from President Roosevelt.

Earlier, it had been noted that officials of the telephone company suspended installation of a temporary switchboard at the new warehouse on Columbia Pike—near the proposed site for the building.

Authoritative quarters said that there is enough land at the Quartermaster site for both the warehouse and the office building, if the offices are scaled down in size from the 35-million-dollar structure projected by Congress.

War Department representatives, according to reports, have been approaching owners of the property along the Richmond-Washington Highway, near Columbia Pike, to ascertain the sale prices of their property.

Officials, familiar with the President's views on the matter, said that, although he wants the building located on the Quartermaster site, he will not make a final decision until he receives a report from the War Department on its redrafted plans.

He ordered the Army to rework its blueprints Wednesday in a conference at the White House with John J. McCloy, Assistant Secretary of War, and Brig. Gen Brenon B. Somervell, Army construction chief.

Senator Hugh A. Butler (Republican), of Nebraska, a member of the Senate Public Buildings and Grounds Committee, stated that he had seen plans for the compromise site, and that it seemed a favorable location to him.

Guns for Soldiers

They Tried to Put Muscle On U. S. but Not Lose Fat

WITH superb disregard of the facts of economics, the President, the National Defense Advisory Commission, and its successor, the Office of Production Management, attempted to pile a 30 or 40 billion dollar annual defense load on top of a phenomenal, prosperity peacetime production load of about 100 billion dollars.

In effect, the defense program administrators said, not "business as usual," but "better business than ever before, plus 40 per cent additional defense business."

This Nation has not done it.

No Nation has ever done it.

Actually, the second half of the program, the defense half, has failed to jell. We are not spending for defense at the rate of three or four billions a month, as we must to achieve real armament production to match the Axis. Instead, we are spending less than one billion dollars. And even this rate was not achieved until June and July, more than a year after we started.

Depression Appears Amid The Boom

SECOND, although there has been, indeed, much better civilian business than ever before, a considerable segment of it is about to come to a sickening halt—a depression in the midst of a boom—with thousands of factories made idle, millions of men out of work.

This impending depression is the result of a slight oversight. The NDAC-OPM neglected to provide sufficient raw materials for both a 100-billion-dollar civilian production and a defense program of even small proportions—at present only nine billion dollars.

The fact that 5000 or 6000 shut-down factories and one or two million jobless men will not be immediately put to work to step up a lagging defense output is the result of another slight oversight. The NDAC-OPM neglected to plan for the conversion of those factories and men to armament work.

The failure to convert, the failure even to plan for conversion, is basic.

It was admitted as late as Wednesday by William S. Knudsen, OPM director general, who told a press conference that the impending curtailment of auto production was dictated by a shortage in raw materials and not by necessity to convert the factories and tools to defense purposes.

IT underlines and explains—but in no way excuses—the now obvious bogging down of defense production.

It makes understandable a whole series of failures to be discussed at more length in subsequent articles in this series—failure to build stockpiles, failure to expand raw material production, failure to force three-shift operations, failure to subcontract, failure to spread orders, failure to use the full production potentialities of the Nation, failure to control strikes, failure to achieve in fact, "all out" defense production.

Which Explains Some Other Failures

The tone was set at the White House, which for month after month—through a slight oversight—failed to face reality and let the Nation know that the defense program was going to hurt. It should be remembered that the President of the United States is Commander in Chief of Production, as well as Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy.

The tone was not challenged by NDAC-OPM. Instead, it was embraced with fervor. It was a convenient path of least resistance, a happy excuse for avoiding an unpleasant chore, namely, telling American industry it would have to quit its enormously profitable production of autos, zippers, gadgets and thingumabobs and go to work for Uncle Sam.

Instead of calling on these existing great factories to convert to military production, the defense agencies busily helped industry build new plants and acquire new machine tools.

These new plants and new tools were relied on almost exclusively to produce the great armament stores that are needed, while most of the already existing ones happily went on making gadgets.

THERE were two deficiencies in this reliance on new and projected plants, both of them all too visible now in terms of actual results.

First, it takes time to build a new plant, and still more time to build new machine tools.

Second, to turn out 30 or 40 billions of dollars worth of military material, a heavy industry must be created even larger than America's present civilian heavy industry.

Only Heavy Industry Can Do the Job

To duplicate—even to exceed—what America has been building since the Civil War is a sizable chore. Too sizable to be done in a year, or two, or even three. But the production happens to be needed in a year, or two, or at most three.

This is not to say that no new plants should have been built. Obviously, an enormous number of new factories and a still larger number of new machine tools were necessary. An airplane cannot be assembled except in a plant with vast floor space. A candy factory cannot be made over into a powder plant.

But to start the great bulk of defense production from scratch, in new plants, with new tools, was to do things the long way when time was desperately short, the insufficient way when volume was to count.

SCORES of the plants have been built and perhaps three quarters of a billion dollars worth of new machine tools have been constructed. If they, and the others still a-building, were adequate for America's defense needs, there would be no purpose in complaining. America could kiss off the lost 12 months, and we could thank our lucky stars that England and Russia are giving us the grace period, and forget it.

But these plants, as delivery expectancy schedules show—are not adequate, not if we are to give Germany's foes what they need this

To Clear Road for Defense

Auto Output Ordered Cut 26.6%, Slash by Half Forecast

A reduction of 26.6 per cent in passenger automobile production for August, September, October and November was ordered yesterday by the Office of Production Management and the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply.

Officials said that more drastic cuts would follow in the expectation of bringing car output for the model year ending July 31, 1942, down to 2,150,000 cars, approximately 50 per cent of last year's production.

Coupled with the slash in pleasure vehicle production, however, was an OPM-OPACS plea for "a substantial increase" in the output of heavy and medium trucks, which, it was believed, are needed in larger quantities for the Army and defense construction and transportation purposes.

The OPM priorities division announced that it would grant the high blanket priority rating of A-3 to aid truck builders in obtaining

Gasless D.C. Feared if 'Runs' Go On

Supply Will Be Gone Aug. 27 at Rate Of Sales Now, Station Owners Are Warned

A day of confusion on the gasoline conservation front ended last night with expression of the alarming possibility that Washington would be gasless by August 27.

"If filling stations go on selling like they are today, there won't be any gasoline in the District of Columbia on the twenty-seventh of August," declared Harry R. Wainwright, research secretary of the Washington Retail Gasoline Dealers, Inc.

His warning, issued at a mass meeting of some 500 local gasoline retailers at the Interior Department Auditorium, conjured pictures of Labor Day travelers running out of gasoline hundreds of miles from home and unable to purchase more.

Even if the supply lasts until the night of August 31—end of the 15-day period in which distributors must curtail filling station deliveries to 45 per cent of their total deliveries in July—"it will take four days to get gasoline back into everybody's tanks," Wainwright said.

Closes Days to Conserve Gas So He Can Sell at Night

Erie, Pa., Aug. 21 (U.P.).—Herbert Blickle, gasoline station operator, is very angry at Harold L. Ickes and is determined to sell gas at night, despite the 7 p. m. curfew.

His refusal to cooperate with the curfew caused a free-for-all fight Tuesday night but Blickle went on selling.

Today he began to fear he might run out of gas and so be unable to sell at night. He announced, therefore, that his station would be closed during daylight hours.

Run on Stations

The Washington gasoline dealers, called into session by Wainwright to receive suggestions on how to cut down on the sales in order to keep a supply on hand for the rest of the month, followed a day in which the District experienced a "run" on gasoline stations in the midst of a sea of conflicting statements on the fuel shortage.

While motorists, many of them, were having to go to three and four stations to get their tanks filled, a movement was gaining momentum on Capitol Hill to have Congress investigate the situation and the public was being warned against "phony" reports.

The gasoline "pinch" hit Washington in these ways:

Ralph K. Davies, acting petroleum coordinator for national defense, assailed the "persistent circulation of figures" purporting to show that the British have ample tankers and the diversion of American ships for carrying oil is unnecessary.

Senator Bailey (Democrat), of North Carolina, chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, said he would call a meeting of the body next week to consider a resolution by Senator Maloney (Democrat), of Connecticut, proposing a Senate investigation of the fuel shortage. Minority Leader McNary predicted almost solid Republican support for the proposal in committee.

Hints of drastic curtailment of consumption emanated from the Nazis 12 Miles Off, Leningrad Rallies for Siege to 'Last Stone;' Roosevelt Bars a Hitler Peace

Report to Congress On Churchill Talks Declares 8 Points Must Be Attained

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt told Congress yesterday that the eight peace aims he agreed upon with Winston Churchill are the only basis for a lasting world tranquility.

A peace along Nazi lines, he said, would only provide Germany with a breathing spell before a second war for mastery of Europe, Asia and the American Hemisphere.

Mr. Roosevelt made these statements in a terse report he sent to Congress on his historic meeting at sea with the British prime minister.

Leaves Much Unsaid

The report was more remarkable for what it left unsaid than for what it contained.

Apparently the President, in sending the document to the Capitol, was making another move in his campaign to "wake up America" and a parallel campaign to combat an expected Nazi peace offensive before it begins.

At any rate, the President was still keeping mum about the decisions on "grand strategy" of the war, understood to have been reached with Churchill.

A feature of the report was an assertion by the President that freedom of religion and freedom of information were implicit in the eight-point declaration. There had been printed criticism of the omission of these two of the President's "four freedoms" from the list of peace aims. The Roosevelt-Churchill statement mentioned "freedom from fear and want," the other two Rooseveltian freedoms.

For the Record

The President frankly told Congress that he was merely reporting to it "for the record." He transmitted a copy of the eight-point declaration and then appended to it the following paragraphs:

"The Congress and the President having heretofore determined through the Lend-Lease Act on the national policy of American aid to the democracies which East and West are waging against dictatorships, the military and naval conversations at these meetings made clear gains in furthering the effectiveness of this aid.

"Furthermore, the Prime Minister and I are arranging for conferences with the Soviet Union to aid it in its defense against the attack made by the principal aggressor of the modern world—Germany.

"Finally, the declaration of principles at this time presents a goal which is worthwhile for our type of civilization to seek. It is so clear cut that it is difficult to oppose in any major particular without automatically admitting a willingness to accept compromise with Nazism; or to agree to a world peace which would give to Nazism domination over large numbers of conquered nations. Inevitably such a peace would be a gift to Nazism to take breath—armed breath—for a second war to extend the control over Europe and Asia to the American Hemisphere itself.

"It is perhaps unnecessary for

Terrible Are the Meek

Vichy Seeks to Stem Sabotage By Mass Raids, Executions

By Lansing Warren

Vichy, Aug. 21.—Executions of two Communists, mass arrests and severe sanctions against railway workers are among the drastic measures taken by the French authorities to check the outbreaks of disorders and sabotage reported from Paris in the past few days.

The two men executed, according to an announcement in the Paris press today, are Szmul Tyselman, a Jew, and Henri Gautherot, a Frenchman, who took part in a demonstration directed against German troops.

Other reports received here state that mass raids were carried out by the Paris police and that 6000 arrests of Jews occurred in the eleventh arrondissement of Paris. Another raid is reported considerably increasing the arrests. A cordon was thrown around this whole district while the raids were being carried out.

[The German-controlled press, a United Press dispatch said, meanwhile discovered "a monster plot" against the Petain government, and alleged "the plotters have ties with the United States and Britain."

[American industrialists, including "du Pont and Ford," were linked with the plotters.]

These raids took place on the night of Tuesday to Wednesday, when streets were barred and the subway stations of Parmentier St. Maur and Oberkampf were shut off to the public until 1 p. m. Wednesday. Only those persons who could show from their papers that they were not Jews were permitted to pass through the lines. The police and the press have blamed Jews in Paris for the alleged Communist demonstrations that occurred at the Gare St. Lazare and other points when police fired on the demonstrators.

A warning to the population followed that death might be the penalty for Communist activities, according to a ruling of the German commander of the occupying forces.

Then the French police offered

Russian Attack In Central Sector Believed Stalled; Foe Retakes Gomel

By the Associated Press

The Russians, their northwestern metropolis of Leningrad already in danger and their armies in retreat far to the south in the Ukraine, admitted early today a reversal at the center.

The Soviet command in its early morning communique acknowledged that its troops had been forced to abandon Gomel, on the lower central front.

Fighting was said to be continuing, however, in the Gomel sector as distinguished from the town itself.

Counterattack Stopped

The Russians previously had reported a successful counter-offensive at the center which, although it was not specifically so located by Moscow, appeared to have been somewhere in the Gomel vicinity.

Loss of the town thus strongly suggested that this maneuver had come to grief and was now a defensive action.

As to the other and familiar theaters, Moscow's war bulletin merely reported continued severe fighting without indicating the results.

In the greatest area of struggle, the Russians in effect admitted that the crisis for Leningrad was very near at hand and there were highly roundabout reports that German advance units actually were within 12½ miles of the city.

But the Soviet, while conceding the city was under "direct threat of attack" and implying that the Nazi drive to the Black Sea had not been halted, officially disclaimed any panic or fear.

Expect Long Struggle

To the contrary, Foreign Vice Commissar S. A. Lozovsky, the official Moscow spokesman, declared that the struggle had "only begun;" estimated that 2,000,000 Germans already had fallen dead or wounded, most of them dead, and vowed that Germany would be beaten in the end "no matter how many months or years we have to fight."

This was a much less sweeping claim than was made during the day by the official German news agency, which asserted that Soviet casualties in dead, wounded or captured were five millions and reported that 14,000 Red tanks, 14,000 cannon and 11,000 airplanes had been destroyed or taken.

Lozovsky, acknowledging Russian reverses both in north and south, took the line that while by European standards the Nazis already had occupied an enormous area they were by Russian standards merely in possession of wrecked and ravaged acres and cities in which the chief surviving qualities were guerrilla warfare and hatred of the conquerors.

"It couldn't occur even to a crazy Hitlerite," he summed up, "that the German army is capable of smashing the U. S. S. R., Great Britain and then the United States."

Calls on All to Resist

In effect, what he did was to summon the whole people of the Soviet Union to be ready to offer the same sort of defense that already was being made for Leningrad, where the able-bodied among the city's some three million civilians were called upon to take up arms in support of a regular Soviet garrison of about one million men to defend the city to the "last stone."

The Soviet commander of the north, Marshal Klementi Voroshilov, was in a fever of exhortation and plainly meant to hold the city at every cost, although a siege worse than Warsaw appeared in prospect.

2d Shipyard Strike Parley In 2 Days Fails

Talks Made at Request Of Roosevelt, Who Is Loath to Seize Plant

By the Associated Press

A union-management conference renewed at the personal request of President Roosevelt in an effort to settle the two-week-old strike at the Kearny, N. J., shipyards failed early today to produce an agreement.

After three hours of negotiations, John Green, president of C. I. O.'s Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers, told reporters that the Federal Shipbuilding & Drydock Co. remained "adamant" in its opposition to the union's demand for a modified union shop.

Union officials added that there were no arrangements for further conferences.

Green and a committee of union negotiators met with L. H. Korndorff and other company officials last night after both sides had conferred with President Roosevelt.

Emerging from the conference—the second in as many days to end in failure—Green declared that the Government should act promptly to reopen the company's strike-bound yard.

"After fruitless hours of conferences," Green said, "it is our opinion that the same promptness should be used to put the men back to work at Kearny as was used to put the men

Shorten Skirt, Save Goods, Women Told

New York, Aug. 21 (AP).—A clarion call to American women to "cut skirt lengths several inches" was issued today by the National Women's Undergarment Manufacturers Association.

Delegates said their suggestion should result in a saving of at least 10 per cent in women's dress and underwear fabrics.

Helen Forrist Hall, Associated Press fashion expert, raised her eyebrows when informed of the N. W. U. M. A. action.

"Skirt hems," she said severely, "already are slapping at our knees. Now what?"

London Expects Anglo-Soviet Move Into Iran

Shah Said to Refuse Virtual Ultimatum To Oust Nazi 'Tourists'

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

London, Aug. 21.—Although the Iranian government has not replied officially as yet to the virtual ultimatum issued by Russia and Britain, demanding the expulsion of the 5000 German "tourists and technicians" from that country, it was learned today that unofficial verbal communications from Iran were "distinctly unfavorable."

In other words, it appears Iran has refused point blank to submit to the Anglo-Soviet demands that the Nazi potential Fifth Column be expelled from the country, so vitally important to both Britain and Russia's position in the Middle East and the probability of military action by both Britain and Russia to enforce their demands was being freely discussed in London tonight.

The verbal answers presumably were given to Sir Reader Bullard, the British Minister at Teheran, and M. A. Smirnoff, the Russian Ambassador there.

Neither Britain, with forces in both Irak and Syria, nor the Soviet, with troops in the Caucasians, are likely to accept the refusal of the Iranian government to deal "adequately" with the situation resulting from the fact that hundreds of Nazis are occupying key positions in the transportation and the com-

Casualties Put At 80 a Minute

By the United Press

Eighty men are being killed, wounded or captured every minute of the war on the Russian front, according to the composite German and Russian claims announced Thursday night.

The Germans, summarizing two months of war, reported five million Russian losses, and the Russian spokesman in Moscow claimed that the Germans have lost two million men, nearly half of them killed.

The total of seven million, if correct, would mean a loss of 114,755 men a day, 4781 an hour, or 80 men a minute.

Proud to Serve His Country

One of the First Americans In Iceland, D. C. Pilot Is Dead

Fifteen months ago a young Washingtonian achieved his lifetime ambition by earning his pilot's wings with the Army Air Corps.

Two weeks ago the flier, 27-year-old George Everett Meeks, wrote to a friend here that he had been promoted to flight commander and that he felt honored to be in the first American contingent to take up battle posts in Iceland.

Three days ago the War Department informed the boy's family here that he had died in the service of Uncle Sam. Was George Meeks the first American to die in Iceland? The War Department didn't say. It merely said that George had died August 19.

How did Lieut. Meeks die? That, too, may be a military secret. But George himself was ready. To his friend here he wrote on August 5 that he and his flight command fully realized that in Iceland they would meet the major test of their flying careers.

The letter was written by a person in high spirits. Lieut. Meeks told his friend that he regarded it as a distinct honor to be in the front lines.

"George had been crazy about flying for Uncle Sam ever since he was 8 years old," said his father last night. The father, Capt. George C. Meeks, is a retired fireman of 29 years service. Lieut. Meeks was his only child.

"Flying was life itself to George," the captain reminisced. "As a youngster he spent all his time making model planes, and he won many prizes in model competition."

Lieut. Meeks studied at Central High and Columbia Preparatory Schools. He entered the Naval Academy, and when thrown by calculus, went to Maryland University for two years. Here he found time to join the rifle team and win all-American marksmanship rating. He stayed at Maryland U. just long

George Calls for Leadership To Cut Nondefense Spending

By Robert C. Albright

Chairman George of the Senate Finance Committee yesterday called for Administration leadership in nondefense spending cuts.

George commented on testimony by George S. Benson, president of Harding College at Searcy, Ark., that two billion dollars should be slashed from nonessential outlays to check a widespread impression that "the head is off the barrel at Washington."

"Of course, you realize," the Senate Finance chairman told the witness, "that without a strong executive leadership we will not have the economy that ought to take place."

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, congratulated the Southern educator and suggested he "run for Congress down in that Democratic area and get yourself elected."

Leningrad Rallied For Siege to Death

By the Associated Press

Moscow (Friday), Aug. 22.—Russian withdrawal from Gomel on the central front after a great battle was acknowledged by the Red army today.

Despite this loss, admitted reverses in the Ukraine and the concession that the northwestern metropolis of Leningrad was under "direct threat of attack," a Soviet spokesman declared 2,000,000 Germans have been killed or wounded in the two months of a war that has "only begun."

Heavy fighting is continuing in the Gomel sector, said the communique which announced the withdrawal, and the Red defense also was described as especially stubborn in the Novgorod and Kingisepp zones, the southern and western approaches to Leningrad.

(The Germans on Wednesday claimed a great victory at Gomel, with destruction or capture of parts of 25 Russian divisions, including 84,000 men taken prisoner, and hundreds of guns and tanks seized. Gomel is 140 miles north of Kiev and 170 miles south of Smolensk, but 360 miles southwest of Moscow.

Pledge Fight to End

All up and down the front the struggle continues unabated, the early morning Russian communique said, and the Soviet leadership summoned all its people to the fullest measure of resistance in a pledge that the invaders would be destroyed eventually, in months or in years.

Citizens of Leningrad were called upon to stand with arms behind a garrison of a million Soviet regulars to hold that old city of the Czars though blood fall upon its last stone as the Nazi threat drew closer.

The German gains, said S. A. Lozovsky, vice commissar for foreign affairs and Soviet spokesman, were only temporary successes for the invaders in a land of fabulous size, and had been accomplished only at enormous cost.

For, he added in declaring that more than half of all German casualties or more than one million had been killed, "mankind has not known such losses in such a short time."

Ship Captures Denied

Russian forces blew up all warships under construction in the Black Sea port and naval base of Nikolaev and destroyed the shipyards before abandoning the port to the Germans, Lozovsky asserted.

Lozovsky denied German claims that Nazi forces had captured eight new warships under construction in Nikolaev, including a 35,000-ton battleship and a heavy cruiser as well as several submarines.

Every shipyard containing uncompleted vessels was blown up, he said.

Meanwhile, militiamen were raised hurriedly to aid in the defense of Leningrad.

Summoned to work, to fight and if necessary to die were the three million civilians of the city, a great Baltic naval base which was the imperial capital of the Czars.

Just how near the invading Germans had advanced was not announced—for the Moscow general staff in its midday communique spoke again only of bitter fighting about the walled city of Novgorod a hundred miles to the south—but the Red army commander of the district, Marshal Klementi Voroshilov, spoke bluntly of a "dread danger."

But, he said, however dark the position, the Nazi offensives could and would be broken with the full support of the city's population.

Again and again during the day his proclamation went to the people: "With our own hands we have built the powerful factories and workshops of Leningrad, the remarkable buildings and gardens, and they will not fall into the hands of the German robbers.

"It is not for the first time that the people of Leningrad are repelling the advancing enemy. . . . We can and will stop the bloody horde which is threatening the Soviet people."

Lozovsky also voiced defiance while admitting that the Germans had made large advances.

Only areas "without provisions, containing only wrecked cities, ruined factories, guerrilla warfare and local hatred" have fallen to the Germans, he declared, and he continued with defiance:

"It couldn't occur even to a crazy Hitlerite that the German army is capable of smashing the U. S. S. R., Great Britain and then the United States."

The Red air fleet continued in heavy offensive action and over Wednesday night again raided Berlin, it was officially announced, spreading fires and explosions. Not a single Red plane, it was added, was lost in the attack.

London Pessimistic

London, Aug. 22.—Military observers here took a gloomy view of the Russian situation, saying that big Nazi advances on the northern wing about Leningrad and in the Ukraine were evident.

There were unconfirmed reports in London that the Germans had forced a crossing of the Dnieper River south of the great industrial city of Dniepropetrovsk.

Unconfirmed rumors still spread, too, that the Russians had blown up the great hydroelectric dam on the river at nearby Zaporozhe. Informed military quarters pointed out, however, that while the destruction of the dam would flood the lands below it might make the river above it much narrower and therefore easier for the Nazis to cross.

Balkans Report Havoc in Blasting Of Dnieper Dam

Copyright by New York Times

Bern, Switzerland, Aug. 21.—Though there is still no official confirmation of the destruction of the Dnieper dam by retreating Russian forces in the Dnieper elbow, "unofficial" information continued to pour in from many Balkan quarters today telling of the immense destruction and disaster which the operation had caused.

One report from a Bulgarian port described an avalanche of unstemmed water, floating wreckage and drowned men, trees and livestock and houses down to the delta, which was said to be choked with debris. Engineers calculated it would take the crest of the flood at least 24 hours to reach the mouth, which would seem to place the blasting some time in the early evening of Tuesday.

Army's Man Power Reaches 1,572,000

The War Department yesterday announced the strength of the Army at 1,572,000 officers and men.

Selectees number 693,000, it was reported, while there are 533,500 Regular Army officers and men, 280,300 National Guardsmen and 65,200 Reserve Officers in service.

Brazell Wants Separation, $1000 Monthly

MRS. RUTH BRAZELL,

Los Angeles, Aug. 21 (AP).—James Brazell, broker and sportsman, withdrew his divorce cross-complaint today and asked $1000 a month separate maintenance from Mrs. Ruth Brazell, Philadelphia heiress and the former Princess Ruth Pignatelli D'Aragon.

Records were introduced showing telephone calls made to Mrs. Brazell by an unidentied L. T. Wood from New York, New Orleans, Phoenix and other cities, running as high as $130 a month. The charges often were reversed.

Brazell testified that just before their separation last January 12 he heard his wife say at the telephone: "Darling, you must come. Get on the train at once."

"She told me she was talking to a Bobby White,'" Brazell continued. "The next morning she dressed in her best bib and tucker and bought a $35 hat. She took a bag and said she was going to Mrs. Hymans'. She didn't come home all night."

That same night, said Brazell, he discovered six affectionate letters to his wife from Lieut. Comdr. G. O. Noville, former executive officer of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition.

Shortage of Food Is All French Have To Laugh About

Vichy, Aug. 21.—All jokes in France today turn on food. Here is the latest:

Meantime their wives are talking in the lobby. "I hear," says one, "that Molyneux has brought out a wonderful new perfume. The name itself is a dream: Roast Pork with Crackling."

Nazis Expect Winter Campaign In Russia Despite New Gains

By the United Press

Berlin, Friday, Aug. 22.—German armies smashing at the "immediate" defenses of Leningrad and blasting Odessa into chaos "more horrible than Dunkerque" are preparing to halt their eastward sweep and settle down to a winter-long campaign, along a stationary front, informed Nazis said today.

Acknowledgment that the time is approaching when the Russian drive must be halted before autumn rains and winter snows bog down Nazi "panzer" forces came as the press and spokesmen warned angrily that Leningrad must soon capitulate or be laid in ruins.

A dispatch from Stockholm said the Germans were only 12½ miles from the city.

Answering a Soviet military call for a "last man" defense of Russia's second city and former Czarist capital, the press asserted that any such "madness" would force the Germans to subject it to the same horrible fate as Warsaw suffered.

Leningrad is doomed, the Nazis boasted, by German forces surging upon it from four sides after the capture of three towns lying within its outer defenses and within a radius of 100 miles of the city—Narva, Kingisepp and Novgorod.

An official spokesman said that five million Russian troops have been knocked out of action in the gigantic struggle which today entered its third month of bloodshed and destruction with annihilating sweeps on both the Ukrainian and Leningrad fronts.

Red Cavalry Held Back

Discussing the impending halt of the Germans' eastward drive, a usually well-informed Nazi source said that the Russians are known to have held back their best cavalry regiments to harass the Germans in winter warfare when "panzer" operations will become hazardous or even impossible.

But the German high command, he said, is making the same kind of preparations and is preparing to replace its "panzer" and mechanized divisions with strong formations of cavalry, horse-drawn and mule-drawn artillery and supply columns.

These will serve to hold the German gains, it was stated, when motor vehicles become hopelessly bogged down in the slime of the Russian steppes.

There was no official hint as to what line of penetration the German high command hopes to reach before the winter halt comes but some Nazi quarters speak of a Moscow-Volga River line. Others mention a line from Archangel to Astrakhan.

Still Gains to Attain

But before this halt is ordered, it was stated, two main Russian objectives must be attained:

1. The smashing of the Russian field armies or at least weakening them to such an extent that they cannot seriously hamper the Germans during the winter months or launch large-scale operations in the spring.

2. Gain control before winter of the great industrial and mining regions of the Ukraine east of the Dnieper River, across which the "shattered remnants" of Marshal Budyenny's armies are said to be fleeing under bombardment by land and air. The Germans, it was said, are hopeful of striking to Rostov-on-Don, above the Sea of Azov, before winter sets in.

It was stated in an official summary that the five million Russians lost included more than 1,200,000 prisoners, snared along with a staggering total of 14,000 Russian tanks and 14,000 guns captured or destroyed.

The Russian air force during that period was said to have lost more than 11,000 planes, destroyed on the ground or knocked out of the sky in air battles.

German forces striking eastward on Leningrad from Estonia have taken Narva, 80 miles west of Leningrad, and pushed on to occupy Kingisepp, 15 miles closer, the high command announced.

Southward, the railroad town of Novgorod, 100 miles from Leningrad, fell i nthe gray light of dawn when German shock troops hoisted the swastika from the tower of Novgorod's medieval citadel. Fighting still raged in the streets as the Nazi flag went up, it was said.

Before a direct assault on Leningrad is attempted the Germans will push from Novgorod toward the Moscow-Leningrad railroad 40 miles northeast, it was indicated, in an effort to form a junction with Finnish forces advancing down the eastern shore of Lake Ladoga.

This would lock a steel ring around Leningrad, which the Germans confess will be a "hard nut to crack" because Voroshilov is known to have a huge army, perhaps 1,500,000 men, in and around the city.

On the Ukrainian front picked "SS" shocktroops were said by the high command to have stormed and captured the Black Sea port of Kherson, 90 miles east of besieged Odessa.

The President's Day

By International News Service

STORM STRIKES: Yesterday began early and unpleasantly and ended late and lingeringly for the President with the Kearny strike situation. Long before he officially opened his office, L. H. Korndorff, president of the striking shipyard and ex-U. S. Steel Chief Myron Taylor, were called to the White House, where the President was just finishing breakfast. Well over an hour later the three were still talking, finally left with orders from Roosevelt to go see Frank Knox and the OPM gang, return at 4 p. m. for another pow-wow.

PRESIDENTS ALL: Democratic Party Chairman Ed Flynn popped in briefly en route to the Young Democrats convention in Louisville, Ky., gave the Democratic President a letter from the president of the Young Democrats, Homer Matt Adams.

ASSEMBLY LINE: For the next hour or so the President's appointment schedule turned callers in and out, assembly line fashion: 15 minutes each. First came Sumner Welles to talk over the Moscow conference with the Big Boss before the Roosevelt entourage left for Hyde Park. Norman Davis, of the Red Cross, got another 15 minutes, and Mayor LaGuardia came in with James M. Landis, Harvard Law School dean and New England Civil Defense director.

NEW TEXAN: The new Texas Representative Eugene Worley slipped in for Presidential blessing and to "beg the President to go on the radio and tell the country about his meeting with Churchill."

BENNY IN: Old friend and advisor Ben Cohen came in for lunch and a mass swapping of news and views with Mr. Roosevelt, left when Budget Director Harold Smith popped in briefly.

CABINET AT THE CABINET: For the first time the Cabinet met over the new Jesse Jones 16-sized Cabinet table, made nice remarks about the table, talked on and on with the President, who presides elegantly at a special place. Latish in the evening the President boarded his special train for Hyde Park and a rendezvous with the Duke of Kent.

Signs of Nazi Drive Across Turkey Grow

By the United Press

Istanbul, Aug. 21.—Germany was reported tonight, by travelers arriving from Sofia, to be massing forces along the Bulgarian-Turkish frontier in readiness for a possible "blitz" drive across Turkey toward India and oil-rich Iran.

Any German attack on Turkey which would bring the Turks into the war on the side of Russia and Britain would precipitate a "serious crisis" for the Nazis because of growing anti-German feeling in the Balkans, these arrivals asserted.

Nearly 90 per cent of the Rumanian people were represented as opposing the war against Russia.

Russia, alert to the German threat to Turkey and Iran, was reported to have moved from 450,000 to 650,000 soldiers to the Iranian border.

Elements stirring new fears of a surprise German thrust into Turkey and the Near East included such reports as:

1. Germany has demanded that Iran break off diplomatic relations with Britain, who, in concert with Russia, has demanded the immediate expulsion of 3000 to 5000 German technicians, agents and "tourists" from Iran.

2. British quarters intimated that action in the Iranian situation is likely within the next ten days unless the Tehran government agrees to oust the Germans.

3. German troops and air force units are massing along the Turkish-Bulgarian frontier, indicating that Germany has not abandoned an original plan to drive across Turkey.

4. Up to a week ago at least 200,000 German troops were said to have been in the immediate vicinity of the Turkish frontier with additional troop trains pouring in reinforcements and fresh materials.

5. Simultaneously an intensification of Italian activity in Thrace, bordering on Turkey, and the Aegean Islands, adjacent to the Turkish cost, was reported.

6. Luftwaffe reinforcements arrived to man airdromes which the Germans have been building and enlarging throughout Bulgaria since the end of the Greek campaign.

7. The Turkish Ambassador to Berlin, Husrev Gerede, was said to have visited Adolf Hitler at the latter's headquarters on the Eastern Front a few days ago and to have received from the Fuehrer another assurance that "Turkey has nothing to fear from Germany," as well as a lengthy explanation of why Germany is certain to defeat Russia.

The Shah of Iran warned the Iranian army yesterday in a speech to military cadets in Teheran to be ready for every sacrifice and announced that the military cadets would not have their annual leave. The move was interpreted as an indication of the nature of the Iranian reply to the repeated Anglo-Soviet representations.

Turkey views with favor the Anglo-Soviet representations and she has not been happy over the presence of Nazi agents on her eastern frontiers, informed circles here said. It was felt that she might even welcome military action by both Britain and Russia with respect to the expulsion of Germans from Iran, particularly since the Anglo-Soviet assurances recently that neither country had any territorial designs on Turkey and both would come to her aid if she became the target of any aggressive action.

Wavell Has Big Force On Border, NBC Reports

New York, Aug. 21 (INS).—John W. Vandercook, National Broadcasting Co. commentator, said tonight that according to reliable information Gen. Archibald Wavell has led a considerable British force into Iran across the border of the Indian province of Beluchistan.

The British Press Service said when informed of the Vandercook broadcast that no information had been received from London or elsewhere concerning any move into Iran.

Iranian Capital Rife With Rumors

London (Friday), Aug. 22 (INS).—Teheran was a city of rumors tonight, according to a dispatch from the Iranian capital published in the London Daily Herald, with Iranian authorities professing indignation over radio reports that a Nazi military plot against the regime was being hatched.

The Iranian capital was tense as the result of pressure brought to bear recently by London and Moscow against the presence of many Germany "tourists."

The rumored military plot was supposedly being backed by Germans who were charged with distributing arms to the dissidents.

Another rumor asserted that Count von der Schulenberg, former Nazi Ambassador to Moscow, arrived in Teheran a few days ago by plane, and that coincident with his arrival an armed uprising occurred in Kurdistan.

Still another report circulated in Teheran was that Afganistan, following representations by the British Indian government, refused to accept the nomination of Minister von Hinting as Nazi diplomatic representative at Kabul.

Nazis Cut French Occupation Cost

Berlin, Aug. 21 (AP).—Germany has granted France a reduction on her occupation costs from 400 million francs a day to 300 million, it was announced tonight.

The commentary Dienst aus Deutschland observed that the step would "noticeably ease France's financial burden."

(The franc currently is worth about two cents).

LORD AND LADY MOUNTBATTEN.

Capt. Lord Louis Mountbatten, a cousin of King George VI, has come to the United States to take command of the British aircraft-carrier Illustrious, it was announced yesterday by the Ministry of Information in London.

The announcement was the first official disclosure that the battle-scarred Illustrious was undergoing repairs in an American shipyard. That the vessel was on this side of the Atlantic has long been known to newspaper editors, and also to thousands of citizens who went out on excursion boats to view her.

In line with an understanding between the press and the Navy Department, however, nothing was published about the presence of the Illustrious. The carrier was attacked by German dive bombers in the Mediterranean last January and narrowly escaped destruction. Eighty of her crew were killed.

Lord Mountbatten and Lady Mountbatten, who arrived in New York on the Dixie Clipper last Tuesday, are expected to arrive in Washington early next week, it was said at the British Embassy yesterday.

Lord Mountbatten has been a member of the Royal Navy since becoming a cadet in 1913. He was born at Windsor on June 25, 1900. He is the son of the Admiral of the Fleet, Prince Louis, of Battenberg, who, in 1917 relinquished that title and was created Marquess of Milford Haven, and of Princess Victoria, eldest daughter of Queen Victoria's daughter, Princess Alice, and sister of the late Czarina of Russia.

Lord Mountbatten served on board Admiral Beatty's flagships in the World War. In the current war he has served in the Norwegian campaign, the bombardment of Cherbourg and the bombardment of Bengasi. He was in command of the Destroyer Kelly when that vessel was sunk in the Battle of Crete.

Hoover Cautions Chiefs of Police On 'Enemy Within'

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 21 (AP).—The director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, cautioning against the "enemy agent within," said today a nation "will not be subdued from within so long as its corps of law enforcement officers remains vigilant and uncorrupted."

In a report on international relations, read at the forty-eighth annual conference of the International Association of Chiefs of Police by FBI Inspecter James S. Egan, J. Edgar Hoover urged cooperation among law enforcement officials as a means of bringing good will and unity among nations.

Donald S. Leonard, a captain of the Michigan State police, was elected president and Reno, Nev., was chosen for the 1942 convention. Leonard succeeds Maj. Ernest W. Brown, of Washington, D. C.

Time Bombs Found On Clipper, Paper Says

Rio de Janeiro, Aug. 21 (INS).—The newspaper Criticas tonight reported two small time bombs had been found aboard a Pan American Clipper plane August 9, and another Pan American plane had been set afire by saboteurs some days ago at Trinidad.

According to Criticas, efforts had been made to hush the incidents.

Italians Speed To Quell Croat Riots, Reds Say

Copyright by New York Times

Bern, Switzerland, Aug. 21.—Large forces of Italians are reported to be pouring into northern Croatia to put down grave disorders which have broken out in that puppet kingdom during the last 24 hours, according to reports broadcast in Croat over the Moscow radio late this evening. The Zagreb radio, in its regular evening bulletin this evening, broadcast an appeal to the regulars soldiers at present on leave to return to their posts at once.

Though reports reaching Moscow are still incomplete, the radio stated that from information to hand what appeared to have happened so far was a concentrated and well-prepared attack on the part of the Moslem population of Croatia against the Oustachis. When the "unimportant Italian units" tried to intervene the occupying troops were in their turn attacked and suffered "very heavy losses." When these incidents multiplied in frequency and size, the radio report continued, reinforcements were sent for and are now stated to be entering the country "despite tremendous difficulties."

In the political sphere, owing to the growing unrest in the country, the report adds, the occupying authorities have been "compelled" to dissolve the Croat Peasant Party; though other parties are "being tolerated for the moment," all public assemblies have been forbidden.

The Zagreb radio bulletin this evening also repeated an order published three days ago in all Croat papers ordering the population to notify the authorities of the whereabouts of all Croat soldiers at present away without leave.

Many Hundred R. A. F. Planes Hammer Nazis

By James MacDonald

Copyright by New York Times

London (Friday), Aug. 22.—Formations of Royal Air Force bombers, sometimes escorted by hundreds of fighter machines, made heavy attacks on German-occupied Holland and France during daylight yesterday, according to the air ministry.

London officials said 14 British fighters were lost as against one German fighter and one German bomber during the day.

In daylight raids yesterday formations of Blenheim bombers escorted by fighters blasted the iron and steel plant at Ijmuiden, Holland, and industrial plants in northern France.

The air ministry said R. A. F. bombers dropped explosives from a height of only 50 feet at Ijmuiden, where the factory produces high-grade pig iron such as that used for gasoline cylinders, and strong low-carbon iron for Diesel engines, hydraulic presses and pistons.

An iron rolling mill which is an important part of the Ijmuiden factory suffered direct hits, pilots reported. A second wave of bombers flung down more explosives which burst in between rows of tall chimneys in the center of the big plant.

Later in the day other British raiders not only attacked industrial targets in northern France—which was not named—but also shot at German "E-boats" in the Channel, causing one to explode and leaving another in a cloud of smoke.

Dutch airmen flying a Lockheed bomber attacked and hit a German supply ship off southern Norway on Wednesday night. One bomb was seen to strike amidship of the vessel, which was last seen giving off big clouds of smoke.

There were only small-scale raids on Britain early yesterday and late Wednesday night. German bombs exploded in East Anglia, but they caused only minor property damage, officials said.

Ousted V. F. W. Leader Says He's Loyal to U. S.

Chicago, Aug. 21 (AP).—Earl Southard proclaimed his loyalty to the United States and denied allegations of subversive activity today before a court martial conducted by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Southard, secretary of the Citizens Keep America Out of War Committee, was recently suspended as Illinois commander of the V. F. W. because his name appeared on a committee pamphlet which advocated "no obedience" to the Lend-Lease Act.

Before a tribunal of past State commanders of the V. F. W. from ten States, Southard testified that he did not subscribe to the statements in the pamphlet and stated that he had not consented to the use of his name on it. He added: "A man may be loyal to his Government and yet oppose the principles of the current Administration."

year, next year, or even the year after that, much less if we ourselves are to fight.

What is adequate, obviously, is nothing less than the great, existing bulk of America's heavy goods industries. That great bulk in the main is still at work on civilian items. Even worse, the very plans for its conversion to armament production are only now beginning, 14 months late.

Why?

The military services and the OPM had two answers.

The first was that the conversion wasn't necessary; that the new facilities planned, plus the expansion of other factories, were adequate to meet our defense needs.

The second answer was that conversion wasn't possible. The great mass of the durable goods industries, it was argued, did not have the managerial skill, the trained labor, the adaptable plants or machine tools to undertake the incredibly difficult and demanding defense work.

THIS second answer, because it has been so widely argued, because it has become the subject of so much controversy, demands separate discussion and will be the subject of a future article.

Meantime, at the risk of laboring a point made obvious by the visible lack of production to date, the first answer—that new production facilities will be adequate—is worth further examination.

Is expected production of about half of our defense requirements by one year from now, "adequate."

More important, are those "defense requirements" themselves adequate?"

Are not the sights still set too low?

Consider for a moment that in six weeks of fighting, the Russians admit losing 5000 tanks, 4000 planes and 7000 pieces of field artillery. Actual losses, it can be assumed, are much higher.

Set this against a hoped-for British invasion of Germany in 1943.

Assume Russia is still holding an army at the Urals, that England has rearmed manfully.

The invasion campaign would probably be 30 weeks long, a full summer. Multiplying the Russian losses to fit this period, the conclusion is reached that the anti-Axis invaders must expect to lose 25,000 tanks, 20,000 planes, 35,000 pieces of artillery

ALTHOUGH the figures are secret, there is strong ground for belief that our armament deliveries by 1943 would not permit such a struggle—particularly in face of a probable conflict at the same time or before with Japan.

Consider the problem of adequacy from another angle. Machine tools are the key to armament production. The machine tool building industry is running at high speed. In the absence of concerted effort to bring other potential machine tool makers into the picture—captive machine shops in every durable good industry, back alley shops, small metal-working plants—OPM must believe that the machine tool builders alone can do the job.

Or was this also a slight oversight?

Because:

As of midsummer, the machine tool industry had between 500 and 600 million dollars of unfilled orders, a backlog that will take from 6 to 8 months to saw through.

To be placed, in addition, are orders for about 300 million dollars more tools for the bomber program, and perhaps 400 million dollars for other tools, adding another 9 or 10 months to the backlog.

Not even thought about yet are still further machine tool orders, deriving from pending military appropriations of 10 billion dollars.

Still another appropriation of 10 billion dollars more or less—the new Lease-Lend bill—is under consideration. A great volume of the armaments to be bought with these funds must be made with new machine tools.

ADOLF Hitler has stated repeatedly that America cannot produce enough, nor in time, to have any effect on the war's outcome.

He was not talking about two-tone sedans with fluid drive and white wall tires.

He was talking about guns—on planes, on tanks, on battleships, and in the hands of soldiers.

Nazi Naval Attack On Tallinn Repulsed

London, Friday, Aug. 22 (AP).—A Stockholm dispatch to the London Daily Express today quoted advices reaching Stockholm as saying the German battleship Tirpitz, sister ship of the sunken Bismarck, led a powerful Nazi naval force in an attack on Tallinn, capital of Estonia, where several Russian divisions are holding out.

The dispatch said the German squadron was driven off by heavy fire from Russian coastal batteries. It operated from a Finnish port, the dispatch added.

Senate Delays Action On Post for Tugwell

The Senate delayed action yesterday on the nomination of Rexford Guy Tugwell to be Governor of Puerto Rico.

Senator Danaher (Republican), of Connecticut, asked for the delay because he said he had not had time to study the record of hearings held by the Senate Territories Committee. Democratic Leader Barkley, of Kentucky said, however, that he would insist on action on the nomination Monday.

Iceland's Defenders Remember Crete

(Tom Horgan, one of a group of correspondents who have been on a voyage with vessels of the United States Neutrality Patrol, has visited Iceland. Here is the story of what he found there, certain details being omitted at the request of the United States Navy.)

By Tom Horgan
Associated Press Staff Writer

Reykjavik, Iceland, Aug. 21.—The importance of Iceland's part in the present world turmoil probably will be decided by Germany, and the thought frequently expressed in American and British circles is Remember Crete.

To make impossible another Crete is the task now occupying the men, American and British.

It would be far from the truth to say that Iceland is happy over an intrusion on more than 1000 years of isolation. Officials say a large majority of the people favor England and her allies, but regret the necessity that brought foreign forces to the country's basalt shores.

Some Nazis Sympathizers

The alacrity with which Iceland severed the last thin bond of allegiance to the King of Denmark after that nation was invaded by Germany should define that nation's sympathy. Complicating the picture, however, is a known minority of German sympathizers. This is not surprising when it is considered that many Icelanders received their higher education in German universities.

On one occasion, when the captured crew of a German submarine was marched through the streets, a few spectators raised their hands in Nazi salute.

A small boy may have been responsible, but this correspondent saw chalked along the foundation of the British consulate a series of swastikas and rude words in Icelandic. There were no such markings on the American consulate nearby.

Reykjavik's four daily newspapers are representative of the various political parties, Social-Democratic, Cooperative-Progressive (the strongest) and the Conservative Utilities are state-owned.

Herman Jonasson, premier, and former wrestling champion of Iceland, is a member of the Progressive-Cooperative movement. Among the 49 members of the 1011-year-old Althing, or Parliament, are three Communists.

Germans Fly Over

There is ample evidence that Germany has not forgotten Iceland, for, almost every other day, Jerry flies ovevr, at 25,000 feet, in a big four-motored ship to have a looksee. There have been several air-raid alarms, but no bombs have been dropped, although a bomber recently crashed against a mountain and was blown to bits. One bomb remained unexploded. Another plane crashed, killing the crew. Printed directions to air-raid shelters are numerous in the city and some are in plain view, as are many sandbag emplacements.

For obvious reasons, progress in foryfying Iceland may not be described. The recently arrived American forces are going about their share in construction with impressive energy, and the speed with which an air field is being hewn out of an inhospitable piece of terrain, strewn with lava rock, is an example.

It is immediately apparent that whatever establishment is located here must be supported from the outside. The country can be drawn upon for practically nothing.

Fickleness of the weather, which can run the gamut of fog, rain, snow and high winds in quick succession and with little warning, militate against dependable flying conditions. However, that could be a greater disadvantage to an attacker than a defender.

Iceland's geographical position, close to the North Atlantic steamer track, plainly makes it a convenient base from which to attack or defend that ocean highway, and there are those who contend the Battle of the Atlantic may hinge on the way Iceland is employed.

Difficult Terrain

An absence of suitable landing places sometimes is mentioned as a deterrent to air invasion, but that would not exclude parachute troops, who would, however, face travel over difficult terrain. Before the war, parties of Germans toured Iceland, ostensibly for the purpose of arousing interest in gliding, so the physical aspcts of the country must be well known to the Axis.

American forces are seriously concerned over fuel to heat their sheet-iron igloos, a form of habitation introduced by the British.

No fuel is produced by Iceland and the war interrupted a project which would have heated Reykjavik with water piped from the numerous hot springs. The necessary pipes remained in Denmark.

Another important Icelandic project still in its infancy is the development of greenhouses, heated with water from hot springs and illuminated with sun lamps powered by the state-owned hydroelectric system.

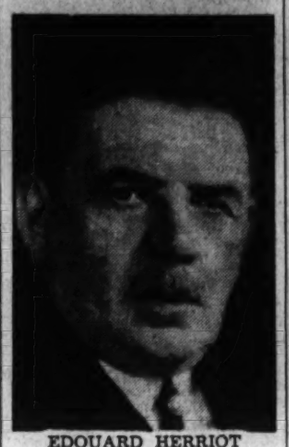
Herriott Tells U. S., Britain Of Admiration



EDOUARD HERRIOT

By the United Press

New York, Aug. 21.—Edouard Herriot, three times premier of France and now a virtual prisoner in Lyons, boldly affirmed today his fervent admiration for Great Britain and the United States in a memoir written for the American Mercury for September, out tomorrow.

Coming from a democratic statesman "from the depths of his solitude" inside France, the article carefully avoids discussion of current events in France, but time after time expresses love for democratic processes. The article, which may have repercussions in Vichy and Paris, is published under the title "The Real France Speaks."

Although freedom has several times been snuffed out in France, Herriot wrote, "it has always been restored." He indicated his belief that "the friends of other days will know how to tear down the wall of misunderstanding."

Herriot in 1932 resigned as French premier over the issue of the French war debt to America, which he favored paying. Of this incident in his long political career he wrote:

"The most beautiful moment in my public life was when in December, 1932, I sacrificed a government over which I presided, in order to respect the signature of France and not to betray our common memories of the last war."

U. S. Experts Double Traffic On Burma Road

By the Associated Press

Chungking, China, Aug. 21.—Improvements recommended by three American transportation experts have more than doubled the flow of supplies over the Burma Road in a fortnight, it was estimated tonight, with additional increases expected when 4,500 new American trucks get into action and a United States Army lieutenant takes charge of all trucking.

The lieutenant is James Wilson, of New Orleans, a West Pointer, but also an experienced truckman who recently came to Chungking as assistant United States Military Attache.

The dollar-a-year traffic experts are Daniel Arnstein and Marco Hellman, of New York, and Harold Davis, of Hartford, Conn., who arrived here July 12. They plan to fly to Hongkong tomorrow en route to the United States.

General Export Privilege Granted to Russians by U. S.

The United States cleared the way for all-out aid to Russia yesterday by granting the Soviet Union a general export license for supplies of basic war materials.

Secretary of State Hull, meanwhile, warned Japan against annexation of further islands in the strategic Spratly group, near the Philippines, and at the same time cautioned Latin America against the German menace.

The general license allows Russia to export American supplies of metals and manufactures, machinery and vehicles, rubber and manufactures, chemicals and woodpulp. Previously, Russia received many of these commodities only on a restricted special license basis.

Granting of the general license followed disclosure by Jesse Jones, Commerce Secretary and Federal Loan Administrator, that the Government is willing to make a loan to Russia.

The licensive privilege also appeared to pave the way for large-scale shipments of supplies to Russia, which are to be discussed soon in Moscow at tripartite talks.

The general license privilege was also extended at the same time to a list of countries that included several French colonies that are following the leadership of Gen. Charles de Gaulle. Among those named were French Cameroun and French Equatorial Africa.

Also on the list were the entire British Empire, Latin American republics, the Netherlands Indies, China, the Belgian Congo, Tahiti, New Caledonia, Marquesas Islands, Turkey, Iraq, the French West Indies, French Guiana, Miquelon and St. Pierre, and Liberia.

The reasons for including French Western Hemisphere possessions, despite policy quarrels with the Vichy government, to which they still adhere, was that supplies sent there could not reach the Axis fighting forces, so nothing is lost by giving sympathetic treatment to the French possessions near our shores.

Hull told a press conference that he would view with concern any Japanese attempt to annex additional Pacific islands in the Spratly group that are now shown as Japanese possessions in new Tokyo maps.

Hull made clear that the United States would refuse to recognize any such annexation. He said he had no official confirmation of Japanese claims to the islands and would investigate to find the actual facts.

Japan annexed the Spratly Islands in 1939 and, according to the new maps in Tokyo, has now extended that annexation to points near the Philippine coast.

Issuing his warning to South America, Hull said that the chief concern of Latin Americans today should be to avoid what he called the state of semislavery which Germany has imposed on 15 countries in Europe.

Officials to Be Let Sail

By the Associated Press

Tokyo, Aug. 21.—The Japanese N. Y. K. Line suddenly announced tonight it had reservations for 26 United States Embassy and consular officials to leave Japan on the liner Tatsuta Maru, but more than 100 American private citizens remained stranded.

The Tatsuta Maru is to sail from Kobe August 26 for Shanghai, where United States officials expect to obtain passage home aboard an American transport.

The N. Y. K. Line apparently acted at the request of the foreign office, which was believed to have exerted pressure to obtain passage for the officials because of the unfavorable "hostage" publicity arising from inability of United States nationals to leave the country.

The Liner President Coolidge had been scheduled to stop at Kobe for the officials and 100 other Americans, but the trip was cancelled a week ago when Japanese refused to allow clearance papers for the vessel if any but officials were given passage. Japanese transpacific sailings have been cancelled.

A party of 20 Americans, Britons and Russian-Americans arrived here today from Moscow, intending to go on to the United States.

Dimond Asks Russia To Lend Isles to U. S.

Alaska Delegate Anthony Dimond proposed last night that Russia turn over her strategic islands in the Pacific to give the United States complete control of the northern approaches from Japan.

He made his recommendation after Secretary of State Hull warned Japan against annexation of further islands near the Philippines.

The Bering Islands Dimond referred to, called the Komandorskis by the Russians, were discovered by Commander Vitus Bering, the Danish explorer, 200 years ago. Long neglected, they were only recently appraised for their strategic value.

one million francs reward for information leading to the arrest of persons guilty of sabotage on the French railroads. Tonight Communications Minister Jean Berthelot, in a broadcast, pleaded with the railway workers not to be influenced by De Gaullist, British and Soviet propaganda and to remain loyally on the job.

No information is available here as to the exact nature of the sabotage that has occurred.

Berthelot said in his speech that he knew the railroad men themselves were not responsible for acts committed against trains which were moving on the lines. He recalled the exemplary conduct of the railroad men at the time of the general strike in 1938, and appealed to them to show the same loyalty now to Marshal Petain.

Bound by Armistice

The minister told the railway men that France was bound by the armistice accord to make economic shipments with priority to Germany. It was a question of honor and loyalty, he said, and whoever resorted to sabotage was acting as an enemy of Germany and an ally of England.

"I know," he said, "that in your vast majority you remain deaf to the Gaullist radio and indifferent to Communist tracts. You are doing your hard and beautiful job magnificently, and while executing the armistice transports under conditions that have earned you the esteem of your enemy of yesterday you are still regularly insuring transport of the supplies vital for industry."

Berthelot said that he had been obliged to order sanctions against some of their comrades and would have to take other measures if his appeal was not heard.

The roundup of Jews in the Paris district is apparently continuing. It should be remembered that the German "Nuremberg laws" affecting Jewish status have been applied in occupied territory, and no less severe restrictions are applicable in unoccupied France. Negotiations aiming to coordinate the treatment of Jews under a statute governing all French territory have been under way for some time.

Action against the Jews in Paris dates from a raid on foreign Jews which took place in the capital on May 15. In that raid 3000 Jews between the ages of 18 and 40 were sent to labor camps in the Orleans region. They were not then identified as Communists. According to the Paris press, the present raids followed Communist demonstrations in the eleventh arrondissement, in which many Jews participated.

Indiana to Be Launched In September; 18 Keels Laid

4 Cruisers Among Naval Craft Begun In First Half of August

By Hedley Donovan
Post Staff Writer

The 35,000-ton battleship Indiana is scheduled for launching December 18 at Newport News, Va., the Navy Department announced yesterday.

In another report on progress in construction of America's two-ocean Navy, the Department disclosed yesterday that keels were laid in the first half of August for 18 warships and auxiliary craft, including the cruisers New Haven, Vicksburg, Miami and Reno. Six vessels were launched in the same period.

The 70-million-dollar Indiana is of the same class as the South Dakota which was launched in June, and the recently commissioned battleships Washington and North Carolina. Keels have been laid for two more capital ships of the same class, the Massachusetts and Alabama.

Commissioning of the Indiana may be expected late in 1942, it was indicated yesterday. The battleship, with a speed rated at 27 knots or more, will be arrayed with nine 16-inch guns and a secondary battery of 20 5-inch guns, designed for firing at aircraft or surface targets.

Secretary of the Navy Knox yesterday named Mrs. Lewis C. Robbins, daughter of Gov. Henry F. Schricker of Indiana, as sponsor for the launching.

Congress authorized construction of the Indiana in 1934 and appropriated the initial funds five years later. The keel was laid November 20, 1939.

The ship will be the Navy's third Indiana. The first joined the fleet in 1895, took part in the Battle of Santiago Bay in the Spanish-American War, and served as a training and patrol vessel in the World War. She was sunk in 1920 after use as a target for air bombing and torpedoing experiments.

Vessels launched in the first half of August, according to the Navy announcement, were the coastal minesweepers Brambling and Paramount, two motor torpedo boats and two district craft.

The six-million-dollar submarine Gato was launched yesterday at the Electric Boat Co. yards at New London, Conn., where ten more submarines are in various stages of construction and 30 more are on order.

me to call attention once more to the utter lack of validity of the spoken or written word of the Nazi government.

"It is also unnecessary for me to point out that the declaration of principles includes of necessity the world need for freedom of religion and freedom of information. No society of the world organized under the announced principles could survive without these freedoms which are a part of the whole freedom for which we strive."

The special message was the President's first formal word to Congress on his talks with Churchill, which were announced to the world seven days ago. Stephen T. Early, White House Secretary, took pains to point out that yesterday was the first day both houses of Congress had been in session since the President's return to Washington.

Early said that the President composed the message in pencil on a small pad Wednesday night.

The brevity of the message occasioned comment in Congress, but otherwise the reaction followed traditional lines—Administration supporters praised it, while members of the isolationist bloc found fault with it.

The President sent the message as he prepared to leave last night for a weekend at his Hyde Park, N. Y., home, where he will be host to the Duke of Kent, youngest brother of King George VI of Britain.

first call on all scarce materials needed for truck manufacture.

Yesterday's curtailment order, made at a conference of the automotive defense industry advisory committee—consisting of the major figures in the huge industry—is designed to save millions of tons of steel, aluminum, nickel, zinc, chromium, copper and lead. A shortage in these materials, for direct and indirect purposes, either already exists or is imminently threatening.

Although the cut of 26½ per cent was ordered for the industry as a whole, the weight will be heavier on the three major companies, General Motors, Ford and Chrysler, who were ordered to curtail operations to a rate of 27.6 per cent below last year's levels. The other companies, Studebaker, Hudson, Nash, Packard, Willys-Overland and Crosley, are to be curtailed by 20.2 per cent.

The individual quotas for the four months ending November 30, 1941, were announced as follows:

General Motors, 361,815, compared with 511,700 in same period last year.
Chrysler, 188,849, against 275,600.
Ford, 151,845, against 182,800.
Studebaker, 35,289, against 46,160.
Hudson, 25,874, against 46,160.
Nash, 21,972, against 20,942.
Packard, 23,056, against 25,710.
Willys-Overland, 7760, against 8364.
Crosley, 333, against 185.

The increase for Nash was granted, OPM announced, because that company had an unusually low output during the four-month period last year. The increase to Crosley was for the same reason.

The defense agencies estimated that the auto industry should produce 1,189,000 trucks, about 200,000 more than the output in the model year ended last July, in order to meet vehicular needs of the Army and Navy, the lease-lend program, export to Russia and vital domestic transportation.

Effect of the curtailment order on unemployment was not immediately clear. OPM Chief Knudsen declared on Thursday that he did not expect further layoffs to result, inasmuch as at present—the beginning of a new model year—employment in the auto industry is already at a low ebb.

However, OPM Cochief Sidney Hillman announced that he was forming a joint committee of the industry and its labor to "head off" in every way possible unemployment resulting from the cut.

He said the following three-point program would be carried out:

1. Orderly transfer of workers to defense plants now being built by the auto industry, coupled with a trainihg program to prepare the employes for the new work.
2. Transfer of the workers to other defense industries in the area.
3. Fitting of additional defense work into equipment now devoted to passenger car production, along the lines of a special study now being developed with the OPM by private and military engineers.

The method and extent of the curtailment constituted a meeting between the once conflicting viewpoints of Knudsen and OPACS Administrator Leon Henderson.

Yesterday's plan appeared to meet Henderson's overall objective, and at the same time to begin the curtailment more gradually.

Meet the Zoo's Baby Tapir and Woolly Sloth Bear

Keeper Paul Holup holds the baby tapir whose mother wheeled for an attack as baby squealed when the photographer's flash bulb went off.

OVER the objection of his mother, who shies from publicity, a handsome little trick (sports model) had his picture taken yesterday, with an accomplice to the photo-making almost being hurt in the process.

The scene took place in the lion house at National Zoological Park. The principal characters, though, were not big cats but a South American tapir and her 24-hour-old offspring.

First tapir to be born at the zoo in many years, the little one had been picked up by Keeper Paul Holup after William H. Blackburne, head keeper, lured its mother to the near side of the cage with a banana.

WITH the flash of the photographer's light bulb, baby squealed and mama wheeled. Holup, quite properly, set the infant down as its 600-pound mother charged him, her Jimmie Durante nose elevated to bare the bridgework.

Mama, normally a very peaceful soul, quieted down instantly her first-born was back on the cage floor and Blackburne—not to mention Holup—sighed with relief.

The young tapir is about 15 pounds of streamlined dots and stripes, uncertain legs and limpid eyes. Blackburne figures it will lose its sport model coat in eight months, assuming the dull grey hide of its parents.

ONLY slightly less a popular attraction to the thousands who visited the zoo yesterday was a Tibetan sloth bear, on exhibition for the first time.

Acquired from a dealer, the new specimen is less than half grown and is distinguished by its extremely long hair and long snout.

"Give it a haircut," quipped the octogenarian Blackburne, "and there wouldn't be much bear left."

The zoo hasn't had a sloth bear for 15 years. The headkeeper's memory went back more than a half century as he recalled having worked a trained sloth bear in the P. T. Barnum Circus.

WHAT a one he was," mused "Capt. Billie." "About 40 monkeys—well, ten any way—would ride him bareback around the ring. He got so fond of those creatures, and they of him, that when he went to sleep at night you couldn't see old Prince for all the sleeping monkeys that lay all over his back."

The Tibetan sloth bear says "Hello"

D. C. Industry Adapts Itself to Defense Production

Until a few months ago this Washington plant was engaged in the pacific task of turning out ornamental work to adorn buildings. Now it manufactures antiaircraft devices. Above—James Donohoe stacks articles that will go into defense channels. Right—Millard Blackmon tags antiaircraft mountings destined for a coast artillery post

AMERICAN soldiers in pitch blackness bend over a sound-detecting device, straining to pick up the throb of an airplane motor. Powerful searchlights then finger the sky, seeking a target for the antiaircraft guns.

This scene, to be enacted time and again in the Nation's great military maneuvers, already in progress, is made possible by such concerns as the A. F. Jorss Iron Works, Inc., of Washington.

A few months ago the Jorss firm was occupied entirely in the pacific pursuit of making ornamental iron products — such as the scrolls and flutings you see in a modernistic apartment house.

BUT today 90 per cent of this company's work is for the Army and Navy. Private projects come second—if for no other reason, the fact that iron, bronze, brass and aluminum have a daily closer connection with the word "priorities."

Yesterday the packing cases at the new annex to the Jorss plant, 2424 G Street Northwest, bore a label directing them to a Southern Coast Artillery base, one of 57 Army posts to which defense products are being shipped.

In this case the product is antiaircraft "transportation auxiliaries."

The transportation auxiliary is a complicated-looking arrangement of iron forms and plates, the mounting upon which sound-detecting and searchlight equipment rests when it is being rushed from one point to another.

THE mounting is of such construction that soldiers may set up and dismantle the antiaircraft equipment in complete darkness.

To produce this and other highly specialized defense articles, Jorss officials have been confronted with a labor problem.

They have had to expand their personnel three-fold and, they say, skilled workers are hard to find. As a result, men who never saw a welding torch or an electric drill before are being pressed into service as steel workers.

THAT they are able to perform adequately is due to the fact they are drilled in one particular and minor part of the whole process until they can do it perfectly.

In the manufacture of its defense items, many of them highly confidential, the "dispersal" idea has come into play at the Jorss plant. Subcontractors in other areas are given contracts to make integral parts of a defense article so that no one concern gets to know too much about the finished product.

For instance: While the antiaircraft "auxiliary" is nonconfidential, no one concern would ever obtain a blueprint of the $5000 "brain" of the sound and searchlight apparatus that guides the gunners.

And at the local iron works, three Government inspectors keep watch over production. The Government is taking no chances with its defense contracts.

Horton Oglesby presented this interesting picture at the Jorss works as he welded a mounting for antiaircraft searchlight and sound detection device

Gas Shortage Report Starts Run on Stations

Federal Petroleum Marketing Committee meeting in New York but its recommendations—if they have been drafted yet—were not disclosed. The committee is composed of oil experts in private industry serving as advisers to the Government.

In Washington, a state bordering on chaos prevailed as autoists found they could get only 2 gallons at some filling stations, 5 gallons at others and a full tank at others. Conflicting rumors as to rationing, Sunday closing, prices, etc., added to the confusion.

Some of the questions were answered at last night's meeting of gasoline retailers.

Maj. Beverly Snow, chairman of the District Petroleum Conservation Committee, told the dealers that rationing definitely would come—"drastic, compulsory rationing"—unless filling station operators equitably pass on to the consumer the 10 per cent cut in deliveries ordered by Leon Henderson's Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply.

(To effect this cut, oil companies plan to curtail their deliveries in the period from August 16 to August 31 to 45 per cent of their total deliveries in July. This amounts to a 10 per cent cut.

(The Standard Oil Co., feeling this would not be enough, recently announced it would curtail deliveries to 30 per cent of its August figure. But when other distributors failed to follow suit, Standard raised the figure to 45 per cent.)

Maj. Snow said two "phases" of the petroleum conservation program had already failed to reduce consumption, that the campaign for voluntary cooperation by motorists and the 7 p. m. to 7 a. m. gas sales "curfew" had proved useless.

In fact, he said, "that second phase caused an increase of about 8 per cent in the consumption of gasoline on the East Coast."

The program, said Maj. Snow, is now entering a third phase. "We have put the thing in the hands of the gasoline dealers," he declared, adding, "it depends on you" as to whether a fourth phase—compulsory rationing—will come.

Suggestions on how to pass on the 10 per cent delivery cut to motorists were outlined by Wainwright, but he left it to the individual operators to decide how to treat individual customers, whether to refuse to sell more than a certain amount to each or work out some other solution.

Wainwright recommended that each operator set up a daily sales quota for the rest of the month, based on how much his daily sales usually totaled. The usual daily sales, he said, should be cut 20 per cent.

Wainwright urged the dealers, first, to set up their quotas, second, to set either a limit to the amount any customer can purchase or limit each sale to "nonessential" users, and, third, to do everything in their power to obtain voluntary curtailment of gasoline used by their customers.

"If this effort does not bring the gasoline sales within your definite quota," he said, "then stop selling gasoline each day when your full quota for that day is sold."

Site President Favors

SMALLER BUILDING—The Arlington County site favored by President Roosevelt for a smaller Army "dream building" is indicated on this map (shaded area). The proposed site, on which a quartermaster depot was to be constructed, is north of Columbia Pike, between the old Washington Airport and Arlington Ridge Road. Plans for a 35 million dollar building, which Congress authorized near the end of Memorial Bridge (site indicated by "A"), was criticized by the President because it would obstruct the view of Arlington Cemetery and the Lee mansion of Ohio, told reporters he agreed with George that Congress would continue to pour out nondefense funds unless the Administration got behind an economy effort.

Vandenberg and Taft in the Senate last week led a two-man fight to eliminate a 100 million dollar State road authorization the President had vetoed in another bill. The Senate cut 50 million dollars.

Dr. Benson, who submitted a detailed schedule of where two billion dollars could be saved from civil items without impairing the defense effort, was advised by George to lay his plan before the Appropriations Committee.

Benson recommended complete elimination of CCC and NYA appropriation and discard of $161,000,000 budgeted for nonmilitary highways. He said his college could board and educate four boys for the $1,025 it costs the Government for each CCC enrollee.

He recommended a $1,088,000,000 reduction in WPA, public works and soil erosion and a $224,500,000 cut in outlays for rivers and harbors, flood control, export bounties, food stamp expenditures, rural rehabilitation, forests and trails park improvements, departmental publicity and franking. He itemized another proposed one hundred million dollar cut in departmental expenses.

"If you immediately broaden the base—pay every possible dollar on the war as we go—and seriously economize in all nondefense expenditures, we can weather this crisis and successfully preserve our freedom and democracy," the witness testified.

Among others testifying on the tax bill:

Walter A. M. Cooper, representing the American Institute of Accountants, recommended complete elimination of all tax exemptions on personal incomes and withholding at the source of the normal tax on all payments to individuals, partnerships and trusts of salaries, dividends, interest and "other fixed or determinable income."

Howard T. Jones, general counsel of the Distilled Spirits Institute, warned that bootlegging is on the increase due to a 273 per cent increase in taxes on liquor since repeal, opposing another increase of from $3 to $4 a gallon.

Senator La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, one of the originals exponents of base-broadening, meanwhile served notice he will oppose Treasury proposals for further lowering of exemptions unless the committee sharply tightens proposed taxes on corporate profits.

enough to receive the credits necessary for an Air Corps cadetship. After nine months' training, he won his commission a year ago last May.

His first assignment was to Langley Field, Va., and then Lieut. Meeks was sent to Mitchel Field, N. Y. It was at Mitchel Field that Capt. Meeks last saw his son four weeks ago. Then, there was not even a hint that Lieut. Meeks was to leave for Reykjavik, the Icelandic capital.

Capt. and Mrs. Meeks have been living at Woodland Beach, Md., for the summer. After receiving the brief information Wednesday of George's death, they went to live with friends in Arlington for a few days, so that they can be more easily reached by the War Department when more details on George's death are available.

Besides his parents, Lieut. Meeks leaves his grandfather, Ernest E. Murray, also of the District.

back to work at the North American Aviation Co."

The Government earlier this year sent troops into the California plant of North American and ordered Army officers to take over production.

Korndorff, president of the company, told newsmen the company did not care to make any statements on the situation.

Mr. Roosevelt gave over a good part of yesterday to efforts to end the strike which is holding up work on 493 million dollars of naval and merchant ship construction at the Kearny yards.

In the morning he conferred with Korndorff and Taylor, who later went to the Navy Department to meet with Secretary Knox, Sidney Hillman, OPM labor chief, and National Defense Mediation Board Chairman William H. Davis.

All of the conferees went into a second meeting with the President in the afternoon. In addition Green and Judge Walter Stacey, of the North Carolina Supreme Court, who headed the Mediation Board panel that first considered the dispute, were called to the White House.

Sole issue of the strike which has tied up work on 493 million dollars of naval and merchant shipping construction since August 7, is the union demand for a maintenance of membership clause in a contract with the company. The Mediation Board recommended that the company grant the clause, but Korndorff has refused.

At the conclusion of yesterday's conference, Green acted as spokesman, with Knox standing beside him as if in support.

Green commented that "they"—presumably the Government—"don't want to take the plant over."

Asked about the "suggestions thrown on the table" and if they constituted a compromise proposal, Green made it clear that no compromise had been suggested in the conferences.

"If any compromise is made," he said, "it will be between labor and the company."

"It is my humble opinion," he added, "that this thing ought to be gotten over with very quickly and the men got back to work next week."

Strike Closes Half Of Mexico's Phones

Mexico City, Aug. 21, (AP).—Employes of the American-owned Mexican Telegraph & Telephone Co. went on strike at noon today, paralyzing half of Mexico's telephone service.

Last-minute pleas of the federal labor board failed to prevent the walkout. The workers are bargaining for a new contract with increased wages.

The American-owned firm shares the country's telephone network with the Swedish-controlled Ericson company.

The company's 1800 employes quit simultaneously throughout the country when the company refused a final demand for a 35 per cent wage increase.

No Compromise

President Roosevelt took occasion, in his message to Congress yesterday, to underline a point that stood out clearly when his joint statement with Prime Minister Churchill was released. The two statesmen agreed, in brief, that there would be no compromise with Naziism. "Inevitably such a peace would be a gift to Naziism," Mr. Roosevelt told Congress, "to take breath—armed breath—for a second war to extend the control over Europe and Asia to the American Hemisphere itself." Obviously the President and the Prime Minister wanted to have the principles of a just and lasting peace fixed in the minds of the people before Hitler makes any overtures for such a compromise.

The policy of refusing to compromise with the Nazis was fully covered, of course, in the sixth point of the joint statement. Messrs. Roosevelt and Churchill said that "after the final destruction of the Nazi tyranny, they hope to see established a peace which will afford to all nations the means of dwelling in safety within their own boundaries, and which will afford assurance that all the men in all the lands may live out their lives in freedom from fear and want." With Hitler dominating Europe, it would be patently impossible for any people to dwell in safety within their own boundaries. No assurances that the Nazi government might give, as the President pointed out yesterday, would change the situation. So long as Hitler is in a position to strike at any nation that may flout his wishes, there can be no peace worthy of the name.

As a partner—particularly an armament-producing partner—in the struggle against the Axis, the United States has unmistakably accepted this view. The President has now reiterated, by implication, the unwillingness of his Administration to "agree to" any peace that would leave Hitler in control of Europe. What obligations that policy may involve for the United States in the future is not yet clear. It is even more impossible to foresee our reaction to future events than to foresee the events themselves. But this country is already playing an important role in the war, through the approval of Congress, as an arsenal for nations resisting aggression. The mildest interpretation that can be placed upon the President's message, therefore, is that the industrial strength of the United States will be pitted against the Nazi menace until it is finally destroyed.

Comrades In Reverse

You may be interested to hear at this point how our Communist brethren have been getting on with their education since they discovered that this isn't just a war between rival imperialisms after all. Well, one thing you can say about the comrades is that when they learn a lesson they learn it completely, as witness the files of the New York Daily Worker.

Turning back through those files at random, we discover in the editorial columns of March 11, 1941, a passionate warning to "the mothers of America." The mothers were told that HR 1776 (the lend-lease bill), then before Congress, was no more than a preliminary step to an American expeditionary force. The editorial concluded with the following exhortation:

> No convoys, no shipments, no AEF, the people must insist. Break the fatal military alliance with British imperialism. Get out and stay out of the war, Labor must tell Washington louder than ever.

Five months later we find the Daily Worker in full agreement with those British strategists who believe that Hitler can be crushed only by the opening of "a fully developed Western Front, including a land invasion." The editorial goes on to explain that "the opening of the Western Front is an immediate necessity for the security of the United States." This is followed by another exhortation:

> The people . . . desire a merciless struggle against all appeasement intrigues. The American people will not stint in the needed measures to crush the Nazi menace. The whole people should make their views known so that the appeasers will make no mistake about the American view on crushing Hitler.

And if circumstances alter cases, they also alter personalities. On March 25 Comrade Earl Browder was being escorted to prison. The Daily Worker explained that the real reason he was being persecuted was "because he is the most uncompromising leader of the people against war." Last Tuesday the Daily Worker demanded Browder's instant release on the ground that "the country's outstanding antifascist fighter" is needed to cement and rally the American Nation "for the fight against Hitlerism."

Rationing Gasoline

Periodically, ever since it became apparent that the oil shortage in the East is an actuality and not just a threat, The Post has urged strict rationing as a means of forestalling a really critical shortage of fuel. Nothing in the developing situation justifies revising our position. Acting Petroleum Cordinator Davies has revealed that we have enough gasoline for ten days and some local dealers are reducing their sales to "nonessential" consumers as much as 50 per cent. Such action has made more impression on the general public than all the spirited pleas for gas conservation combined. And there is bound to be further action of this kind. Voluntary restriction is now an admitted failure. Oil requirements in the months ahead remain an uncertain quantity and the impression persists that presently the British may need more of our tankers. Wisdom, therefore, dictates an imposed system of rationing now that will remove all doubt as to our ability to get through the emergency with sufficient oil for essential purposes.

Drawing up an equitable rationing plan, as those who have tried it know, is an unenviable task, beset by all sorts of complicating factors. The basic system of allocation in Britain, however, has much to recommend it. There all commercial road traffic has been reduced to a minimum. Though commercial curtailment of oil consumption on a similar scale is neither advisable nor necessary over here, the British scheme for controlling the operation of private cars is worth study. Rationing is achieved by coupons, each dated for a specific month. The coupons are not transferable (each coupon book carries the registration number of the car) and cannot be accumulated from one three-month period to another. Private motorists in Britain are at present restricted to sufficient "units" to allow them about 200 miles travel per month, but beginning in October that basic allotment will be halved.

If an analogous coupon system should be introduced in this country, one of the first considerations will be to avoid traffic dislocations. For if the thousands who usually drive to and from work in their cars decide to travel by trolley or bus, commercial transportation facilities will not be adequate to handle the crush. That difficulty can be avoided, of course, if groups of persons ride to and from work in a single car, instead of each using his own. For in the final analysis only by such evidence of cooperation on the part of the public can any restriction program, whether or not it involves officially imposed rationing, be successful.

Under The Rose

The whole trouble with Army morale, says Mr. Billy Rose, the famous Broadway producer, is the Government-issued stuff that passes under the label of entertainment. These morale officers, Mr. Rose says, haven't got the faintest notion of how to go about making each company street a running river of innocent merriment. They don't even know how to paint their camp theaters. At the cost of one good submarine, Mr. Rose offers a plan which would fill the armed forces with high spirits and rollicking laughter in no time at all.

On ethical and ideological grounds, you understand, Mr. Rose abhors the Nazis' system as much as any of us, but he has to hand it to them on this strength-through-joy business. Something like that, he seems to think, is just what we need in these United States. If the General Staff would only turn the joymaking over to professional joymakers—that is to say, to the 50 top men in show business—"you would see the morale of this country climb sky high."

Now Mr. Rose speaks on this matter with a certain authority. For the past two decades or so, Mr. Rose, as a songwriter, a night club entrepreneur, an impresario of "notable nymphs, voluptuous houris, chic grisettes, statuesque odalisques, dashing demoiselles and delectable rosebuds," has devoted his talents to purveying strength through joy to tired businessmen. He is, among other things, the author of "Barney Google," a famous song based entirely on the well-known emotional impact of repetition of the vowel sound "oo." He is the man who thought of having Helen Morgan sit on top of a concert grand piano when she sang, who conceived and translated into actuality the super-colossal Aquacade at the New York World's Fair.

Although Mr. Rose doesn't expressly say so, this is no doubt the kind of thing he has in mind for improving Army morale. Perhaps he would institute lavish and beautiful floor shows in the Army mess halls, redecorated and lighted, after the fashion of his Casino de Paree, in chartreuse, silver, blue, amber and red. Perhaps he would have the boys led to the drill field each morning by a hand-picked chorus. Perhaps he would substitute blues singers and whispering quartets for the traditional but antiquated ceremonials of "Tattoo" and "Taps." A few weeks of this sort of thing and the boys would be simply bursting with zeal to defend Christian civilization against the menace of paganism.

Alcoa Contract

The contract negotiated between a subsidiary of the RFC and the Aluminum Co. of America providing for the construction of three new aluminum plants throws a good deal of light upon the reasons why the expansion program of this industry is so far behind prospective output requirements. It is significant that the project will be financed with Government money and the plants will be operated on a rental basis that will protect the company against loss. In return for this arrangement, which appears to be mutually advantageous, the company has agreed to cut the price of aluminum by 2 cents a pound. When the plant expansion contemplated under these contracts and those now in process of negotiation with other companies is completed, the United States will have, according to estimates by Jesse Jones, Federal Loan Administrator, an annual aluminum capacity of about 1,500,000,000 pounds, or nearly five times our 1939 production.

It is apparent that even if representatives of the aluminum industry had foreseen the need for such a vastly expanded output, they would not have been willing to finance the required enlargement of capacity. For under a system of private industry new capital investment is voluntarily undertaken only in expectation of profit. When productive capacity is increased 4 or 5 fold to meet the needs of an emergency the risks of eventual loss are too great to warrant an appeal for public investment support or to justify self-financing of the entire venture. The Government, acting in the public interest, must, therefore, take the initiative in pushing an emergency expansion program of unusual scope. And it is likewise necessary for the Government to assume some of the risks of expansion under the unusual circumstances now prevailing.

Failure to realize the limitations of private industry in times of emergency has been a major stumbling block in the way of progress toward our defense goal. Fortunately, the contract negotiated with Alcoa indicates that the Government is at last awake to the necessity of more active direct participation in plans for industrial expansion.

Dnieperstroy

There has so far been no confirmation of the rumor that, after completing the evacuation of his troops from the region west of the Dnieper, Marshal Budyenny blew up the great Dnieperstroy Dam. But in view of Russia's "scorched earth" policy of leaving nothing useful in the area conquered by the Nazis, it is not improbable that this grim task of destruction either has been carried out or will be carried out. The dam itself could be used as a highway over which the German forces, including their heaviest tanks, trucks and artillery, could move across the Dnieper in pursuit of the retreating Russians. If left intact, it could also be used by the enemy to provide the power necessary to operate the mines and metallurgical establishments in the Krivoi Rog area which the Germans captured about a week ago. An additional consideration is the possibility that the flooding of the lower Dnieper Valley which would result from destruction of the dam might impede the progress of the German war machine now pushing forward in the Ukraine.

Yet it can be taken for granted that only the direst military necessity would lead the Russians to sanction such a grim act of destruction. To the peoples of Soviet Russia, Dnieperstroy is more than a dam. It is a symbol. Every stage of its erection was watched by the Russian people with intense interest. They gloried in it as proof of Russia's growing industrial power. And when it was finally built, under the supervision of an American engineer, the late Hugh L. Cooper, the Russians took enormous pride in the fact that it was the largest power dam in the world, one capable of generating enough electricity — 750,000 horsepower—to serve an immense area. If that great dam has been blown up, it is certainly another strong indication that the war now raging in Russia will be a fight to the finish.

FOR THE MAN WHO SAT NEXT ME IN THE CLUB CAR

I remember. But you said, "Remembrance
Is done with. Let the dead past bury the dead.
To think of Rome is to be as good as buried . . .
Today, and tomorrow, count," was what you said.

But I remember. Cherishing yesterday's sunlight . . .
Rain the day before that . . . and even snow . . .
Though the word fail, I can still remember.
One day is such a little thing to know.

Maj. Brown

Through his voluntary retirement on August 21, Maj. Ernest Brown will cease to the police chief of the City of Washington.

Those citizens of Washington who, like the writer, have opportunity to know the inside workings of our police force under Maj. Brown, feel that it is a misfortune for the Capital to lose him from official life. Undoubtedly he would be the first to state that there are measures for the safety of the expanding city he would have liked to take which proved impossible with the small force and the niggardly financial support at his command. But no one who is not entirely ignorant of the facts could accuse him of lack of fair play, organizing ability, and high integrity.

In the peculiar position in which Washington finds itself, a city without self-government, dependent on Commissioners to recommend or pigeonhole at will such recommendations for better organization which Maj. Brown has made from time to time, dependent on members of Congress who care little for the city's welfare unless some personal constituent comes to the city and suffers some misfortune, it is not to be wondered at that our officials are powerless to meet abnormal situations of overcrowding. It is unfortunate that they are blamed for the very faults imposed by our system of city government. A population with a vote usually sets its own house in order sooner or later.

Building Sites

May Congress go slow on the new War Building to do things right this time. Politicians chauffeured to work have little concept of transportation problems. In connection with this angle it is amazing what those who planned the Hoover buildings must have been using in place of brains. Now the city must forever have staggered hours, with great masses of people off schedule everywhere, to say nothing of wasted time and needless expense for parking. Office parking adds $6.50 a month to my expenses and I object to it because it was not necessary.

Also, people object to buildings that require a two block walk after you get into them. It is not conducive to year-around efficiency with all ages of people.

One of the prettiest parts of the city is in the vicinity of A Street Northwest and it is full of shacks. Also the immense Soldiers' Home acreage, and it is mostly full of cows. We Federal employes better hurry and pipe our protests before Congress saddles us with more misplaced and misplanned buildings.

Spreading Thin

Your editorial, "Two Keys," emphasizes how little specific information came to the world as a result of the Roosevelt-Churchill meeting. But your explanation is inadequate. To suggest that being specific would disclose plans to Hitler isn't the answer. The two leaders were plain enough in their section 6 of the paste-pot proclamation, "after the destruction of the Nazi tyranny—" which cannot be performed in secret. How are they going to destroy it? By helping Russia. But there is in America more hostility to helping Stalin than appeared in the almost tie vote against increasing the length of service of the draftees.

Mr. Roosevelt said he thought that Russia could hold out for the winter against Hitler. Few men in Washington in position to have intimate knowledge of the subject agree with the President. Then why do we complicate the job to which we have set our hands. We are to beat Hitler and defend England. We must not spread out too thin.

By helping Stalin we invite early hostility with Japan. Are we ready for that crisis? The press of America is bitterly hostile to Japan, expressing the almost unanimous opinion of the American people. We are filled with aversion, more clearly defined as repugnance or loathing toward the Japanese because of their brutal treatment of the weak and helpless. Yet is it wise for us to go to war with Japan when we are not prepared and we have larger work to do on the Atlantic? How can we render aid to Stalin if Japan closes Russia's port of Vladivostok. No way through the Baltic, no way in the Pacific, Murmansk is too tough.

Meanwhile, the Hitler propaganda machine calls the attention of their world to the determination of the eight-point pact to forbid creation of future arms even for purposes of defense. The Nazi cry is at once Roosevelt and Churchill want to rule the world. The dismemberment of Germany and Japan is the object of the New Deal, such being the wailing of the Axis powers. Do we break down any morale in either country by inviting that form of argument?

My talk with men in this city since the eight-point paper was made public leads me to believe it fell flat. Nothing new or original, all that was said, had been said all that was said had been said under more favorable circumstances with better appeal to the American people. The only value of the meeting, perhaps what was intended, it will give assurances to the British that our support will not be withdrawn, that we are determined to beat Hitler, to destroy his air force and his submarines, to make England safe as a place of residence, that women and children in English cities shall not be exposed to the death of a slaughter house. Let us bring this about by military power or spiritual wisdom, after which we can talk about eight or eighty ways of keeping the future peace of the world.

Club For Defense

I note that many members of the G. O. P. America(n Profits) First Committee declaim against any association with the dirty, filthy Communists, even though they are fighting Hitler. My dear old Cousin Horace told me years ago: "Boy, if you ever have to pick up a club to defend yourself with, don't stop because it has just been a chicken-roost."

This principle is just as sound today, and it doesn't matter whether the chickens are Russian or Rhode Island Reds.

Jurisdiction In Arlington

The proposal of Senator McCarran to have declared void the retrocession to Virginia of that portion of the original District of Columbia which lies west of the Potomac River gives rise to some interesting speculations.

The section of the Constitution giving Congress the power to "exercise exclusive legislation" over such district as should "become the seat of Government of the United States" also contains, in the same sentence, a provision giving Congress power to "exercise like authority over all places purchased by the consent of the Legislature of the State in which the same shall be, for the erection of forts, magazines, arsenals, dock yards and other needful public buildings." The intent of these provisions was obviously to eliminate State jurisdiction over such areas.

Under the Constitution each State is sovereign. The powers of the Federal Government are restricted to those delegated to it in that document, and all powers not so delegated are specifically "reserved to the States respectively, or to the people." In order for the Federal Government to have sovereign powers over Federal buildings and over the larger area of the "seat of Government" it was necessary that this power of "exclusive legislation" be delegated to it by the Constitution, and ratified by the States affected.

If the land on which it is proposed to build the War Department building was purchased with the consent of the Virginia Legislature, or if that Legislature will consent to a release of jurisdiction, the control of Congress over that building will be as "exclusive" as it is over any Federal building in the District of Columbia. This, however, would not apply to privately owned land adjacent thereto, and apparently the framers of the Constitution considered it desirable that the exclusive jurisdiction of Congress also extend over such privately owned land.

The residents of Arlington County will undoubtedly resist any attempt to remove them from the jurisdiction of Virginia, not because they are particularly desirous of living in Virginia, or in any other State, but because the experience of the residents of the District of Columbia under exclusive Congressional control has not been a happy one, particularly in more recent years. The framers of the Constitution would undoubtedly have been shocked had they known that, less than 100 years later, the residents of the "seat of Government" would be reduced to the status of political serfs, deprived of the basic American right of self-government, and given the privilege only of providing, with their tax money, municipal facilities and services for the business plant of the Federal Government.

Let Congress reestablish home rule in Washington, while still retaining its sovereign power, and let such home rule be guaranteed, if necessary, by an amendment to the Constitution which shall make certain that the "seat of the Government" shall always have the "republican form of government" that is guaranteed to the States by that document. Further, let the people of Washington have representation in Congress, if not on the basis of a sovereign State, then on the principle that any municipality has representation in the Legislature of the State in which it is situated. Let Congress be our State Legislature and not our city council. Then there should be little objection on the part of Arlington County residents to transferring their allegiance from the State of Virginia to the Federal Government.

The Post Impressionist

Being a Doggerelist

And so to doggerel.

At The Drug Store

I grabbed a Post
And hopped up to the counter,
I quickly read of Hitler's boast
But what did that amount ter?

I glanced in front and saw no plate,
No coffee or no bun—
"What's this?" thought I as I read on—
"Where is my cinnamon?"

And then I heard a soft, sweet voice,
"What it is you will have, sir?"
It seems she did not speak to me—
Well, I'll take what I have ter.

"Where are the boys?" I waved to Doc,
"Where's Jimmie, John and Champ?"
"The boys are leaving every day,
They're going off to camp."

"No sooner do they come," he said,
"Than they go in the draft.
"I hear they're checking up on you—"
And then he sort o' laughed.

"I heard the King and all his men
Were looking out for me
When I was on the jolly brig
And far, far out to sea."

"Those canny boys at Kingston
Were curious enough."
Well, if I have to go to war,
Just who will write my stuff?

You don't have to have a union card to be a doggerelist. You can lilt a pretty good line without being pressed into membership of a newspaper guild. Doggerelists go in for self-expression. Never eschew the obvious, as that might link you with the goose-stepping Iambic Pentameters.

So, let's start in at Oak, again, and take a fling at just pure doggerel. May be the best idea you ever had never got any farther than the back of the envelope on which you scrawled it. Some day, too, you might click off that "mouse trap" verse. Step out blithely with a foursome:

The Rider

Astride his mount at the flush of dawn,
The jangle of spurs—in a flash he's gone;
He never rides to the pampered bay
Of unleashed hounds—he's away—away!

Here comes the streamliner! Clinging to a rod on which I had a finger-hold, two girl friends greeted each other.

"Well, I just have to get away from everything once in a while—what with housework and looking after three kids, I am about to lose my mind. Think I'll get a job. Oh, yes, Jim has done perfectly wonderful—passed the bar and everything. I never see him, though—with these A. M. classes and important meetings at night. I am nothing but a tired housemaid. And would you believe it? Those kids think more of him than they do of me." Her voice broke a trifle.

"Now, I don't believe that," her friend laughed.

"If Aimee McPherson ran away with a radio man, I can understand it, I'd like to meet one myself."

"Ah, browse around and get yourself a new hat and go to the movies! I'm a "widow, too"—she laughed—"Jack got caught in the draft."

I used to just dote on housewifely things
And flit round the place as if I had wings—
With a hub and three kids to cook for and stew
Do you wonder I'm down on the whole blessed crew?
You're telling me with just a half chance—
I'm telling you—I'm off to romance!
Away from the kids that litter the house,
While Jim just reads on—the "readable" spouse!
If Aimee ran off with a radio man—
I'm glad that she did. I hope that I can.
I'd really take one with a strong pair of skis
And for a brief space just try out the breeze.
Hum—hum—I'm a flop where old duty bids—
I'd probably be crying for Jim and the kids!

In a veritable downpour I crossed New York Avenue to get the Fourteenth Street car. The 40's came and came like Army tanks in quick succession. I almost forgot my wet feet and my own discomfiture in admiration of the sleekness and rhythm of those streamliners. "Here comes 54!" someone shouted. They came and they came but loaded to the gunnel like troop ships headed for Suez. I was oblivious to the passing of time until I found myself in a lineup in a cafeteria up the street. I borrowed a pencil from the fellow who sat across from me and took a fling at darkie doggerel:

G'wan, Full Ca'
G'wan, full ca' widout me
Dese dawgs is tired stannin' in yo' aisles—
Dese dawgs hab trabeled miles and miles—
G'wan, full ca'!
An' since you charge dat ten-cent fare,
Dese dawgs think dat means a chair
G'wan, full ca'.

Riding on a Washington bus, I was attracted to an ad of a typical Westerner flinging a rope in the manner of that inimitable cowman, Will Rogers. The thing buzzed around in my mind until I got a seat and a pencil.

I Am The Rope

I am the rope, the lucky rope,
On which Will Rogers' fame was built.
There are ropes and ropes and commonplace ropes
And ropes that line the holds of ships,
That hold the dredge that digs the ditch,
But I am the rope, the subtle rope,
On which Will Rogers' fame was built.
There are the ropes that blast men's hopes
But I am the rope, the jolly rope,
The whirling, twirling, swirling rope
That tickles the crowds.
I am the rope, the clever rope,
On which Will Rogers' fame was built!

The Road To Batum

Is Turkey Next?

NOVER

ACCORDING to reports that have reached Ankara, advance units of two German army divisions have arrived in Bulgaria, fresh groups of German aviators fla and Italian have established themselves at So- patrols are engaged in scouting the Greek-Turkish border.

These reports have not been confirmed. But there is nothing improbable about them. On the contrary, there is every reason to believe that they are true. In the first place, the rising tide of discontent in Bulgaria, a nation where pro-Russian sentiment has always been prevalent, has reached the point where the Germans may feel it necessary to increase their garrisons to preserve order in that corner of the Balkans. In addition, the latest developments in the German-Russian struggle have brought Turkey right back into the war picture.

It may not be long before Turkey is forced to choose between the same unhappy alternatives that previously confronted her neighbors, namely, whether to submit to Germany or resist her. Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria submitted and the Magyars and Rumanians are now spilling their blood and wasting their treasure in helping Germany to fight Russia. Greece and Yugoslavia resisted and were overrun by the Nazis.

WHAT TURKEY will do when confronted with a similar choice is far from clear. Her position has become extraordinarily difficult. The Turks are allied to the British, with whom, since the end of the fighting in Iraq and Syria, they they now share a common frontier. On the other hand, Turkey's northwest border adjoins Greece and Bulgaria, nations under Axis occupation.

There have been persistent rumors for a long time that the Germans have made demands on Turkey to permit the passage of German troops across the Dardanelles and Anatolia when and if Hitler finds it feasible to extend the war to the Middle East. The Turks are said to have rejected such demands. After the fall of Crete they did agree to sign a nonaggression treaty with the Third Reich. But however punctilious Turkey may be living up to the spirit and letter of that pact, it is certain that Hitler will regard it as binding only as long as it suits his interests to do so.

THE GERMANS are still a long way from the oil fields of the Caucasus. To reach it by the overland route they must cross the Dnieper and Don Rivers and then make their way over the inhospitable terrain east of the Don. Such a venture, even successful, might take more time than Hitler can afford and use up more men and supplies than he has to spare.

With the fall of Nicolaev, important Russian naval base and shipbuilding center on the Black Sea, a new and easier road to Russia's oil wealth may have been opened to the Germans. In capturing Nikolaev, the Nazis not only weakened Marshal Budyenny's left flank and isolated Odessa but also dealt a heavy blow to Russian sea power in the Black Sea. At Nikolaev the Russians were engaged in building a number of warships which would have made the Crimea and the Caucasus impregnable to sea attack. As it happened, the Germans claim to have captured one 35,000-ton battleship, a 10,000-ton cruiser, four destroyers, and two submarines, all in various stages of construction.

DESPITE THESE LOSSES, the Russians continue to dominate the Black Sea, for with the exception of a few submarines sent overland to Rumanian and Bulgarian ports and the few obsolete ships which Rumania has placed at her disposal, Germany has no naval strength to speak of in the Black Sea. Should it be possible for Italy to send warships through the Dardanelles the naval balance in the Black Sea would materially be altered, particularly if, as is certain, such action would be accompanied by an effort to drive the Russian forces out of the Crimea by means successfully employed by the Germans in Crete.

Before Italian warships can be sent through the Dardanelles, Turkey's consent must be secured or, as an alternative, the Dardanelles seized by the Axis. Hitler would, of course, prefer the acquiescence of Turkey rather than its hostility. To that end a smashing victory over the Russians would help soften the Turks even if the Russians still remained in the field and the struggle continued. His present campaigns in the Leningrad and Ukraine sectors have psychological as well as military objectives. Despite the fact that the nature and duration of Russian resistance has amazed the world and confounded the Nazis the fact cannot be ignored that a great Nazi triumph in Russia, even if belated and even if inconclusive (as would be the capture of Leningrad, for instance) would nonetheless tend to weaken the opposition to Germany in such strategically located countries as Turkey and Iran, while also strengthening the determination of Japan to proceed on its aggressive course.

In the meantime, to be perfectly realistic, there is nothing which the British have done since the war in Russia began (not even the fierce and continuous bombardment of German cities by the R. A. F.) and there is certainly nothing which we have done (for we have allowed these precious nine weeks to slip by in a fog of indecision and half-hearted action) which can successfully neutralize the impression the Germans are likely to make by means of a major victory in Russia. The tragedy of too little and too late is still being enacted.

Fair Enough

Analogy On Union

THESE mash-notes about the crookedness and free-style perfidy of the gorillas who command various sectors of the union front against the liberties of the American people have been so frequent and factual that they may have lost their power to impress. In a way, the situation is comparable to prohibition. We all knew the whole thing reeked, but political opinion didn't ripen until the corruption had poisoned the very flesh of the Nation. The church people, such as old Bishop Cannon, obstinately insisted on their law and threatened destruction to any politician who defied them, and so it went until at last Franklin D. Roosevelt, arising before the convention in Chicago which had nominated him for his first term, declared resoundingly that from that hour on prohibition was doomed.

Mr. Roosevelt's timing and psychology were absolutely perfect, for the people were so sick of prohibition and of the power of the preachers over Presidents Coolidge and Hoover and Congress that they went for him, whooping. That issue, more than any other, elected Mr. Roosevelt the first time, with the result that this other outrageous scourge was inflicted on the people under Presidential patronage.

HOOVER spoke of prohibition as an experiment noble in purpose and President Roosevelt's Administration mockingly refers to this new corruption as "labor's gains," but the time will come when the people will adopt as a courageous and opportune savior some man who will rear back in meeting and promise to clean up the union racket, just as Mr. Roosevelt cleaned up prohibition.

The hero needn't have a clean record of opposition to union persecution. He may be one who has walked softly waiting for opinion to get hot, just as Mr. Roosevelt did. Mr. Roosevelt, you may remember, didn't cry that prohibition was doomed until the people were ready to go along with him. He was very yes-and-no and other-handed about this dangerous issue until the hour struck.

But just as those hot-eyed, thinlipped fanatics of the prohibition cause ruined temperance and brought back the corner saloon by insisting too long and ignoring the vicious conditions which they had created, the professional unioneers who, like Bishop Cannon, think so highly of their own power and political judgment, are provoking a revolt against the good in unions as well as the bad.

YOU remember, of course, that repeal was supposed not to mean the return of the old abuses of the liquor traffic. States were to be protected from their neighbor States in the matter of smuggling and drinking was to become a nice, moral family custom. Instead, the United States, already on the verge of wet-brain from hoisting millions of gallons of shoe polish, house-paint and embalming fluid, became the drinkingest country in the world.

The Bishop Cannons, Wayne Wheelers, Clarence True Wilsons and Ella Booles were responsible for this total defeat of their cause and the Jimmy Petrillos, the Bill Hutchesons and Wrong John Lewises of the unions are persisting in a parallel folly today. Because prohibition was linked to religion and church the prohibitionists thought the people never would repudiate it utterly and the truth probably is that the people would not have done so if these extremists had known anything about moderation or the temper of the American people.

So now, because unionism for so long a time has been identified with the fight of the workingman in the square-cap for a decent living, these unioneers are making the same mistake. But they will learn one day when they find themselves tangled up in the wreckage of the racket.

THE danger, indeed the almost certain probability, is that when the reaction comes it will go just as far as the reaction against prohibition, but that will not be the fault of the workingman whose need of honest unionism is no more to be denied than the need of honest temperance.

President Roosevelt is fooling nobody in ignoring the notorious crookedness and treason of the unions and their persecutions of the people. The people know, just as they knew Hoover was not honest with them in ignoring the vicious conditions which had developed under the Eighteenth Amendment and when they get just exactly enough abuse from unions they will react in the usual extreme manner of Americans when they are good and sore.

THE CROOKS in the unions no more represent the workers of the United States than the thieves of the enforcement service represented the honest temperance sentiment and the exalted political powers of the unions, such as Lewis, Bill Green, Curran and Quill, no more truly represent the honest, loyal common man of the country than Cannon and Wheeler represented the truly religious abstainer or moderationist.

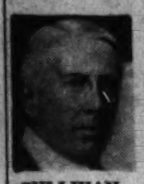
Don't ask me to set the date for this reaction. But nothing can stop it. That is the American way.

A New Closed Shop

By Mark Sullivan

Employer Rights Further Restricted

CLEAR understanding of the Federal Shipbuilding Co.'s strike will help us to estimate the effect of the outcome. The principle is deeply important, will have momentous effect.



SULLIVAN

The facts are: C. I. O. struck, making a number of demands. The strike was laid before a Government body, the National Mediation Board. The board disapproved some of the C. I. O.'s demands, approved others. Among demands which the board approved was "membership maintenance." To this one point, the company disagreed, and this is the crux of the situation.

"Membership maintenance" means this: every worker in the plant, who is now a member of C. I. O., must remain a member—that is, must continue to pay dues, and in all respects conform to C. I. O. discipline. But to describe "membership maintenance" as merely that would be short of the facts. It sounds like a matter internal to C. I. O.

THE real demand of C. I. O., the real point in this case, is that the company shall compel maintenance of membership—that the company shall discharge any worker now a member of C. I. O. who fails to keep up his membership. In practice, the head of C. I. O. would notify the company that worker Jones did not pay his dues last month; or that he has failed to live up to union rules and discipline, and that C. I. O. has decided to expel him. Thereupon the company must tell worker Jones, "you're fired."

In effect, the company becomes an agent of C. I. O. As agent of C. I. O., the company must discharge an employe for the sole reason that the head of C. I. O. says he must be fired. The company may regard him as the best worker in the plant. The company may prefer to promote him. All that does not matter—the company must fire him just because C. I. O. says he must be fired. It does not matter what the worker's reasons for not keeping up his membership in C. I. O. It may be a reason of judgment; he may prefer to belong to a different union. It may be a reason of conscience; he may disapprove the course of C. I. O. about public questions, about the war or what not. All that does not matter. Nothing matters except that the head of C. I. O. says he must be fired.

NOW "membership maintenance" is not quite the same as "closed shop." The difference has been much stressed, in the present case, by C. I. O. and by Mr. William H. Davis, head of the Government Mediation Board., which approves membership maintenance. The closed shop means a company cannot hire a man unless he is a member of the union. Maintenance of membership means a company must fire a man if he ceases to be a member of the union.

The difference is more a dialectical device and a detail of strategy and propaganda than a real difference. Invention of the new phrase, "membership maintenance," illustrates the most subtle of the arts, and the most effective, by which the New Deal aims to bring about social revolution. Talleyrand knew the art; he said that—I quote from memory: "A chief function of statesmen is to invent new terms for institutions which, under their old names, have become disliked by many of the people." The New Dealers use the device over and over. A conspicuous example was President Roosevelt's use of the new phrase, "government investing," as a thing to be praised—in substitution for what he had before condemned as "government spending."

THE PRINCIPLE in membership maintenance is much the same as in closed shop. It is by the old term, more familiar to the public, that we must judge membership maintenance.

Closed shop has long been practiced. The mechanical unions on newspapers and in printing shops have long had it. Employers in several trades have long made closed shop contracts voluntarily, and got along under them comfortably, and without detriment to the public interest.

But, between an employer making a closed shop contract voluntarily, and the present case, there is all the difference in the world. The difference, in the present case, is that government compels membership maintenance. "Compels" is not, as yet, quite the right word, for the Government Mediation Board has only power to recommend, not to compel.

BUT the case was appealed to President Roosevelt. (At the hour this is written, he seems on the eve of decision.) If he supports membership maintenance, government will have taken a long stride; and the consequences of this as a precedent will cast a long shadow upon the future. Discipline, including excommunication, exerted by a private organization, is one thing; supported by government it is a vastly different thing.

This is not a mere case of Government taking away another attribute of ownership of industry, the right of an employer to retain a worker who is satisfactory. What we have here is government putting upon the individual compulsion to retain membership in an organization, and abide by its discipline, including the organization's right of expulsion. The organization in this case is a labor union, but the principle applies to any kind of organization. Compulsion of membership is an invasion of individual rights of interest and conscience which has led to some of the most tragic upheavals in history. One wishes that Mr. Roosevelt, or some one about him, had time to reflect, before he, as head of a government, takes the responsibility which will be on him in history if he decides to indorse compulsion of membership.

The Gallup Poll . . .

By Dr. George Gallup
Director American Institute of Public Opinion

1 in 3 Buy on Time

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 21.—As a step toward controlling inflation, the Federal Reserve Board will shortly issue the first of a set of regulations to control buying on the installment plan. The immediate objective is to curb purchases of such goods as autos, refrigerators, washing machines, vacuum cleaners, etc., thus releasing metals for defense. The long-range objective is to curb inflation.

It is too early yet to tell what the American public's ultimate reaction will be to the program. But some light is shed on the country's attitude by a public opinion study just completed by the Institute.

This survey dealt with the question of a complete prohibition against future installment purchases, which was one of the suggestions made when discussion started in Washington. The plan finally adopted is much more moderate in scope, and would almost certainly meet with more public approval than the drastic step of a complete curb on installment buying.

43% Favor Complete Curb

Yet it is interesting to note that even on a complete curb, public sentiment is fairly elobely divided, as the following survey shows:

"As one way to help defense production, it has been suggested that the Government forbid anyone buying anything more on the installment plan until the war in Europe is over. Do you approve or disapprove of this suggestion?"

APPROVE	43%
DISAPPROVE	49
NO OPINION	8

The Federal Reserve plan, according to the best information, contemplates an increase in downpayments and a reduction of the "stretch-out" period heretofore allowed for making payments, but not a blanket prohibition against all future installment purchase.

The Institute study indicates that a little over one-third of the American adult population is now paying for something on the installment plan. This is evidenced in a second question in the survey, which asked:

"Are you now paying for anything on the installment plan?"

YES	36%
NO	64

An earlier poll, taken some years ago, indicates that about 70 per cent have at one time or another bought on the installment plan

Another Angle Tested

But many who are buying on the installment plan are apparently far from happy about it. Today's survey found that approximately one-third of them would approve action to stop the purchase of anything more on the installment basis.

Among those who are not now buying anything on installment, nearly half (49 per cent) favor a complete curb.

The upper income groups buy fewer things on the installment plan, the survey indicates, and are more in favor of curbs than the lower income groups, as the following table indicates:

	For Prohibiting Installment Buying	Opposed	No Opinion
Upper Income Group	48%	48%	4%
Middle Income Group	43	50	7
Lower Income Group	41	49	10

Because the question of installment buying is likely to come more and more to the front as regulations are put into effect, the Institute plans to conduct further surveys on the issue from time to time.

Boosting Army Morale

Present Draftees Lack Conviction

REPORTS of poor morale in the Army are piling up in Washington. Some relate to inadequate provision for the leisure time activities of troops; others to the serious side of the business of soldiering.

LINDLEY

The latter are infinitely more important. No quantity or quality of entertainment, recreation, hostesses, Salvation Army lassies, and doughnuts will make men into soldiers if their hearts are not in it.

Many reports indicate a widespread lack of conviction among selectees and guardsmen that they are training for real warfare. At best, high morale is difficult to infuse into non-professional soldiers in peace time, especially when their role, even if war comes, is expected to be chiefly defensive. It is like trying to infuse morale into a football team that has no games scheduled.

THE DRAFTEES of World War I knew from the first that they were training to fight in Europe—and to fight a particularly bloody type of warfare. They had a constant incentive to learn all they could about fighting.

Lack of confidence in their officers and lack of modern material are two other frequently reported sources of low morale. That officer personnel needs overhauling all down the line has long since been recognized by the General Staff. The weeding out is already under way. The shortage of material is gradually being overcome, although priorities granted the British, and now the Russians, may delay the complete equipping of the American Army.

IN GENERAL, complaints of low morale are more frequent among infantry units. Drudgery is the foot-soldier's lot, even today. The publicity given the plane-tank team has obscured the fact that the infantry is the backbone even of the German army.

There is no hint of low morale in the air corps or the parachute troops. These are picked men, and their tasks are venturesome and exacting.

Veteran soldiers regard harder and more interesting work as the best antidote for low morale.

Leisure-time activities are not unimportant, however. In this field are many complaints that the Army is doing a spotty job. As a result talk has sprung up in some quarters of turning the job within the camps back to private agencies, through the USO. Others think that the USO has already undertaken far more than it can do well with the funds at its disposal, in operating rest and recreation units outside the camps. On the basis of experience during World War I, they think the Army's taking over these activities within the camps was a step forward. But the Army's program, in their opinion, suffers from lack of personnel and tight supervision.

AN exceptionally qualified civilian makes these proposals for improving the Army's morale services:

In each corps area, the morale officer should have a staff of assistants to clear and channel plans and directives. He should be responsible for the training of morale officers assigned to him.

In each division the morale officer should have an athletic and recreation officer, an entertainment officer, an education officer, a chief hostess for the division, and a psychiatrist or psychologist. He should prepare regular reports on the morale of individual units within the division, and on morale and recreational activities in communities adjacent to the camp. He should hold regular meetings of regimental morale officers for the purpose of training, organizing and scheduling events and of clearing all information concerning the morale of troops.

EACH regiment should have a full-time morale officer. He should have assigned to him three or four junior officers, noncommissioned officers and privates first class. He should be responsible for operating the regimental recreation building, and for all athletic events, entertainment and educational services.

Such an organization will not produce high morale if other essential aids are missing, but it is a concrete plan, worked out by a man of unusual experience who served as a brigade recreation officer in World War I, and recently has inspected a large number of camps.

Area Twice Indiana's Size Served By Dnieprostroy Dam

The Dnieprostroy Dam, reported partially destroyed by the Soviet government to stem the German invasion in southern Russia, was one of the greatest achievements of modern engineering, the National Geographic Society says. It was completed in 1932.

"Nearly one-half mile wide and rising 200 feet above the river bed, the dam of concrete and steel raised the Dnieper River 120 feet. It afforded water power that generated electricity for industrial and home use over an area more than twice that of the State of Indiana, and served more than five times as many people as live in that State.

"Some idea of the gigantic plant may be gained from the quantities of material used in its construction. The concrete poured to create the great barrier would make a pavement an inch thick and a yard wide from New York to Omaha. Nearly 7,000,000 square yards of rock and dirt were excavated, and 900 tons of explosives and 300,000 tons of cement were used.

"If the timber used were made into a single board 1 foot wide and an inch thick, it would reach nearly four-fifths of the way around the world at the Equator. Sixty miles of railroad were built in connection with the construction of the dam and power plant, acres of temporary power plants and shops were provided, and living quarters were built for 20,000 people.

"The project wrote a new chapter in Dnieper navigation. The dam was situated about 200 miles from the river's mouth. Formerly rapids made the river impassible for about 60 miles, causing the navigable portion of the stream to be divided into two parts. The barrier, raising the level of the water 120 feet, was a successful "face-lifting" operation, for the rapids were submerged and steamships could navigate the river for 1,300 miles from its mouth. At the dam, electric locomotives pulled vessels through navigation locks which it is estimated could handle more than two million tons of grain, oil, lumber and other products a year.

"An American engineer was consultant on the construction of the dam, and other American engineers held key positions. The plant's turbines, among the largest ever built at the time of construction, were products of American factories as were about one-half of the generators, which had a maximum generating capacity of 900,000 horsepower."

What's Crazy About This?

Man Called Insane For Saying: Watch Hess

By the Associated Press

San Francisco, Aug. 21.—A paroled convict seemingly making good was intrigued by the flight of Rudolf Hess, Nazi leader, to England.

In a friendly way he wrote to his warden and suggested that anything which Hess might do in captivity—the pose he might assume in being photographed, the kind of food he ate or the manner of handling it, or even an attempt at suicide—if publicized, might tip off Hitler to some secret the fugitive Nazi might have learned.

The parolee was taken into custody, examined and his case diagnosed as schizophrenia, one of the milder forms of insanity.

The latter convinced authorities that the man's thinking reflected something more than cleverness or originality. It had a telltale, sinister quality which tipped off the psychiatrists.

This convict was an example of one of the most dangerous types of criminals, a Sing Sing prison psychiatrist told the American Prison Association today.

Men Like Salads—If They're Not Too Frilly

Often They Whip Them Up Themselves When Allowed in the Kitchen; French Envoy Talks of Dressing

By Martha Ellyn.
The Post Food Editor

DO you want to know what to feed your man—or men? Appetites and tastes vary but you can bet your last pair of Nylon hose they will like the food that they prepare when they take over in the kitchen.

There seems to be a general idea that men do not like salads, but in my sleuthing to find some of the foods that men prepare, when they do the cooking, I learned that they toss up many a salad. It is no fallacy that they don't like frilly tea room salads—the kind that makes a banana into a candle stick, a peach look like an Easter bunny, or an orange to resemble a May basket—but they do like to toss vegetables, meat, cheese and fruits into the salad bowl, and prepare a dressing of the kind to be esteemed by epicures.

Martha Ellyn

An Old, Old Dish

Salads are not a recent innovation. They have been known and valued for their health-giving qualities since Biblical days, for records show that the Egyptians cultivated such salad foods as onions and garlic, and the ancient Romans enjoyed lettuce and chicory. It is true that food specialists have in late years recommended that we eat some fresh, raw vegetables and fruits each day because they are an excellent source of vitamins, minerals and roughage. Salads offer such splendid opportunities for variety that they might be considered a logical place to include the use of fruits and vegetables in the daily food requirements. They take so many different forms in a meal that variety is no problem; they can be used as the appetizer or "starter" course, the main dish, a dessert; or they may accompany the dinner course. What more versatile food could be found?

M. Gaston Henry-Haye, French Ambassador, is from a country whose cuisine is famous for excellent food. The very name of the popular French dressing has been contributed by his country, and mayonnaise is said to have been invented by the chef to the Duc de Richelieu, after the victory of Mahon.

However, M. Henry-Haye says that French dressing as served at times in this country does not resemble that of his own country. French dressing, according to the Ambassador, is made with real wine vinegar, vegetable oil, pepper and salt in the proper proportions, and blended thoroughly. He stresses the use of "vegetable oil" in making the dressing. His reason for this preference is that the "perfume" of olive oil spoils the dressing. "Never should mustard be used if a perfect French dressing is to be achieved, is the admonition of the Ambassador.

Barron Goes Fishing

Carter Barron is known to the general public as the popular manager of Loew's Theaters in Washington and the manager of the entire Loew's Eastern division, but to his close friends he is also known as a man who knows good food and how to prepare it. When The Post Food Editor asked Mr. Barron what he had been doing in the food line recently he said he had gone fishing.

Last week-end found M. V. Barron fishing dow nat Solomons Island in company with Senator Connally. When he came home he brought his catch of 150 rock bass, ranging in size from 1 to 40 pounds. The smaller ones, around 1 pound, Mr. Barron says they serve broiled for breakfast and then fry the larger ones for dinner. But the great fish were baked and served to a number of guests.

Mr. Barron likes to cook and especially likes to toss salads, and always makes his own salad dressing. He said that he is eating various kinds of salad with the fish he caught, and this is the way he makes the French dressing. He cautions anyone making French dressing to blend the ingredients slowlv and thoroughly. Here are his directions:

French Dressing—Mix together ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar and ⅛ teaspoon paprika. Add ¼ cup vinegar and ½ cup salad oil slowly and blend thoroughly.

Recipe for Sauce

A spicy tomato sauce is also one Mr. Barron thinks is excellent with fish. The recipe follows:

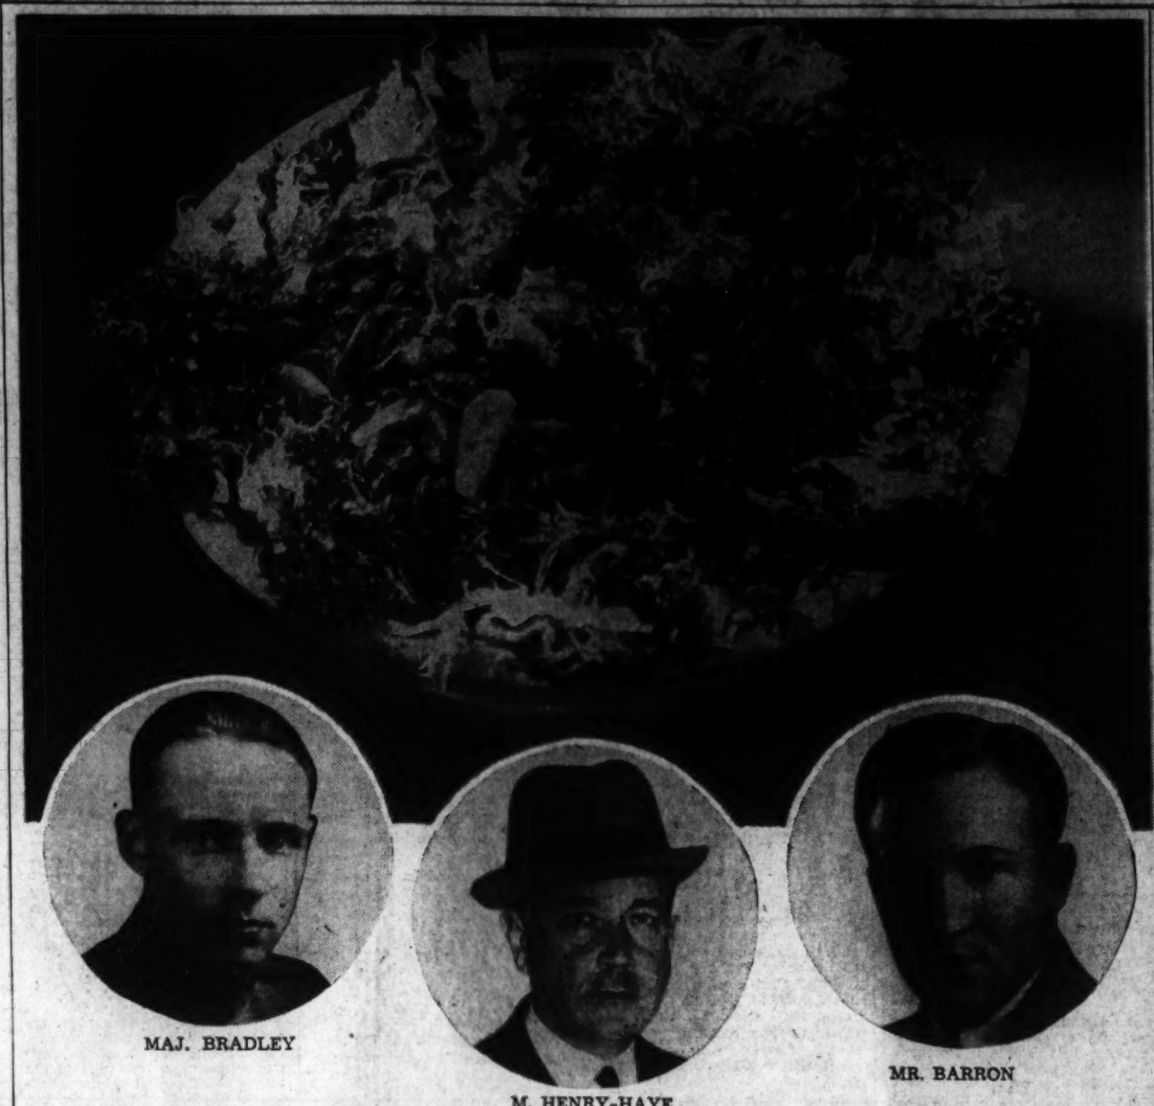
Spicy Tomato Sauce—Cook 1 slice of medium-sized onion which has been minced, with 2 cups tomatoes. Strain. Add 1 tablespoon butter, 3 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons sugar, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon salt and ½ teaspoon prepared mustard. Let come to boil. Cook slowly for 10 minutes.

Maj. Bradley's Salads

Maj. Eric T. Bradley is a Connecticut Yankee who came to Washington last year to work for defense. He is identified with the Office of Production Management (something to do with bullets), and like the rest of that organization is kept busy as a bee. But when duties are over he can often be found preparing some favorite dish at home. Maj. Bradley is of the opinion that any dish is only as good as the ingredients that go into its making. This is especially true in salad-making, says this gourmet. He insists on Iceberg lettuce, chicory, romaine and endive if available, and tarragon vinegar for making the dressing. He also is of the opinion that Roquefort cheese gives added impetus to a green mixed salad.

Mayonnaise dressing is also within the range of Maj. Bradley's cooking talents. This is the way he makes it:

Mayonnaise Dressing — Use chilled ingredients. Place in a medium sized bowl and beat with a wire whisk 2 egg yolks. Beat in ¼ to ½ teaspoon dry mustard, ½ teaspoon salt, a few grains of cayenne, and ½ teaspoon lemon juice. Beat in very slowly ½ teaspoonful at a time, ½ cup salad oil. Combine in a small pitcher 1½ tablespoons vinegar and 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Beat into the dressing ½ teaspoonful at a time, ½ cup salad oil. Alternate the oil with a few drops of the lemon and vinegar mixture. If the ingredients are cold and are added slowly during constant beating this will make a good thick dressing. In summer, place the bowl in which the dressing is being made over cracked ice. Should the dressing separate, place 1 egg yolk in the bowl. Stir it constantly and add the dressing to it very, very slowly at first and slowly as the mixture thickens. If the dressing is too heavy, thin it with cream or whipped cream.



M. HENRY-HAYE

MAJ. BRADLEY

MR. BARRON

Salad Gourmets All— Salads have the respect of these three men, Maj. Eric T. Bradley, Office of Production Management (left), M. Gaston Henry-Haye, French Ambassador (center), and Manager Carter Barron, Loew's Theaters (right). The type of salads they prefer are rife with vitamins and minerals. And the simple dressing with which they drench the salad ingredients is so delicious that anyone will happily spoon it up from the salad plate as long as there is a drop of it

Sweet Potato Cecilia Is Dish That Will Please

A dish guaranteed to please anybody who likes sweet potatoes is Sweet Potato Cecelia. It is the addition of spices and a dash of sherry which puts this potato dish into a special rating. Follow this recipe for making it:

Sweet Potato Cecelia—Boil 3 pounds sweet potatoes in their jackets until soft, peel and put through ricer. Add ½ cup butter, ½ cup sherry, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon, salt and pepper to taste and enough milk to moisten. Mix well. Put into buttered baking dish, dot with butter and sprinkle with cinnamon and bake until top is brown.

Sweet potatoes may also be made into puffy brown dish. If you like a rich dish this recipe will please you.

Sweet Potato Puff—Boil and mash 4 medium sweet potatoes. Add 2 tablespoons cream, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, pinch of salt, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg and ⅛ teaspoon cloves. Whip until fluffy. Pile into buttered baking dish and top with 16 marshmallows. Bake in a moderate oven until marshmallows are puffy and brown.

Frosted Snails With Lemonade Or Ice Tea Perfect for August

AUGUST appetites demand foods that have a refreshing quality. But the homemaker will still want to have her share of end-of-the-summer fun and not spend too much time in the kitchen preparing the foods that will give a certain lift.

But there are foods such as Frosted Snails that can be baked in the cool of the morning from refrigerated yeast dough. These are just the thing to give a renewal of spirits on a warm, August afternoon. Serve them with tall, frosted glasses of lemonade or iced tea. For a cool accent, let sprigs of garden-green mint peep up over the rims of the glasses. Here is the recipe for making them:

Frosted Snails—Scald 1 cup milk and pour over ¼ cup shortening, ½ cup sugar and 1 teaspoon salt. Crumble 2 cakes compressed yeast into ¼ cup lukewarm water to soften. Cool the milk to lukewarm and add about 6 to 8 cups flour to make a thick batter. Add the yeast, 2 beaten eggs, and 1 teaspoon lemon rind. Beat well. Add enough more flour to make a soft dough if necessary. Knead until satiny. Form into a ball, place in greased bowl, cover and let rise until almost doubled in bulk. When light, punch down. Pinch off portions of the dough and roll under hand until about 15 inches long and slightly less than ½ inch thick. Starting at center, wind each strip of dough loosely, round and round. Let rise until almost doubled in bulk and bake in moderate oven, 375 degrees, for 20 to 25 minutes. Frost with confectioners' sugar icing and sprinkle with chopped nuts. Yield: About 3 dozen snails.

Icing—Blend 2 tablespoons milk with ¾ cup confectioner's sugar until icing is soft enough to spread easily. Add ¼ teaspoon vanilla.

New ways with fruit are always appealing this time of the year when peaches, apricots and plums crowd the fruit stands. Many time-saving, budget-stretching innovations are easy when a standard pastry makes the foundation. This versatile dough can be refrigerated and ready for use at a moment's notice. For waffled shortcake, roll it out into circles to fit your waffle iron. Place slices of yellow peaches between sections. Top off with whipped cream and garnish with a few slices of fruit. Or fill tart shells with fresh fruit and cover with ice cream for a delightfully refreshing dessert. A more hearty ending to a summer meal is a fruit roll. This is easily and quickly made by rolling out the pastry dough, sprinkling chopped sweetened fruit over all and rolling up jelly-roll fashion. When baked, slice individual portions and cover with more fruit. The recipe for standard pastry follows:

Standard Pastry—Sift 2 cups sifted flour with 1 teaspoon salt. Cut ½ cup shortening into the flour. Add about 2 to 4 tablespoons cold water. Mix into a dry, crumbly dough. Toss on floured pastry cloth. Roll and fold until smooth. Roll about ⅛ inch thick. Line individual 3-inch pie pans or two 9-inch pie pans. Prick with fork. Bake 8 to 12 minutes in hot oven, 450 degrees. Cool. Fill with fruit or cream filling. Yield: Two 9-inch pastry shells, or 8 individual shells.

Old-fashioned turnovers with a modern air are made by spreading sweetened fruit on 5-inch squares of rolled pastry dough and folded over to form a triangle. To seal the edges and prevent the fruit juices from cooking over in the oven, moisten them with a little water and press together with the tines of a fork. Cover these, too, with sweetened fruit or place a scoop of ice cream on the plate and serve ala mode. Make them by this recipe:

Fruit Turnovers—Roll pastry dough out ⅛-inch thick and cut into 5-inch square. Place 1 tablespoon chopped sweetened fruit in the middle of each square. Fold into triangular shapes, press edges together with tines of fork and prick tops. Bake in hot oven, 450 degrees, for 12 to 15 minutes, or until delicately golden in color. Serve hot or cold. Yield: About 8 turnovers.

Fruit Roll—Roll pastry dough about ¼-inch thick. Spread chopped sweetened fruit over dough and dot with butter. Roll jelly-roll fashion, seal edges and prick with fork. Bake in shallow baking pan for 45 minutes in moderate oven, 375 degrees. Serve hot or cold with fruit or cream. Yield: 8 servings.

Broiled Platter Meals Are Short on Effort And Long on Flavor

Smartly in step with the light touch of a new season are broiler meals. They fall right in with the new colors and with early fall plans. And they bring the same feeling of relief from summer heat for they're short on preparation and long on flavor.

Several foods are fine for broiling. For instance, on a fall-ish evening, serve a grilled bacon plate. Or a satisfying "platter meal" of pan-broiled tomatoes and bacon, little pork sausage and cornmeal mush squares. Or when guests are coming for lunch, turn out a pan-fried liver sausage and tomato platter to make everyone glad they came.

Besides potatoes both sweet and Irish, other foods fine for broiling are tomatoes, both green and ripe, onions, mushrooms, canned asparagus, parboiled carrots, apple slices, oranges, grapefruit, bananas, peaches, pears and apricots.

Many meats that can be broiled satisfyingly are lamb steaks and chops, lamb patties, frankfurters, beef patties, bacon, sliced ham, sweetbreads, lamb or pork kidneys.

If you'd broil the whole meal, you'd save on time and dishwashing. Some appealing combinations for broiled meals are as follows:

1. Frankfurters split and stuffed with sauerkraut, broiled potato slices (parboiled), sliced tomatoes.
2. Beef patties and bacon, potato cakes, carrot slices (parboiled), and onion slices.
3. Ham slice, sweet potato slices brushed with buttter, brussels sprouts.
4. Lamb patties, grapefruit slices, bunches of canned asparagus, parboiled parsnips.
5. Lamb or pork kidneys wrapped with bacon, tomato slices, Spanish rice.
6. Sweetbreads, onion slices, peach halves.
7. Broiled tomatoes, broiled mushrooms, broiled ham steak.
8. Canned asparagus bunches, tomato quarters, broiled bananas, broiled lamb shoulder steaks.
9. Broiled pineapple, broiled onions on hamburgers, bundles of canned green beans.
10. Grilled potato sticks, onion slices, parboiled carrot strips, grilled calves' liver.

English Breakfast Food

Hollywood, Calif.—In England, where heavy breakfasts are as correct as 4 o'clock tea, "stuffed shredded wheat" is a favorite early morning dish. James Stephenson, native Englander, tells how to prepare it: Hollow out the biscuits and stuff with either deviled or minced ham; dip in French toast batter and fry like toast. Serve with scrambled eggs and coffee.

Parleys Fail To End Detroit Transit Strike

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Aug. 21.—Hours of negotiations between Mayor Edward J. Jeffries and rival A. F. L. and C. I. O. union leaders apparently gained little headway tonight toward settlement of a jurisdictional strike that has halted street car and bus service in Detroit for two days.

"I'm tired, hungry and mad," commented Mayor Jeffries as he left one conference and went immediately into another.

A. F. L. leaders late tonight left the hotel where the conferences were in progress and announced they would report to the union membership at a mass meeting nearby.

A. F. L. Rejects Proposals

Representatives of the striking A. F. L. union earlier had rejected a peace proposal offered by the mayor and Federal and State conciliators dashing hope of an early agreement predicted a few hours before.

Terms of the proposal were not disclosed. The C. I. O. was holding a membership meeting near the hotel.

Detroiters, meantime, made ready for a third day without transportation service.

Generous motorists hauled their neighbors to work this morning and homeagain tonight, and interruptions in the city's business and industrial life were reduced greatly from Wednesday when the start of the strike at 4 a. m. caught Detroit's workers unawares.

The increased number of motor cars on the streets caused traffic snarls, and police reported that Wednesday's accidents totaled 199 compared with 126 on Tuesday.

Governor Comments

At Lansing, Gov. Murray D. Van Wagoner censured the strike as "an inconvenience the people should not be subjected to, especially since it grows from a jurisdictional dispute in which the public is not involved."

Acting on the premise, the Governor said, that a strike "either gets better or gets worse," he conferred with Capt. Caesar J. Scavarda of the State police and Adjt. Gen. E. M. Rosecrans who commands Michigan's home guard troops. He made it clear, however, he had received no request from Mayor Jeffries for intervention.

U. S. Jury Gets Davis-Kaufman Conspiracy Case

Philadelphia, Aug. 21 (AP).—The Government's conspiracy case against one of its highest retired judicial officers and an attorney who practiced before his court was handed to a jury of nine men and three women late today.

It was the second time that a Federal jury considered the charge of conspiracy to obstruct justice and defraud the United States against retired U. S. Circuit Judge J. Warren Davis and Morgan S. Kaufman. Their first trial ended in a jury disagreement.

Then, as during this last one, William Fox, bankrupt movie magnate who pleaded guilty to the charge, said he loaned $27,500 to Judge Davis unsecured. The Government has contended this was done to gain favorable opinons on Fox bankruptcy matters.

Knights of Columbus Hear Murphy Secretly

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 21 (AP).—Supreme Court Justice Frank Murphy spoke before the Knights of Columbus convention again for an hour today, but what he said was kept secret.

Only delegates with credentials were allowed in the room where he spoke, and all were asked to promise they would not reveal the nature of the jurist's speech.

Two Miners Are Slain In Kentucky Field

Harlan, Ky., Aug. 21 (AP).—Bullets took the lives of two miners today in a recurrence of Harlan County's coal field strife.

The killings occurred near the Benham, Ky., mine of the International Harvester Co., scene of a long-standing dispute between A. F. of L. and C. I. O. unions.

Insubordinate Selectee Gets 10-Year Term

By the Associated Press

Fort Bragg, N. C., Aug. 21.—Col. Charles B. Elliott, commander of Fort Bragg, announced today that Private John Habinyak, 26-year-old selectee of New York City, had been dishonorably discharged from the Army and sentenced to ten years and 9 months at hard labor in the Federal Penitentiary in Atlanta.

Col. Elliott said that he was convicted on five charges of insubordination by a court-martial.

Habinyak was a member of Battery D, First Battalion, First Training Regiment of the Field Artillery Training Corps.

He was inducted into the service June 23.

The charges against Habinyak as announced by Col. Elliott were:

(1) Refused a lawful command from First Lieut. Leo J. Kraus to clean his mess kit on July 4 and "willfully" disobeyed the order.

(2) On July 4 received a lawful command from First Lieut. Kraus to stand at attention. He "willfully" disobeyed. (Col. Elliott disapproved of this finding and there was no conviction.)

(3) Received orders from Lieut. Col. Lowell F. Bowers to pick up pieces of broken concrete and move them off the road in the vicinity of the regimental guardhouse. He "willfully" disobeyed.

(4) Received an order from First Lieut. Kraus to clear up the floor around and under his bed. He "willfully" disobeyed.

(5) On July 4 "he did wrongfully expectorate on the floor of the mess hall" of his battery.

Hull Greets Two From Argentina

Secretary of State Cordell Hull yesterday officially welcomed two representatives of the Pan American Olympic Games Committee, Francisco Borgonovo and Pablo Bardin, both of Buenos Aires.

Secretary Hull told the visitors that he was delighted to see such full cooperation among all American athletes and sportsmen, and said that this Government would do all in its power to cooperate in the games to be held in Argentina in November, 1942.

Amazing results shown in improving the looks . . boosting vitality!

Weak, run-down people suffering from sluggishness, underweight, poor digestion, lack of appetite now may restore vital digestive juices in the stomach . . . energize the body with rich, red blood.

If you are one of those unfortunates who have been ill, or have suffered with colds, the flu, worked under a strain, failed to eat the proper foods, or have been vexed by overtaxing worries . . . yet have no organic trouble or focal infection . . . and your red-blood-cells have become reduced in vitality and number . . . if your stomach digestion refuses to work properly, then here is good news for you!

S.S.S. Tonic is especially designed to build back deficient blood strength . . . to revive and stimulate those stomach juices which digest the food so your body can make proper use of it in rebuilding worn-out tissue. These two important results enable you to enjoy the food you do eat . . . to make use of it as Nature intended. Thus you may get new vitality . . . pep . . . become animated . . . more attractive!

Build sturdy health

Yes, when you tone up the stomach and get its digestive juices flowing freely, you should enjoy again that old-time zest for food . . . stomach digestive miseries should vanish. S.S.S. Tonic also gives you the mineral matter in soluble and digestive form to restore your blood to its rich, red color . . . this makes for greater strength . . . color in your cheeks . . . resistance against disease attacks.

Two sizes all drug stores

Because S.S.S. is in liquid form it begins its work as soon as you take it. Make the S.S.S. treatment a part of your daily diet. You will be delighted with results. Scientific research shows that S.S.S. Tonic usually gets results. Thousands and thousands of users have testified to the benefits it has brought to them—that's why so many say "S.S.S. Tonic builds sturdy health and makes you feel like yourself again." © S.S.S. Co.

A number of women executives in Government agencies were among guests at Mrs. May Thompson Evans' luncheon yesterday at which honor guests were (left to right) Miss Wilmer Shields, of the community service department, Association of Junior Leagues of America; Miss Eloise Davison, director of the Home Institute of the New York Herald Tribune; Miss Augusta Walmsley, daughter of the deputy director, Office of Civilian Defense, and Mrs. DeForest Van Slyck, executive director of the Association of Junior Leagues

Robbed Widow To Get $627 At Fete Tonight

Today Mrs. Rose Fones is celebrating her seventy-fourth birthday. Early this month she was robbed of her life savings and friends are planning a little party for her at 6:30 this evening, at which a Post representative will present her with a bank book.

The bank book will show deposited in her name all the money that has been contributed by people who read of her misfortune in The Post. Mrs. Fones will be the recipient of $627.40.

She has told The Post on more than one occasion that she appreciates what everyone has done to help her. She lives in a small room at 416 Third Street Northwest and the party for her today is planned to boost her spirits, which have been rather low since her money was taken.

A list of three contributors whose donations were received by The Post yesterday follows:

Women Urged To Replace Men In Defense Jobs

By Winifred Mallon

Copyright by New York Times

Employment of women in defense industries where shortages of male labor are becoming apparent was urged yesterday by Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security Administrator.

A survey of 1894 different occupations in 21 key defense industries revealed that a large majority are jobs in which women could be successfully employed, although they are not at present being hired for such work, the administrator said.

Of all jobs analyzed, nearly 1900 in number, only 331 were found to be definitely unsuitable for women; 1185—almost two-thirds of the total—were occupations in which the degree of physical strength required and the conditions under which the work is performed present no barrier to their employment, he declared.

Only Brief Training

Moreover, according to the survey, 634 of the occupations in the latter majority were a group of a kind in which women could be placed immediately, only a brief period of preparatory training, if any, being necessary.

Even in the case of the other 531 occupations, for which considerable training is required, it was found that breaking up some of the jobs into parts would make possible the immediate employment of women.

The study was prepared by the Bureau of Employment Security of the Social Security Board.

Some of the occupations mentioned in which women could be employed were in the manufacture and assembly of parts for motors, radios, recording instruments and airplane gauges. McNutt also stated that the development of new machinery now made possible the employment of women even in the manufacture of heavy shells and other types of munitions, whereas the method formerly used made it necessary to employ men only. A large majority of the operations in the manufacture of automobiles, trucks and tanks, even final body assembly, could also be performed by women, since heavy parts are moved by machinery.

Jobs In Foundries

A list of occupations in the manufacturing of parts for electrical equipment and in the operation of boring, shelving, welding, anodizing, cutting, drawing, sawing, stamping, and other types of automatic machinery used in the manufacture of machines and machine tools were also included in the list of acceptable jobs for women. In the ship and boat building industry, women were listed as acceptable for employment as boilermakers helpers, draftsmen, machinists helpers, blueprint machine operators, flash welders, and a large list of other occupations.

The industries covered by the survey were manufacture of aircraft and parts, air transportation and service, aluminum products, munitions manufacture, automobile, motorcycle, truck and tank manufacture and equipment, communications, electrical machinery, fire arms, industrial chemicals, iron and steel and their products, machine tools, machine models and patterns, foundries, professional and scientific instruments, railroad equipment, shipbuilding and repairing, utilities, and petroleum production and refining.

Vanderbilts Agree to Part Amicably

By International News Service

New York, Aug. 21.—Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, it was announced this afternoon, has withdrawn her divorce suit against the 28-year-old turfman who is heir to a 20-million-dollar fortune.

"Both parties have stipulated that the action be discontinued," read a statement released by attorneys for the principals in the suit. "The parties have agreed to an amicable separation."

Sol A. Rosenblatt, attorney for Vanderbilt, added:

"Mr. Vanderbilt has received assurances of regret from Mrs. Vanderbilt that the charges had been made."

The charges, made in papers served two weeks ago on the young sports sportsman, named two young women prominent in cafe society with whom, Mrs. Vanderbilt alleged, her husband had been overfriendly. Mrs. Vanderbilt, the former Manuela (Molly) Hudson of Monterey, Calif., also was reported to have sought a huge cash settlement.

Vanderbilt immediately announced he would contest the divorce, not merely for the sake of the amount asked, but to "protect" the names of the women mentioned by his wife.

It was understood that under the separation announced today, Mrs. Vanderbilt is to receive a cash trust fund and a yearly allowance for her two-year-old daughter, Wendy Vanderbilt.

Guatemala City Teacher Here On Inter-American Program

An educator from Guatemala City—who is building inter-American understanding in pupils from kindergarten through high school—has come to Washington this week to seek ways of expanding her program.

Mrs. H. L. Gueydan, one of the founders and now the director of the English-American School in Guatemala City, yesterday told what it is doing to promote "good neighborliness" from early youth.

Mrs. Gueydan

The school teaches both English and Spanish—turning out bilingual students, equipped to work in companies that conduct business among the Americas and to feel at home in the literature of the United States as well as their own country.

Starting with 28 pupils and two teachers in small rented quarters in a colonial home in 1931, this private school has now grown to 520 students occupying two buildings with classes extending from kindergarten through high school.

Mrs. Gueydan herself is an example of interchanging influence. A native of New Orleans, of French, Scotch, English and Irish ancestry, she went to Guatemala 13 years ago, not knowing the Spanish language at the time. She set to work at once acquiring a knowledge of it, so she was soon able to start teaching Guatemalan children.

"Our school has added a commercial course, so students can fill secretarial jobs which require knowledge of both English and Spanish. We also have added a normal school course, with the first class to graduate in February, 1943, in preparation to become teachers of English in other schools," Mrs. Gueydan said, as she sat in the office of the Peoples Mandate Committee in the Hay-Adams House yesterday. As a member of the committee she was there to confer with Miss Mabel Vernon, its director, on ways to promote inter-American peace and cooperation.

Mrs. Gueydan will confer also with educators here about the possibility of arranging scholarships for students from her school to come to this country. "I would like to have boys come here to learn more about diversified farming; to have engineering and commercial students to see what the United States is doing in those lines," she said.

She hopes also to build a recreation center for her school where sports areas and a reading room with American magazines will cultivate more of the "feel" of neighboring civilizations.

Some students come from El Salvador and Honduras to attend her school, but 90 per cent of the pupils are Guatemalans.

Tomorrow she will fly to Shreveport, La., and will sail from New Orleans Wednesday for Guatemala.

Mrs. Evans Is Hostess At Luncheon

Miss Eloise Davison, director of the Home Institute of the New York Herald-Tribune, and Mrs. DeForest Van Slyck, of New York, executive director, Association of Junior Leagues of America, were among the honor guests at a luncheon given at the Shoreham Hotel yesterday by Mrs. May Thompson Evans, of the Office of Civilian Defense.

Miss Augusta Walmsley, of New Orleans, daughter of T. Semmes Walmsley, deputy director, Office of Civilian Defense, and Miss Wilmer Shields, of the Community Service Department of the Association of Junior Leagues, also were honor guests. Mrs. Walmsley was to have been an honor guest but was unable to attend.

The guests were seated at a long table in the dining room, with place cards bearing sketches of a group of women rallying around a defense speaker.

Mrs. William P. Hobby, of Houston, Tex., who has recently come here to be chief of women's interests for the Army's Public Relations, was among the guests.

Others were Mrs. Ellen S. Woodward, member of the Social Security Board; Mrs. Florence Kerr, assistant commissioner, Work Projects Administration; Mrs. Harry S. Bernton, chairman of the committee on volunteer service, Central Volunteer Bureau, District Council of Defense; Mrs. Lucy Howorth, member of the Board of Veterans Appeals Miss Loda Mae Davis, chief, field activities, consumer division, OPACS; Mrs. R. D. W. Connor, Mrs. Wayne Coy, Mrs. Izetta Jewell Miller, Miss Lorena Hickok, Mrs. Barnet Nover, Mrs. Fred Morrison, Mrs. R. W. Hudgens, Miss Patricia O'Malley and Miss Lucia Giddens.

Several From Here To Attend Session

Mrs. Mildred F. Poore, senior vice president, and Mrs. Amelia A Yoder, tent president, will be delegates from Ellen Spencer Mussey Tent No. 1, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, at the national convention of the organization in Columbus, Ohio, the week of September 14.

Mrs. Esther Lippold, color-bearer, has been chosen alternate delegate.

Local national officers who will attend are Miss Grace Hurd, national treasurer; Miss Jessie M. Lewis, second national council member; Mrs. Lizzie Bassett, member of the national legislative committee, and Mrs. Anna H. McElroy, national assistant guide. Others planning to go to the convention are Mrs. Kathryn Rahn, Mrs. Hermione Sutton, Miss Katie Guiton, Mrs. Nan Thurber, Miss Alice Lippold and Mrs. Hester Warner.

Canning Project Total Reaches 1997 Quarts

The community canning project, sponsored by the American Women's Voluntary Services and the District Congress of Parents and Teachers, yesterday reported 1997 quarts of fruit and vegetables completed in the WPA kitchen at 1640 Wisconsin Avenue Northwest.

Schools serving as depositories for glas jars donated by citizens will remain open until noon tomorrow. After that, jars may be brought to the central kitchen. The canned gods will be used in the free school lunches to be served this fall and winter.

Estate Waits Man Missing Since 1908

Unless 80-year-old Edward Holliran is found pretty soon, the District Commissioners are going to have about $14,000 to spend "for the benefit of the poor."

The money belongs to Holliran. He disappeared in 1908 and nothing has been heard of him since. As far as is known he had no wife and no relatives.

Even his name is uncertain, for he could neither read nor write and people who wrote letters for him spelled his name in several ways, such as "Holliran" and "Holloran." It is not sure whether he was a citizen of the United States or of Ireland.

But he owned two properties in Washington, at 410 New York Avenue Northwest, and at 715 Sixth Street Northeast. The only living person known to have ever seen him is Odell S. Smith, president of the real estate firm, Norment, Smith & Fuller Co.

The two properties, worth about $3750 each, have been managed by Smith's firm since 1901. Once a year for the first five years Holliran would call at the company's offices and collect what was due him. Otherwise he left the management up to the real estate firm.

For three years after 1905, the company sent Holliran annual statements, without his coming to Washington. Since 1906, the company has not been able to find him, so has kept on taking care of the houses, collecting the rent, paying the taxes and making repairs when they were needed. On August 1 the surplus income saved up for Holliran amounted to $6888.53.

Through Attorney Frank S. Smith, the company yesterday asked the District Court to appoint a receiver for the Holliran estate.

The law provides that a person who is missing for 14 years loses all rights to his property, which is then to be distributed among his heirs. If he has no heirs, and Holliran apparently has none, the law says the District Commissioners shall take the property and use it for the poor.

Spoiled Vaccine Kills 10 Dogs At Rabies Clinic

Florence, Ala., Aug. 21 (AP).—Stricken by contaminated rabies vaccine, hundreds of dogs—bluebloods and mongrels alike—overcrowded veterinary clinics today for emergency treatments their masters hoped would save them for future hunts or just plain romps in the yard.

Inoculated in accordance with Alabama antirabies laws, at least 100 have died, Dr. G. D. Ingram, county rabies inspector, estimated an additional 1300 had been made ill by the vaccine.

Many of those stricken were in the fox hunt centers of Rogersville and Lexington, where some of the Nation's leading fox hounds are kenneled.

Dr. R. S. Sugg, State veterinarian, from Auburn, was here to assist in the clinic, which was kept open around the clock.

"We have no idea how the vaccine became contaminated," Dr. Ingram said, "and the manufacturer has been unable to explain it."

Most of the dogs affected suffered skin eruptions, which were being lanced at the clinic. Courses of sulfanilimide were being given, with heavy doses for the first day, and single doses for seven or eight succeeding days

"This treatment has been successful in most cases," Dr Ingram said, "and we believe we have the deaths about stopped We have treated more than 500 dogs here

"We know every man's dog is a fine dog to its owner, and we are taking them as they come, regardless of breed or possible dollar value"

The vaccine was adminlstered August 11 to 15, and the skin eruptions began August 16

Girl's Reluctance to Transfer From Midwestern College to California Campus Prompts Native Son To Say She's Starting at Shadows, Cheating Self

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Being a native Californian and well acquainted with the State's educational facilities, I cannot resist the urge to supplement your advice, of August 18, to "Worried Daughter,"—who is much opposed to leaving her "beloved Mid-Western college," to settle with her mother in California, during her father's tour of duty overseas. Plainly, she thinks she would be "changing for worse and not for better," if she transferred to a Western college.

However, as an alumnus of "Cal," (University of California, at Berkeley), I can honestly plug it for its high scholastic standards, friendly campus, good times and low cost. While it is a State school, that is no stigma in California, and fully as many sons and daughters of the wealthy attend "Cal" as attend Stanford or U. S. C. If this girl's mother would want her in Southern California, the U. C. L. A. in Westwood (10 miles from Los Angeles, near Santa Monica), offers facilities equal to Berkeley, although it is a much newer school.

The expense at Berkeley is $52 a year, plus $150 a year in non-resident fees for the first year for out-of-State students. Since Berkeley begins next week, this girl's freshman credits should be airmailed out, and an application form filed at once. Late registration is possible. The Los Angeles classes (at Westwood) start next month. In either case, address the Registrar, University of California, Berkeley (or Westwood), Calif.

If the girl decides to attend Berkeley, I would advise living on the campus, in an "approved" boarding house. See the assistant dean of women. The Beaudelaire, at 2347 Prospect, is an exclusive cooperative that is unusual—if she can find a vacancy. Also, there is the Calvin Club, the young people's group of the First Presbyterian Church, composed of 200 students. It offers unlimited opportunities for making new friends to replace those left behind. And it is not at all limited to Presbyterians. All Protestants find welcome there. I would be happy to have one of my friends out there call upon this girl and see that she gets aquainted with this group.

I walked into this group in my junior year there, and today I have the finest circle of friends, extending far and wide, that a man could desire—including doctors, lawyers, nurses, engineers, professors, teachers, ministers, missionaries, business people, etc. Hence I hasten to reassure "Worried Daughter" that the experience of attending school in California need not be the unhappy experience which she anticipates.
Cordially, D. E. C.

Search for Good Maid Ends in 'Dish Pan' Hands

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: In your column of August 9 you advised a bride, already dissatisfied with her lot after a few months' marriage, to cure her doldrums by employing a maid who will "cook and clean and launder to a queen's taste." She had said she was at swords' points with her husband (just about ready to leave him, in fact) because he had backed down on his pre-marital promise to help her with the housework, in return for her doing office work and sharing the household expenses 50-50.

You told her she was probably chronically over-tired from carrying two jobs; and that she needs more rest and leisure when at home with her husband, which she can only obtain by turning the housework over to a competent servant. So far, so good. I agree with you. But it will be something of a miracle if she is able to put your advice into practise.

You have articulated the ambition of every homemaker in Washington, in proposing to her a home that is a "quiet, shining, orderly, comfort-giving, sense-soothing place to come to and sink down to." But I think you are mistaken in supposing there are maids for hire who would keep a home running smoothly, in apple-pie order. If there are any, I have never seen them in these parts—and I've seen innumerable specimens of such as there are.

I am only the daughter of our household. It is my mother who bears the brunt of the struggle with maids. And what a struggle! They have come and they've gone. But while they stayed, they have burned the food, broken the best china, incapacitated the stove and (each in her turn) left the furniture in a dustier, more faded, more disarranged (or insidiously rearranged) condition than before.

Probably one-fourth of the entire population of local Bridgets, Daisys and Subelles have dreaded our domicile and frustrated our hopes of gracious living. From every possible source have we summoned them. We have tried out "perfect jewels" recommended by friends. We have placed our trust in the neighbors' "part time girls." We have wheedled the employment agencies; sampled the want-ad offerings and even, in extremity, solicited the services of likely looking prospects encountered at the corner bus stop. Once, we took a girl fresh out of vocational school—and she was afraid to answer the telephone!

Our requirements are not unreasonable. Indeed, I would say we are too accomodating, if anything. And in our anxiety to please the one or two satisfactory "girls" who came our way, we showered them with kindness. Whereupon they developed ailing relatives in North Carolina and felt compelled to visit them immediately. Now, at long last, we have come to the conclusion that if our housework is to be done, we must do it ourselves. So here we are, with our "dish pan hands," which we expect to keep, until you can show us that model of perfection you have in mind. (But I'm betting you money she doesn't exist!) Sincerely,
REGULAR READER.

Greet Autumn With Sun Tan Bleached Away

By Carolyn Abbott.

WITH SUMMER on the wane and new black dresses coming to the fore, the question of how to remove sun tan becomes the chief concern of returning vacationers.

Natural flesh tints are far more becoming with black, the new bark tan and other autumnal shades than the dusky summer look. To wear dark colors successfully it is imperative that complexions be lightened.

Begin at once to remove your sun tan, especially when it starts to fade or take on a yellowish hue. And the best way to aid nature in restoring the normal color of your complexion is to bleach slowly and wisely. Many Washington beauty salons have a bleaching mask that will do wonders for your complexion. However, if you prefer to do your own bleaching, there are excellent creams and lotions you may carry home for that purpose. If you get a commercially prepared bleach, follow directions faithfully. Or, if you are partial to great-grandmother's "home remedies," there are many excellent recipes.

Fall "Clean Up" Ritual

For a thorough and vigorous treatment, try the following "clean up" ritual: After steaming the face, cleanse the skin with olive oil. Let the oil remain for several minutes. Lightly remove the oil and pat in quantities of lemon juice. As it is drying, massage the face with the finger tips, using a rotary movement. The oil and lemon juice, having emulsified, act as a poultice in extracting soil embedded in the pores of the skin. Continue the lemon juice application until the face feels as smooth as a peeled onion. Then dry the skin and pat in a little tissue cream. Let it remain overnight. This treatment is too strenuous to repeat often. One "workout" should do for months.

An egg mask is a good bleaching treatment. Take the white of one egg, mix with the juice of one-fourth lemon, spread over the face and leave to dry. Let it remain on the face for several minutes, then rinse the face; first in warm water; then in cold.

Other simple, beneficial homemade beautifiers include: One teaspoon of zinc oxide and one-fourth teaspoon of borox, mixed with one ounce of tissue cream and spread over the face at night. Lemon juice mixed with buttermilk. Powdered camphor dissolved in water.

Rich Creams Needed

Any bleach, homemade or commercially prepared, tends to dry the skin, therefore it is highly important to use creams rich in oils throughout the bleaching period.

Until your bleaching process has been entirely completed, you should exercise care in make-up shades. Use no cosmetics that have a trace of yellow. Use a rose-tinted powder to combat the citron hue of your skin during the transition period. Get the clearest scarlet lipstick you can find, and if you need rouge, duplicate that color. But use rouge with great restraint. And if your first black dress has short sleeves, use a pinkish foundation cream and a bit of powder on the forearms as well as face and throat.

Fixing for Fall

CLEAREST SCARLET LIPSTICK with rouge (if any) to match, combines with rose-tinted powder to transmute a fading summer tan into the rose-white complexion a girl must have to look beautiful in black

D. C. Girl Tells How She Made Herself Over

By Ida Jean Kain

IF YOU ARE fat and aren't having any fun, why don't you make a change? You couldn't go wrong by following the lead of a vivacious Washington career girl who has made herself over.

I wish you could meet her. She is as pert and pretty a girl as you'll find in the Nation's Capital, where pulchritude is getting to be almost as prevalent as it is in Hollywood. She's a match for the film stars in measurements, for she weighs only 116 pounds for her height of 5 feet 3¾ inches, and is so svelte she slips into a size 12 with the greatest of ease.

Her complexion is fresh and radiant looking, her make-up would do credit to a film expert suggesting for every day, and her clothes are definitely what the white collar girl should wear.

Sheds 30 Pounds

It's hard to picture here a few months back when she was feeling so "dowdy and unattractive because of my weight that nothing seemed to matter." She tipped the scales at 146 then, had been fat for 13 years—ever since she was 11. "But I decided that was long enough," she told me.

Once she made up her mind to reduce she made very short work of it. Within eight weeks she had not only lost 30 pounds, but had made these changes in measurements:

	Before	After
Bust	36"	No change
Waist	28"	24"
Hips	38"	35"

And does she think it was worth while to slim down? She says, "I have never been so happy about anything in my whole life." So evidently the results were worth the 30 minutes' daily exercise. That's the amount of time she spent every day doing the special exercises she found she needed.

Program Wasn't Hard

The program wasn't nearly as hard as she had expected it to be. This wasn't the first time she had dieted. She had tried to reduce several times and felt weak and cross, but on the balanced menus she had plenty of pep, and it seemed as though she got more fun out of life with every pound she lost.

Why don't you see what you can do? Once you start losing and see the improvement less weight makes in your looks, you may discover other possibilities which your overweight had obscured. It is my belief, and I mean it sincerely, that any woman who sets her mind to being attractive can be—and that all women should be.

It's About Time

IT'S ABOUT TIME to give a bit of thought to fall clothes. Consider making a basic day dress and a quilted boxcoat . . . All of the same material! This is a mighty smart nucleus around which to build a wardrobe

Josephine's Diamond Shows Up Again

Recently a pear-shaped pink diamond turned up on the market—beautiful in itself, but historically valuable because it was given to Josephine by Napoleon and worn by her in an earring. This diamond belonged to a collection of Josephine's jewels that was shown by the French government at the old St. Louis World's Fair—after the fair it was sold to a woman in Texas for $25,000 and made into a pendant.

Home Woman Is Careerist At Her Best

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

WE'RE always amazed when we run across a woman who is bored at home . . . and rarely can we work up much sympathy for her. For there is probably no career so challenging, so important, so exacting of talent and ability. And our mail corroborates this view, for the letters we get turn on the decorative arts, knowledge of which can be a fascinating life study in itself, involving history and politics and the whole gamut of man's activities. Each phase of home-making is equally interesting and provocative for the imaginative, resourceful woman.

Floor Covering Problem

Mrs. I. B. writes: "I have an eighteenth century English desk in mahogany and I want more pieces of the same style. But my problem is the floor covering—we live in a rented house which has bad floors and is located in a very dusty section of town. I hesitate to have a rug because of the dust so had considered a linoleum. Yet how can I have a friendly comfortable living room without a rug or carpet? What would you suggest?"

The answer: A linoleum floor can be very smart with period furniture, but I should hesitate to advise a linoleum investment for a rented house, as the kind that would be good enough would have to be laid to the baseboard and cemented down which would make it impractical for moving. I don't believe a felt base linoleum rug would be quite nice enough for your furniture. While a rug is harder to keep in a dusty section, it would probably work out best in this case . . . if you have a vacuum cleaner, it shouldn't be too hard to keep clean.

Could You Be Dress Designer?

"DRESS DESIGNING"! The very words thrill any girl who gives a pin for clothes—and starts a dozen questions. What does a designer do? Does it take much training? Could you be one?

Perhaps you could. A home study course gives you a chance to try your talents. With charts and diagrams you can set to work in professional style—designing for yourself and perhaps your friends. But to be on the safe side—yourself first!

You may begin by making a sketch of your idea. Then you'd work out a basic pattern for half the gown in muslin on your form.

To drape the skirt, you just pin a straight fold of muslin at center front of your dress form, several inches higher than the waistline to allow for curve of waist. Then to fit the hips take a dart at the off-center side seamed line on the form. Finally pin down side seam, cut off excess muslin, then fit the back.

When you've cut out other parts you trace off your pattern on paper—make a regular paper pattern from which the final gown can be cut.

Our 40-page booklet, DRESS DESIGNING FOR A SMART CAREER, gives simple instructions for designing clothes and cutting patterns. Has information on fabrics, sources of style. Advises on job-getting.

Duke of Kent Will Remain in Capital Only Overnight, While Rumor Says The Windsor's Stay Will Be Very Brief

By Patricia Grady

Poor social Washington! Excited over the prospects of two royal British visits—that of the Duke of Kent and the Duke and Duchess of Windsor—social Washington will be doomed to disappointment, for it will be lucky to get even a glimpse of the titled couples.

It has been officially announced that King George's youngest brother will be here only overnight, and rumor persists that the Duke and Duchess of Windsor will pause only momentarily in the Capital, if at all. The Windsors are scheduled to pass through Washington about the third week in September and his brother will arrive here Monday.

The calendar of the Duke of Kent's visit to Washington is simplicity itself. He will arrive at LaGuardia Airport Saturday afternoon at 2:30. Accompanied by J. A. Lowther, the Duke's private secretary and Wing Commander, Sir Louis Greig, the Duke will go directly to the summer White House. He will be the President's houseguest over the weekend where any entertaining will be completely informal. Perhaps the royal visitor will have a chance to sample the Hyde Park brand of hotdog that won such favor with King George and Queen Elizabeth at the famous Roosevelt picnic in their honor there year before last. As is the Roosevelt custom, the Duke probably will accompany the President and his wife to Sunday services at the President's Duchess County church.

Duke to Arrive Here Monday

From Hyde Park, the Duke will come directly to Washington, with the President arriving here Monday. Not even stopping to check his bags at the White House, the Duke will go direct from Union Station to the Naval Air Station at Anacostia and will then leave for a visit to the military and naval reservations in the area of Norfolk, Va.—carrying out his observation detail in this country. After the business part of the day is over, the Duke will return with his party to the White House, where he and his wife will be entertained by the President and Mrs. Roosevelt at a small dinner party.

Bright and early Tuesday morning the Duke will resume his inspection duties by visiting the Glenn L. Martin plant in Baltimore, returning to the Capital late in the afternoon. What the plans are for the royal couple that afternoon have not been disclosed yet, but it would not be out of the question to assume that they may stop by the British Embassy, if only for a formal call. At any rate, Tuesday evening the party will leave for Canada, where the Duke will continue his inspections of naval air bases.

Duchess Doing War Work

The Duchess of Kent, always chosen among the ten best-dressed women of the world by couturiers, has forsaken her former chic Paris fashions to become one of the most beautiful of British volunteer women workers. The marriage of the former Prince George to Princess Marina of Greece is noted as one of those fortunate alliances which combined personal preference with royal expediency.

The Duke of Windsor—whose marriage pointedly ignored one of the important elements in his younger brother's match—will bring his wife through Washington on their way to his ranch near Calgary in Alberta, Canada. The grapevine has it that they will probably arrive one morning and take the convenient late afternoon train for Canada. Since the status of the former King's Duchess is still unsettled, British Embassy officials in Washington probably will not urge the Windsors to prolong their stay here.

Miss Jeffers Becomes Bride Of L. J. Stein

In the Springhill Chapel in Springhill, Ala., Miss Elizabeth Chester Jeffers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Jeffers, of this city, became the bride yesterday morning of Louis James Stein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Stein, of Toulminville, Ala.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a long torso gown of white net fashioned with lace insertions. Her veil of illusion was fingertip length and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Winifred Ellen Jeffers, a sister of the bride and her maid of honor, wore a dress similar to that of the bride in sea green net. Her halo was of matching horsehair and she carried a sheaf of California daisies. The bridesmaids, Miss Adelia Perins, of Newport News, Va.; Mrs. Paul E. Sonnier and Mrs. Gertrude Stein, both of Mobile, Ala., were costumed like the honor attendant.

Thomas Stein served his brother as best man and the ushers were William Stein, another brother of the bridegroom, Walter McKean and Roy Woodman, all of Mobile.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was held at Hilltop Inn. The bride's mother had chosen a print frock of rose and hyacinth blue with which she wore white accessories. The mother of the bridegroom wore a blue ensemble with white eyelet trim.

After a wedding trip to the coast the newlyweds will make their home at Summerville Court, Mobile, Ala.

The bride attended the University of Maryland and Simmons College in Boston, Mass. Her husband is a graduate of Springhill College.

Mrs. Auchincloss Plans to Depart For Reno Soon

Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss, it's reported, will leave for Reno the end of this month. Her husband is now there establishing residence for a divorce, so she will remain only two weeks.

The former Nina Gore, daughter of former Senator Thomas P. Gore, of Oklahoma and former wife of Eugene L. Vidal, former director of the Bureau of Air Commerce of the Department of Commerce, is in Georgetown at present and plans to spend next winter in Washington. Mr. Auchincloss has been visiting his sister, Mrs. Norman H. Blitz, who has a summer home at Crystal Bay, Nev.

Mr. and Mrs. Auchincloss were married in Washington in 1935.

Maj. and Mrs. Lanham Leave for West Coast

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

MRS. THOMAS Richard Cowell entertained a number of friends for luncheon at the Red Fox Tavern, earlier this week. Cocktails were served in the Club Room, and luncheon at a long table in the dining room. The party was given in honor of Mrs. Harold Sims, who motored to Virginia from Washington with a party of friends. Among the guests were the Hon. and Mrs. Julian Chetwynd, Mrs. Noyes Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Guillaume Bosser, Senator Arthur Vandenberg, George Williams, Hans Bull, Norwegian Consul; J. Mackenzie Tabb and several others. Mrs. Cowell took her guests to her new home, Sunny Side, in the afternoon to see the improvements.

Mrs. Fred Murray, of Ivy Stone Farm, near Chantilly, entertained at a luncheon party at Red Fox Tavern on Sunday in honor of Miss Louise Bissell, of Nashville, Tenn., who is visiting in Virginia. Mrs. Murray's luncheon was served in the Tap Room at two tables. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Gothwaite, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Richards, Mr. and Mrs. William Lohmain, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Lynn, Mrs. Elizabeth Leachman, Mrs. M. Miller, Mrs. Ayleene Guthrie and Mr. E. R. Conner.

Mr. and Mrs. Robinson McIlvaine entertained at luncheon on Sunday at the Tavern, when their guests included Mr. and Mrs. William F. Wilbur and Alan Jenkins, of Warrenton; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Thorndyke, of Boston, and Richard Sanger, of Washington.

MRS. THOMAS M. FENDALL will entertain members of the Fauquier and Loudoun Garden Club this afternoon at 4:30, at her home, Morris Worth, near Leesburg. It will be "Audubon Day" and "Personalities will be expressed in flowers." After the meeting supper will be served to the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Turner, Mrs. Jane Foster Palmer and Mr. and Mrs. Turner Foster have sent out invitations for a dance on Wednesday, August 27, at 9 o'clock at their home, Glenville, the Plains, in honor of Miss Elizabeth Randolph Turner and Mr. Daniel Cox, who will be married on Thursday, August 28, at the Plains.

Miss Martha Turner and Miss Nancy Turner, of Lewisburg, W. Va., are visiting Miss Lelia Turner at her home in the Plains. They were the guests of honor at an afternoon party a few days ago given by their cousin, Mrs. Arthur C. Marshall, at her home, Crednal, near Upperville.

SENATOR HARRY Flood Byrd has sent out invitations to his Annual Orchard Picnic, to be held on Saturday, August 30, at his Rosemont Orchard, near Berryville. Delicious box luncheons are served at this picnic. After luncheon there will be a speaking program, including addresses by Dr. E. C. Auhter, chief of the Bureau of Plant Industry, United States Department of Agriculture, who will speak on general orchard problems; Dr. F. N. Fagan, of the University of Pennsylvania, who will tell of his experiments in orchard fertilizing, and Dr. A. Lee Schrader, of the University of Maryland, who will speak on orchard mulching. There will also be other speakers and many matters of vital interest to apple growers will be discussed. This annual picnic of Senator Byrd's that started with a "get together" of about 25 neighborhood people, has grown to be a picnic of several hundred. It is an event that is looked forward to from year to year.

Luncheon Honors Distinguished Chilean Authoress

Charles A. Thomson, chief of the Division of Cultural Relations of the State Department, was the official host at a luncheon yesterday, given in honor of Senorita Magdalena Petit, distinguished Chilean authoress, who arrived in this country on August 11, at the invitation of the Department of State. Mrs. Truxtun Beale was the official hostess.

Ranking guests were the Chilean Ambassador and Senora de Michels. Also present were Archibald MacLeish, Librarian of Congress; Dr. Pedro de Alba, assistant director of the Pan American Union; Philip Bonsal, acting chief of the Division of the American Republics of the State Department; Mrs. Esther Brunauer, head of international relations of the Association of University Women; Dean Henry Grattan Doyle, of George Washington University; Dr. W. L. Shurz, Dr. Rodolfo O. Rivera, Richard Pattee, Leon Pearson and Harry H. Pierson.

Visiting Lawyers To Depart Today

A group of Cuban lawyers, who have been feted during their stay in Washington, will leave today for New York on their tour of the United States.

The Cuban Ambassador, Dr. Aurelio F. Concheso, was host at an informal cocktail party on Wednesday afternoon in honor of the men, who number 17. Members of the embassy staff and a group from the American Bar Association attended the party. On Wednesday evening the Cuban lawyers were feted at a dinner party, given by the Bar Association, at the Shoreham.

Lloyd Dreisonstoks Return to Capital

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Harden Dreisonstok, who have been on a wedding trip to Orkney Springs, Va., have returned to Washington. The marriage of the former Miss Jeanne Louise Egleston took place August 2 in the chapel of Fort Myer, Va., at 4 o'clock, with Chaplain Workman, U. S. N., officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Egleston. Mr. Dreisonstok is the son of Lieut. Commander and Mrs. Joseph Y. Dreisonstok, of Chevy Chase Parkway.

The bride, who was given in marriage by Charles W. Sanders, wore a white embroidered marquisette gown made with shirred sleeves, heart-shaped neckline and short train. Her veil was fingertip length and she carried a bouquet of orchids and white roses. Miss Betty Dreisonstok served as maid of honor. She wore a pale green marquisette frock and carried pink gladioli. John Edward Duffy served as best man. Ushers were Burr Blair Harden, Robert Dreisonstok and Robert Dannemiller.

A reception followed at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mrs. Egleston wore a beige crepe frock and a corsage of red roses. Mrs. Dreisenstok wore a printed flowered crepe with a cluster of gardenias. The bridegroom attended Southeastern University Law School.

Visit Capital

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Schram, of New York City, and their son, Robert, are at the Mayflower Hotel for a few days. Mr. Schram, who is the new president of the New York Stock Exchange, is here on business.

J. B. M. Goetzes Are Now at Home In Silver Spring

Lieut. and Mrs. John Benjamin Murphy Goetz, who were married July 14, are at their home, 1533 West Falkland Lane Silver Spring, Md. after a brief wedding trip. The bride is the former Miss Helen Dorothy Walsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Walsh, of 4030 Calvert Street.

The couple was wed in the presence of the immediate families at St. Ann's Church, the Rev. Henry Collins officiating. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a costume of French blue and Navy with a corsage of white orchids. Miss Helen Goetz was her maid of honor and only attendant and Fred H. Goetz was best man for his brother.

A breakfast at Hotel Twenty-Four Hundred followed the ceremony. The bride attended the Misses Eastman's School and Immaculata Seminary and her husband studied at Georgetown and Benjamin Franklin Universities. He is now stationed at Fort George G. Meade, Md.

Among those attending were Mrs. Irving Gordon, Miss Ruth Rubin, Miss Ann Becker, Miss Sylvia Seck, Miss Mildred Schwartz, Miss Naomi Pearson, Miss Ethel Pearson, Miss Helen Scheffman and Miss Inez Port.

Francelia Tobey And Dr. Munson To Wed Sunday

Senator and Mrs. Charles W. Tobey, of Temple, N. H., have announced the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Miss Francelia Marian Tobey, to Dr. Edward Ten Eyck Munson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Byron V. Munson, of Rochester, N. Y. The garden of the Tobey home will be the setting for the ceremony, which will take place on Sunday afternoon.

Miss Louise Tobey will be maid of honor for her sister, John B. Munson, of Grand Rapids, Mich., will be best man, and Stephen Tobey, nephew of the prospective bride, will serve as page. The Rev. George W. Davenport, retired Bishop of Maryland, will officiate.

About the Town

—with Dudley Harmon

IT'S TOO BAD that the famous State Department reticence prevents diplomats from turning out memoirs every so often. Some real thrillers could be written by the Foreign Service officers who have been in the warring countries in recent years.

Dudley Harmon

Willys R. Peck, recently named United States Minister to Thailand, has been bombed so many times he's lost count. Not only in Chungking, where he has been for the past ten years, but in Nanking and Hankow. By some miracle, the Peck furniture escaped destruction and is now stored in Chungking and Nanking waiting shipment to Bangkok.

Mr. Peck, who speaks fluent Chinese, is working at the State Department until orders come to leave for Thailand. He will fly or take the boat to Singapore and then go on to Bangkok. The steamer route requires about a month, the voyage by air only eight days. Mrs. Peck hopes to accompany him, but that hasn't yet been decided by the State Department. There are some safer places right now than Thailand.

MRS. PECK, who is with her husband in Washington, "gets along" in the Chinese language. Her husband has spent 30 years in China service, somewhat of a record for American diplomats. He was even born in China, at Tientsin, of American missionary parents. After being educated in this country, and being graduated from the University of California, he went to North China as a teacher of English in a Chinese university, but joined the staff of the American Legation at Peking in 1908.

Mr. and Mrs. Peck have a married daughter and a grandchild, with whom they are renewing acquaintance during their interlude in a peaceful country.

ANOTHER GROUP leading a life of excitement these days are the foreign correspondents. Sooner or later they all flock back to Washington and this summer has seen a steady stream of them passing through. John Whitaker, who was obliged by the Italian government to leave Rome after years of work there, was in Washington recently and plans to return shortly for another visit. He is mapping out a lecture tour.

You'll recall that Mr. Whitaker and the young war correspondent, Virginia Cowles, got into a near riot with the Italians last year in Rome. Returning home one evening with some English diplomats they were insulted by an anti-British mob. The Italians were about to beat up Whitaker when Miss Cowles jumped dramatically in and said, "He's my husband!"

"Didda" Cowles' book of her experiences, "Looking for Trouble," is being widely discussed these days by the many Washingtonians who know her. She was here last time a year ago last spring visiting her sister, Mrs. Willard Reed, the former Mary Cowles, who now lives in Java.

"Didda" Cowles is chic, slender and good looking. She is noted for covering wars in high heels and white gloves. Not even a bombing seems to disturb a hair of her perfectly groomed head. She is living near London and has said she intends to remain there until the war is over, blitz or no blitz.

At Natalie Askanazy's cocktail party for the Counselor of the Polish Embassy, Jan Drohojowski . . . The guest of honor, who will leave soon to join the Polish government in London, receiving names to look up from Frank Kent, jr., who recently returned from there . . . Russian-born Mrs. Kent—they met in a London blitz—chatting on a sofa with Mme. Boncesco . . . Mr. and Mrs. Henry Field talking politics with Count Lasocki of the Embassy staff . . . George Abell with a Cuban sunburn which made everybody else feel thoroughly unhealthy looking . . . Pat Jarrett, of the Australian Legation, also tanned from sailing in the Chesapeake . . . and several members of the staff.

Jan Drohojowski has no idea how long he will remain in London, but he is sure to be very much missed. He has had a colorful life in this country, and at one time worked at unloading ships at New York piers. He joined the Embassy here after the German invasion of Poland.

Novelist Sets Wedding Date

Leila Warren, well-known novelist, who wrote Foundation Stone and other books, will be married on Monday to Buel Whiting Patch, of Alexandria. The ceremony will take place at noon at the First Congregational Church, the Rev. John E. Wallace officiating.

The bride will be given in marriage by her brother, Monroe Warren. Her only attendant will be her daughter by a former marriage. Mrs. Lee Warren Spanogle Frederic Whiting Patch, of Framinghouse, Mass., will be best man for his brother.

A small breakfast for the families and close friends will follow at the Chevy Chase home of Mrs. Benjamin Warren, mother of the bride. Mr. Patch is with the firm of Editorial Research Reports. Formerly on the Buffalo Evening News and the New Haven Register, he has resided in Washington and Alexandria for the past ten years.

Gloria Grosvenor Gives Dinner Party At Country Club

Miss Gloria Grosvenor, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, entertained at a small dinner dance at the Chevy Chase Country Club last night. Among the guests was Miss Ann Fletcher, of St. Louis, Mo., who, with her mother, Mrs. Anson Fletcher, is the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Francis Sullivan. Before returning to St. Louis, Mrs. Fletcher, who was known in Washington before her marriage as Miss Victoria Sheperd, will go on to Norfolk, Va., for a visit, accompanied by her daughter.

Others at last night's party were Miss Beverly Marshall, Miss Villette Sullivan, Lawson Cox, G. B. Seibold, Jack Graber and William Stott.

Lucy Thomas, G. N. Ray Wed

Of interest in Washington was the wedding in New York yesterday of Mrs. Lucy Lane Thomas and George N. Ray, of Washington. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride and was witnessed only by close friends and relatives. The Rev. Dale DeWitt officiated.

The bride, formerly Mrs. Graydon Thomas, of Miami Beach, Fla., is well known in Washington and New York social circles. As Miss Lucy Lane, of Savannah, Ga., she was a popular Southern debutante.

Mr. Ray, a Washingtonian by birth, is president of Randall H. Hagner Co., Inc. He specialized in architecture at the University of Pennsylvania and is responsible for many big Washington homes and office buildings and country estates in nearby Virginia and Maryland. He is a member of the Metropolitan Club, the University Club and the Corinthian Yacht Club.

The couple will return to Washington to live before the end of September.

Madame Bilmanis Gives Luncheon At the Legation

Mme. Bilmanis, wife of the Minister of Latvia, entertained informally yesterday at a luncheon at the legation. During the summer, Mme. Bilmanis has been giving a series of semimonthly luncheons.

Out--of-Town Firms Attack Bus Fees Bill

Spokesmen for District sightseeing bus operators and out-of-town transport companies yesterday argued the merits of a proposed amendment to the House-approved sightseeing bus license bill which would require out-of-town companies to pay the $100 annual license fee for operations of more than 15 days.

The amendment was introduced by Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech at a Senate District Committee hearing presided over by Senator Harold H. Burton (Republican), of Ohio.

John F. Selb, of the National Association of Motorbus Operators, said the amendments, if enacted, "would drive away from Washington many people who are interested in seeing what our Capital City is like. The average citizen has something in Washington that belongs to him."

Herbert Harper, a representative of the Public Service Interstate Transportation Co. of New Jersey, declared that his company each year operates some 200 buses to the District, serving approximately 80 chartering parties, "about half of whom are school children."

Stating that "15 days is far too restrictive" on bus operators, Gilbert Nurick, general counsel of the Pennsylvania Bus Association, suggested 50 "occasions"—trips—be the limit fixed under which no fee would have to be paid.

Sefton Darr, attorney for the organized employes of the Capital Transit Co., termed as "fair" the amendment suggested by the District Commissioners through Keech.

"If the bill becomes law as it is now written, the Capital Transit Co. and similar local firms would be in competition with out-of-city companies who would be tax free, he declared.

Representatives of the Grey Line, A., B. & W. Transit Co., and Arlington-Fairfax companies, operating locally, seconded Darr's views.

The 15-day limit would "affect only a few large companies and would not bother the small, independent operators" outside of Washington, William H. Press, executive secretary of the Washington Board of Trade, told the gathering.

"Our experience with the tourist business leads us to believe the overwhelming majority of these children coming to Washington come in buses chartered in their own communities," he said, adding that only a few large companies in distant States are operating regular sightseeing businesses here.

No indication was given by Senator Burton as to whether he would recommend the proposed amendment for Senate action.

200 Millions More To Insure Housing Passed by Senate

Copyright by New York Times

By a voice vote the Senate yesterday unanimously passed a House bill authorizing the Federal Housing Administration to increase its insuring of defense housing projects by a maximum of 200 million dollars. This raised to 300 millions the amount of such housing that may be underwritten by the agency.

By another voice vote the Senate approved a joint resolution by Senator Langer (Republican), of North Dakota, creating an encephalitis control board to cooperate with the United States Public Health Service in a 3-million-dollar investigation of sleeping sickness.

Army Flier Killed In Connecticut Crash

Windsor Locks, Conn., Aug. 21 (AP). Lieut. Eugene M. Bradley, 24, of Antlers, Okla., was killed today in the first airplane crash at the new Army base here. Military officials said he failed to come out of a routine dive.

Lieut. Bradley was to have addressed a group of young men in New London tomorrow night to interest them in taking a flying cadet refresher course.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Maritime Labor Board To Finish Up in September

The Maritime Labor Board is winding up its affairs and it will pass out of existence by the end of September.

Congress placed the board in a paradoxical situation. It extended its life for another year to June 30, 1942, and then refused to give the board money to operate. The board would have had to close up shop on July 1 and its employes would have had to forfeit their accrued annual leave if the President hadn't given it money from his personal fund. Congress gave the board $30,000 in the recent defense appropriation bill and earmarked it specifically for "winding up" its affairs."

Civil Service investigators have been ordered not to question applicants for defense jobs on the books and magazines they read. One investigator, it seems, thought an applicant shouldn't be given a Federal job because he had read Karl Marx, which, after all, would bar about every person who had studied college economics.

Civil Service has relaxed its rules to permit a third member of a family to work in the Federal service if the third person has a temporary appointment . . . Milo Perkins, chief of the Surplus Marketing Administration, as reported here Monday, is the choice of Vice President Wallace for the post of executive director of the War Economic Board. Only the President's OK is lacking to make it official . . . Federal Communications Commission has licensed its first deaf, dumb and blind amateur radio operator, a 21-year-old Brooklyn boy.

Radio Monitors

The Foreign Broadcast Monitoring Service, an adjunct of FCC, is the latest agency to announce a decentralization plan. However, the decentralization of this vital defense agency is purely voluntary. The plan is to send 49 employes to Portland, Oreg., where a listening post would be set up to transcribe, translate, and analyze Far Eastern broadcasts. Forty-six employes are to be sent to San Juan, Puerto Rico, where Latin-American broadcasts would be picked up and two employes are to be sent to London.

Meanwhile, the service plans to hire 105 additional employes—mainly engineers, translators radio monitors, stenographers and clerks—which would bring its staff to 314. The money to hire the new employes who will be recruited from Civil Service rolls, won't be available until the President signs the first supplemental national defense appropriation bill.

One thing that no two people agree on here is how many Federal employes are there in Washington. In all the maze of Federal statistics, there can't be found the correct number of Government workers. The generally accepted figure is 180,000, which the Civil Service Commission reports. However, this figure covers only the executive branch of the Government and if an accurate figure on the judicial and legislative branches and the military could be had the figure would be well above 200,000, which, of course, would be an all-time high.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics appears to have the most accurate figures on Federal employes here. On June 30, 1941, for example, the bureau says there were 13,317 persons in the military services stationed here. In the judicial branch there were 494 on June 30, and there were 6132 employes in the legislative branch. There was a total of 19,943 in the military, legislative and judicial and added to the number of employes in the executive branch it makes a total of 200,000. The figures on the executive branch don't include dollar-a-year men, WOC's (persons working without compensation) and some employes classified as "field."

Postoffice Department employes are complaining about their efficiency ratings, which mean work for the new appeals board. Many who received high ratings in previous years were graded so low they won't receive raises under the uniform promotion act.

The Prisoner's Dance

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—City jail policemen went on the alert when a rat-a-tat-tat sounded from a cell block. It was only George Miller, 22-year-old New Orleans dancer practicing a tap specialty for an Iowa State Fair midway show. Miller was being held because he had no draft registration card when questioned at the scene of a fight.

Inquiry Ordered On D. C. Road Bids

Plans for an immediate Congressional investigation of the District Highway Department as the result of recent charges of paving contract irregularities were announced late yesterday.

The announcement came on the heels of a statement from the District Commissioners "welcoming" a Congressional inquiry and describing the charges of Comptroller General Lindsay C. Warren as "based on distorted facts."

Chairman McCarran of the Senate District Committee, now vacationing in New York State, notified R. F. Camalier, special adviser to the committee, of the projected inquiry. McCarran was quoted as saying:

"A complete investigation of the highway department and any other departments involved will be commenced immediately."

The Commissioners, it was stated, will be asked to supply "all available data" pertaining to paving contract specifications and awards and Camalier said he was instructed to obtain aid for the inquiry from the Federal Public Roads Administration.

Agency Told to Help

The Comptroller General's report presented Wednesday to the Commissioners and both District committees of Congress, charged that paving contract bids here were "unbalanced and overloaded" and contended "an even division of work" was handled by four major contractors.

Following a two-hour conference yesterday between the Commissioners, Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways, and municipal legal advisors, it was announced a reply was being prepared for transmission to the Speaker of the House, President of the Senate and both District committees.

The Commissioners unanimously supported the administration of Capt. Whitehurst and invited Camalier and "others interested" to go over all paving contract records with them.

"We look upon these charges," said Commissioner Mason, "as serious—serious in the sense they ever were made. We deny each and every allegation contained in the Comptroller General's report."

Whitehurst said the charges were based on "distorted facts" and both commissioners concurred.

"There were plenty of facts in the files which never were used," said Mason. "They were there and available—but were never touched."

An entirely different picture would have been found, Mason indicated, had the GAO investigators made use of all records in the Highway Department files.

The conference was attended also by Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech, his assistant, Vernon West and John Robertson, engineer of highways. They all agreed the charges were unwarranted.

Savings Claimed

"When this is all through," said Commissioner Kutz, "we will be able to show that the District saved and did not lose money in awarding the contracts in question."

The District group, meeting in Gen. Kutz's office, examined seven contracts awarded in 1937 (ones specifically mentioned by Comptroller General Warren) and announced they were "entirely satisfied in all respects."

"We are convinced," said Kutz, "that both the work and accounting was done lawfully and the city saved money—but we wouldn't have saved money if any other method of letting contracts was used."

Capt. Whitehurst reiterated that local street paving contracts always go to the lowest bidder and that District authorities have no control over who bids. He added that only six local concerns have necessary asphalt plant facilities.

Specifications Revised

All bids, he said, are advertised for in advance. The contract board opens the bids and they are then passed upon by the Commissioners.

It has always been customery, said Whitehurst, to decrease or increase original specification amounts by 25 per cent as provided by law.

Frequently, he said, minor work is necessary which was not included in the original specifications on which bids were received and this is added—up to the 25 per cent increase permitted.

The same, he said, applied to work which might be discarded after contracts are awarded. In both instances, the action is taken with full knowledge of the contractors in advance.

Whitehurst declared that in 90 per cent of cases, the contractor receives less than his base bid.

Mother, Child Hurt as Towed Car Cuts Loose

A mother and her 13-month-old daughter were injured yesterday when a disabled coupe broke away from a towing crane, jumped the curbstone at First and N Streets Southwest, and struck the pair on the sidewalk.

Mrs. Helen Hollander, 30, of 212 O Street Southwest, was pushing her daughter, Rebecca, in a stroller when the runaway machine bore down on them. Mrs. Hollander tried desperately to push her daughter out of the path of the car, but the stroller was sideswiped and overturned. The woman was knocked down.

Taken to Emergency Hospital, Mrs. Hollander was said to have suffered a fractured left ankle. The child received lacerations to the chin, multiple abrasions to the head and right temple. The latter's condition was said to be undetermined. Mrs. Hollander was not believed seriously hurt.

Police said the tow crane was operated by John Reece, 45, Negro, of 1842 California Street Northwest. How the coupe broke away from the tow crane was not determined.

Four pedestrians were hurt, two critically, in other traffic accidents.

James Walton, 10-year-old Negro, of 2126 Ninth Street Northeast, struck by an automobile in the 600 block of W Street Northwest, was taken to Freedmen's Hospital with a compound arm fracture, internal injuries and a brain concussion.

Four-year-old Henry Brown, Negro, of 417 Fourth Street Southeast, was also in a critical condition after being struck by a car in the 300 block of E Street Southeast. He was admitted to Providence Hospital with a fractured skull.

Struck by a street car in the 1300 block F Street Northwest, Ethel M. Showers, 50, of 706 Eleventh Street Northwest, received cuts and bruises to her elbows and right shoulder.

Harriett Smith, 19, of 624 Elm Avenue, Takoma Park, Md., suffered numerous cuts and bruises and possibly a hip injury when she was knocked down by an automobile on Fourth Street Northwest, between Constitution Avenue and D Street.

Plans Are Made For Arboretum At U. of Md.

By the Associated Press

Towson, Md., Aug. 21.—Plans for the immediate establishment of a State arboretum on the grounds of the University of Maryland were made by nurserymen of the State at their summer meeting, concluded today.

Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the university, assured nurserymen that suitable land was available and arrangements would be made for planting whatever stock they provided.

"In no other way can such an effective show window for the important nursery industry of the State be provided," he declared.

Henry Hohman, Kingsville, chairman of a committee of nurserymen who have been working for a number of years on the project, said that such a planting would not only be of great value in teaching students but would also be of inestimable value to the nursery industry.

With a view to planting certain perennials before October 1 a committee of nurserymen will meet university officials September 3 to decide a general plan and layout, location for planting various types of plants and other matters.

It was decided to place the determination of general policy in the hands of a committee consisting of four nurserymen, three university representatives, a representative of the Maryland Garden Club and coordinator who would not represent any specific group or industry.

Four nurserymen named were L. G. Tingle, Pittsville; W. C. Price, Towson; Milo G. Copeland, Rockville, and Hohman.

Mrs. Charles S. Peace was chosen as garden club representative. University representatives are to be designated by Dr. Byrd.

19-Year-Olds Continue to Lead U. S. in Arrests

Nineteen-year-olds continued to constitute the larges age group in frequency of arrests during the first half of 1941, according to figures released yesterday by the Department of Justice.

Stressing the seriousness of the situation, J. Edgar Hoover of the FBI, commented that during five of the past nine years the 19-year-olds have been arrested more frequently than persons of any other age group.

Statistics further reveal that during the first half of this year, 386 persons under 21 were charged with murder or manslaughter, 1,926 with robbery, 7,293 with burglary and 9,755 with larceny.

Hundreds of Youngsters Learn Traffic Lessons, With Fun Thrown In, at Model 'Safety Town'

SAFETY TOWN—Children follow safety instructions in crossing intersection of miniature village known as Safety Town

"Wait for the green light" was the watchword and the object lesson of Safety Town on Calvin Coolidge High School playgroud where several hundred youngsters walked and drove across the intersections of a miniature traffic layout yesterday.

The project, directed and operated by the American Automobile Association and sponsored by the Department of Vehicles and Traffic and the District WPA, was designed to teach lessons children won't forget when the streets and cars are not miniature.

In a setting of school building, bakery, drug store and church also miniature, on opposing corners the boys and girls were directed to cross the intersection as diminutive traffic light flashed the go signal.

Other youngsters at the steering wheels of miniature cars added to the realism as they drove them back and forth.

Traffic Director W. A. Van Duzer and Washington I. Cleveland uttered safe-driving credoes as two of the tiny cars were placed nose to nose in a simulated collision.

Traffic Inspector Arthur Miller also addressed the children, admonishing them to "remember the things you learn here and practice them every day. Don't just stop on the red light here . . . do it out on the city streets."

Capt. Joseph W. Pierson, of Sixth Precinct, lauded the project for furnishing the youngsters "a great deal of fun and a great deal of learning." It should prevent "many accidents and the crippling of many children," he said.

Safety Town will be reenacted for three days at each of a dozen Washington school playgrounds.

'Il Trovatore' Displays Vigor At Watergate

By Ray C. B. Brown

Fortune Gallo presents the San Carlo Opera Company in Verdi's "Il Trovatore" at the Potomac Watergate on Thursday night. The cast:

Leonora ..... Mobley Lushanya
Manrico ..... Harold Lindi
Azucena ..... Anna Kaskas
Count di Luna .... Mostyn Thomas
Inez ..... Flora Shennan
Ferrando ..... Harold Kravitt
Ruiz ..... Francesco Curci
Conductor: Carlo Peroni.

Giuseppe Verdi's 88-year-old "Il Trovatore," a still hale and hearty relic of the melodrama era, was the offering of the San Carlo Opera Company last evening at the Potomac Watergate, where attendance showed a decline from the previous night's "Aida." This falling off may be ascribed to the postponement from Monday to cool weather or to a waning of interest in this particular Verdian work. The first two reasons would seem the more likely, judging from the vigor and volume of the applause that followed the familiar arias and concerted numbers.

BROWN

The postponement did undoubtedly put a strain upon the voices of the five singers in the principal roles, for they had all appeared the night before. Mobley Lushanya showed no vocal impairment, however, in her declamation of Leonora's lines, nor did comely Anna Kaskas, who was this time disguised by the wrinkles and white hair of Azucena. Harold Lindi sang with fervent sonority as Manrico, Mostyn Thomas was the Count di Luna and Harold Kravitt was a far better Ferrando than one usually hears.

"Il Trovatore" was the first of Verdi's operas to attain success in England and the United States, despite the tangled confusion of its plot. The work became, in fact, so popular in London that in 1878 it was accorded the imitation which is said to be the sincerest form of flattery. The imitators were Gilbert and Sullivan, who parodied the plot and some of the music in "H. M. S. Pinafore."

The opera had its literary source in the chivalaresque drama, "El Trovador," by the Spanish playwright, Antonio Garcia Gutierrez, who was born the same year as Verdi. In choosing this subject Verdi displayed the same canniness in following a fashion that he did when he based "La Traviata" on "La Dame aux Camelias," for "El Trovador" had an instantaneous and overwhelming success in Spain, and the composer was quick to take advantage of it.

As for the plot, it is an acceptable one in spoken drama, where the details can be clarified, but not in opera, where the compression requires an unmistakable presentation of motives and actions. As long ago as 1862, Henry Chorley, the English critic, pronounced the plot to be next to unintelligible. "To this day," he wrote, "many persons have not found out the right and wrong betwixt the false child roasted by the gypsy in mistaken vengeance, and the true one, spared, and mistaken, and flung into all manner of miserable dilemmas, and at last beheaded, in order to give the avenging fury an opportunity of saying to her noble persecutor, 'He was thy brother!'"

25 Punior Board Members Offer To Help With Draft

Twenty-five members of the Junior Board of Commerce have offered their services to the director of Selective Service of the District as associate members of the advisory board for registrants. They were sworn in late yesterday by Lieut. Col. Edwin S. Bettelheim, jr., executive officer.

The men are to assist the regular board during vacation periods and when regular members are busy elsewhere. William E. Leahy, State director, thanked the men for their cooperation and outlined duties and problems of the service.

It was also announced that more than 100 District men will be inducted into the Army on Friday, August 29.

Takoma Boy Wins Model Plane Prizes

Arthur Peck, 14, of 7 Poplar Avenue, Takoma Park, captured two prizes in the model airplane contest sponsored by the municipal playgrounds yesterday at the Philadelphia Avenue Center.

Representing the Spring Park playground, Arthur's Spade model was adjudged the best constructed and also won first place for best gliding in the 20-inch spread class. The model glided 7 seconds. Approximately 200 persons witnessed the competition.

The longest flight, with 85 seconds of flying time, was made by the model of Paul Buck, 17, of 101 Pierce Drive, Silver Spring, who designed the plane. Entered in the 31-inch class, the model flew clear across the field, landing on the roof of the new junior high school on Piney Branch Road about three blocks away from the starting point. He represented North Takoma Center.

A retractor model made by Robert Tabler, 13, of 108 Hilton Avenue, representing the Philadelphia Avenue playground, took honors for the best glider in the 30-inch class with 7 seconds to its credit.

In the larger models, Billy Mauger, 13, of 2 Poplar Avenue, Takoma Park, and his Fairchild model with a 3-foot wing spread, got the prize for best construction.

Robert Weir, Harold Evans, and David Abercrombie were judges. The show was under the direction of Crescent J. Bride, playground supervisor.

Parma Reported To Be Critically Ill

V. Valta Parma, 62, of the Dupont Circle Apartments, and former curator of the rare book division of the Library of Congress, was reported to be critically ill at his apartment last night.

Parma is chairman of the tenants committee of the Dupont Circle Apartments and has led the fight against the Government's proposed plan to take over the building. It was during the heat of the controversy that Parma was stricken.

Store Stamp Sale To Begin Sept. 15

The country's one million retail stores will begin the sale of defense savings stamps across their counters September 15, Maj. Benjamin H. Namm, chairman of the Treasury Department's retail advisory committee, announced yesterday.

He pointed out that approximately two and one-half million retail employes will be selling stamps "for the duration."

Prisoner Gives $10,000 Bail In Swindle Case

Thornley D. Harris, 42, was freed on $10,000 bond yesterday pending grand jury action on charges that he swindled an aged Washington woman out of $11,965.

Harris pleaded not guilty and waived preliminary hearing before Police Judge George D. Nielson. When he sought a lower bond, Assistant District Attorney Arthur J. McLaughlin protested, saying the man's operations might involve as much as $50,000.

Lieut. Joseph W. Simon, chief investigator for the district attorney, disclosed that a four-month investigation led to Harris being arrested Wednesday night.

The officers served a warrant which charged the prisoner with obtaining $11,965 worth of securities by representing himself as the head of Lloyd's Acceptance and Discount Corporation, Baltimore.

Harris was arrested a month ago at the request of Baltimore authorities in connection with charges said to be pending against him there. He has been free on $3000 bond in this case, which is scheduled to be heard in the Police Court today.

C. D. Ferguson Named Roll Call Publicity Chief

Courtland D. Ferguson, local advertising executive, has been named chairman of the publicity committee for the Silver Anniversary Roll Call of the District Red Cross, it was announced yesterday by Edgar Morris, roll call committee chairman.

Ferguson will direct all newspaper, radio and outdoor advertising publicity efforts for the roll call, which will be held from September 22 to October 20. He was publicity chairman last year as well, and served as director of radio activity in the previous two roll calls.

He is a member of the National Press Club and the Advertising Club of Washington, and lives at 105 West Bradley Lane, Chevy Chase, Md.

Copy of Check Too Real

Minneapolis, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—The Government sent Effie Armstrong a photostatic copy of a $14.50 National Youth Administration check to prove that the original had been sent her and been cashed. The picture of the original looked so genuine that the recipient took it to a downtown shop and cashed it, believing the duplicate was intended to reimburse her.

More Ballots Today For D. C. Time Poll

Additional ballots on which Washingtonians—and residents of nearby Maryland and Virginia—may register their favor or disfavor of daylight saving time for the District will be available at noon today at The Washington Post.

The Post is cooperating with the District Commissioners in a poll to determine public sentiment regarding the adoption of "fast time" here.

Among preliminary responses to the first day's "invitation" vote were 18 favoring daylight time here and 8 against. One Government worker suggested it would be "safer and better" if young women were permitted to leave their offices early and get home before dark.

Use Blank to Vote

From Fields Clothing Co. came 14 employes' votes advocating daylight time.

The accompanying blank also may be used to cast votes. Just fill it in and send or bring to The Post. The Commissioners will be advised daily on the trend of opinion.

The Commissioners have been reluctant to support daylight time legislation—needed to adopt the plan here—until they are certain the "majority of citizens" want it.

They are mindful, at the same time, that the President has urged universal, year-round changes to daylight time to conserve electric power for defense purposes.

Parts of Virginia and other neighboring States—with the exception of Maryland—have switched over. Arlington and Fairfax Counties and the City of Alexandria are awaiting the District's lead.

Maryland's Gov. O'Conor also is "considering" the adoption of daylight time, but, like the Commissioners, has called for public reaction.

Ballots received by The Post—when a sufficient number has been turned in to give a clear picture—will be transmitted to the Commissioners for consideration.

The city heads also have requested that votes be accompanied by comments on why citizens want to change their clocks—or why they don't.

Are you in favor of daylight saving time for the District?

5-Cent Milk Bought by Half Of Eligibles

Nearly one-half of the needy families and individuals certified to buy milk at 5 cents a quart are not availing themselves of the opportunity, figures revealed yesterday.

A statistical report released by David Miller, chief of surplus commodity distribution for the Department of Public Welfare, shows that 2498 of 5737 eligibles have made no purchases since July 1. These nonparticipants could buy a total of 3691 quarts daily if they chose to take advantage of the surplus milk relief program.

For the first 20 days of August, sales totaled 59,529 quarts, compared with 55,470 in the same period last month. The increase was almost negligible in comparison with the rise in number of families who became eligible to buy the nickel quarts after being separated from WPA jobs.

The Surplus Marketing Administration, which operates the nickel-quart project here and in other cities, has promised to study improvement of the local situation, but there has been no action since Conrad Van Hyning, acting welfare director, requested improvement more than two months ago.

Chinese Posts Bond in Drug Case

Charged with possessing narcotics, Lee Ling Sing, 39-year-old Chinese, of 908 Fifth Street Northwest, was released under $2000 bail last night pending a hearing Wednesday before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage.

The suspect was arrested Wednesday by Detective Sergt. H. H. Carper and Federal Narcotic Agent Leroy Morrison and accused of violating the Harrison Narcotic Act. It was said he had more than $100 worth of heroin in his possession.

Marine Killed, 11 Unhurt in Air Crash at Quantico

One Marine was killed but 11 others escaped uninjured yesterday when a large amphibian transport plane cracked up in making a landing on the Potomac near Quantico, Va.

The ship, attached to the Quantico Marine Base, was engaged in what officials described as a "routine flight" when the accident occurred, carrying Techical Sergt. John W. Simko, 28, to his death.

It was understood that one of the propellors dug into the water during the landing, jerking the motor from its moorings and folding a wing back into the fuselage. It was apparently the wing which killed Stsgt. Simko.

First Lieut. Harry F. Baker, pilot, Capt. Warren E. Sweetser, jr., copilot, and nine Marines who were passengers in the transport were saved.

Sergt. Simko was from McKeesport, Pa.

New Film at Capitol Is Marked by Bitter Tragedy

'Dr. Kildare's Wedding Day' Somber, Despite a Brave Attempt at Gay Comedy; James "Jeeter" Barton Steals Stage Revue

"DR. KILDARE'S WEDDING DAY." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of a story, based on the characters created by Max Brand, by Ormond Ruthhaven and Lawrence C. Bachman, adapted to the screen by Willis Goldbeck and Harry Ruskin, starring Lew Ayres, Lionel Barrymore and Laraine Day, with Red Skelton, Alma Kruger, Samuel S. Hinds, Nils Asther, Walter Kingsford, Emma Dunn, Miles Mander, Nell Craig, Frank Orth, George H. Reed, Marie Blake and Margaret Seddon. Directed by Harold S. Bucquet. At Loew's Capitol Theater.

IT WOULD BE WELL not to be misled into the expectation of a gaily romantic film play by the title of the new attraction at Loew's Capitol Theater.

"Dr. Kildare's Wedding Day," to be sure, like all of its predecessors in the series, has its almost continuous intervals of acidulous and amusing dialogue—up to a certain point. That point is reached just before the wedding day arrives. From then on, the film is a pretty grim recital of the crisis that can overtake a promising young physician when tragedy numbs both his heart and mind. Something of the ethics, the oath and the tremendous responsibility to mankind assumed by the practitioners of medicine when they adopt their career, supplies the impetus that carries the screen story to its triumphant climax and denouement.

There are rather fewer vital developments in this subject than heretofore generally has been the case in the close professional association of the tenderly gruff Dr. Leonard Gillespie and the youthful Dr. James Kildare. The action is contrived to develop keen suspense as to whether Dr. Jimmy will be able to detach himself from his duties long enough to attend his own marriage and, secondarily, to reveal Dr. Gillespie as a musician and composer—who actually plays his own compositions on the piano and discovers in the case of a great symphony conductor the means by which Kildare can be saved from his own professional destruction.

There is a brave display of comedy along the way, but, in the last analysis, futile comedy that only serves to sharpen the poignance of the bitter final scenes.

Familiar Figures in Familiar Roles

Lionel Barrymore, in his familiar role of Dr. Gillespie, is rather the center of interest in this picture, all of the happy and inspirational enterprises falling to his lot. This is given added point by the fact that the senior doctor himself is under the watchful care of another specialist and still finds time for his music and his helpfulness. The oldest of the Barrymores plays the part with his accustomed skill. Lew Ayres, in the title assignment, seems to anticipate the dour events that are to overtake him and lends scant sprightliness even to the play's happier moments. Laraine Day, obviously making her final appearance in the series, is an ingenuous and a plaintive bride-never-to-be and one of great beauty in her wedding finery. The supporting roles are in their usual competent hands. Alma Kruger, Samuel S. Hinds, Emma Dunn, Walter Kingsford and Nell Craig make the Blair General Hospital a well-known institution, with Miles Mander and Nils Asther adding importantly to the dramatic fiber of the drama. The comedy, sometimes a little overstrained, is chiefly in the custody of Red Skelton, with Frank Orth running a distant second.

James Barton Scores a Smash

The bright "Hi-Lites Revue" at the Capitol this week has more than a little to commend it. Foremost among its assets is James Barton, one of the super-superlatives among the theater's dancing comics, lately liberated from the role of Jeeter Lester in "Tobacco Road." Mr. Barton revives that progressive epic of the drunk, attacked by a dog that eventually becomes a wolf, his "Ballroom Lizard" skit and a jitterbug number dealing with the "Lizard's" grandson of the modern era. All this he climaxes with a dance no one but Bill Robinson could duplicate. Next in favor at yesterday's first performance came Rolly Rolls, a genius of artistic fun at the piano, and, after him, the Biltmorettes, three acrobatic feminine dancers and rope-skippers, and Mazzone and Abbott in their frenzied depiction of what might happen among the Apaches in a Paris dive. The Rhythm Rockets fill in the interstices in several of their most attractive routines.

With Sam Jack Kauffman and Art Brown still on vacation, Jack "Jive" Schaeffer takes over the overture with high effect and a few blue lyrics and Lynn Allison presides again over the audience's vocal exercises from her perch on the organ bench. The Fox Movietone News, which, beginning today, will feature President Roosevelt's return to land—in place of the sea conference with Prime Minister Churchill—completes a bill that met with a capacity crowd's seemingly complete approval.

Belligerent Role

whose presence in the "Dr. Kildare" pictures presumably comes to an end in "Dr. Kildare's Wedding Day," presented yesterday on the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater as chief feature for the new week. The tragic events that make the title a bit of a misnomer precipitate a crisis in the life of the young doctor that makes him the hospital's vital case

'The Shepherd of the Hills' Counts His Sheep at Palace

By Richard L. Coe

"THE SHEPHERD OF THE HILLS," Paramount picturization of the novel by Harold Bell Wright, adapted to the screen by Grover Jones and Stuart Anthony, costarring John Wayne, Betty Field and Harry Carey, with Beulah Bondi, James Barton, Samuel S. Hinds, Marjorie Main, Marc Lawrence, Ward Bond, John Qualen, Fuzzy Knight and Tom Fadden. Reviewed Thursday afternoon. At the Palace Theater.

In this Gasless Age which is upon us, Technicolor will surely afford a heartening service to the anchored motorist, whose yen for a sight of the Smokies, the Rockies or the Ozarks apparently must remain just that 'til the all clear signal is sounded. Such a trip in fancy arrived with "The Shepherd of the Hills" on the Palace screen yesterday. In this third screen telling of the Harold Bell Wright Ozark epic, the natural beauties of the hills outweigh, should we say, the baser human elements.

For the mores of our country cousins, as set forth by the imaginative Mr. Wright, remain strange, even mysterious, to the city observer whose most flagrant transgression of the law is in flouting Don't Walk signs. To such a one, hexing, spirits (not liquid but imagined), bloody revenge, fratricide, patricide, idiots who speak, the blind which see, even the rage of heaven, seem startlingly of another world.

Carey and Field Effective

To be sure it is another world that John Wayne, Betty Field and Harry Carey inhabit back in the mountains of Missouri. It is a hard world, man, one in which land must be cleared, logs chopped, sheep tended while a second generation fights to finish the feud begun by the first generation's cruel insanity. A son who has sworn to kill his runaway father whom a cured blind woman ultimately points out to him as a friend is finally rescued by his unknown father and a scrappy, knowing, barefooted girl.

Nor is it this observer's intent to mock such a triumph of virtue over villainous ignorance, for the fault with "The Shepherd of the Hills" is a dragging pace and a vast amount of unexplained allusions in the plot. Why, for instance, did the Shepherd leave the hills in the first place? What did he do while he was away that quarter of a century? Who dusted the lonely cabin in Moanin' Valley and who kept that piano in tune?

Betty Field contributes an able, thoughtful portrayal as the girl of the forest who is the first to see, after the audience, the resemblance between father and son. Mark up another A for this resourceful actress. Carey, too, is outstanding in the title role. The briefly-spoken John Wayne plays the hero and Beulah Bondi is properly hateful as the crazed aunt who perpetuates the feud.

Barton in Cast

As a matter of fact, the entire cast is thoroughly able, with Marc Lawrence, as the idiot Pete, and Marjorie Main, as the aged blind woman, contributing fine work. James Barton, headlining on the stage further down F Street, has a role—Wayne's Uncle—not unlike his stage "Jeeter."

The major fault of "The Shepherd of the Hills" seems to lie, then, in its story, which, as told, is incredible, and its direction, which is laboriously slow. In Paramount's effort to produce another "Trail of the Lonesome Pine," too many persons are guilty of counting sheep.

Also on the Palace screen are an interesting Carey Wilson short on "Your Last Will"; a light-hearted cartoon with a Disneyesque woodland ballet; an incredibly labored "So You Think You Know Music" quiz, in which Peggy Wood, H. V. Kaltenborn, Faith Baldwin and Johnny Green evidently were called upon for various rehearsals of the Information Please technique; and the interesting, much-disputed newsreel shots of the Atlantic meeting between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

HEDDA HOPPER

Reeling Around!

Hollywood, Calif., Aug. 21. A few months ago Herb Moulton walked into my office. Herb's one of those fellows we've all worked with at Paramount. He's known as the man who made the first talking trailers, which are now used by all major releases. (I made three for him.)

MAY ROBSON

Herb said, "Hedda, now that your column is in print and on the air, how about putting Hedda Hopper's Hollywood on the screen? I'd like it and so would Paramount. In fact, I'd like to do six one-reelers for the public." Well, it was a swell idea, and before I could say no, I said yes—and let myself in for some more work.

There's so much in Hollywood that is forgotten and should be shouted about. I'm going to try to show the Hollywood I have known and loved for a quarter of a century, but it will be difficult to confine myself to one-reelers, so we'll have six of them in the first year.

And in the first of all, which will be hitting the screens this month, his thousands of friends will have a chance to visit one of the finest men of the screen—William S. Hart—in his home among the hills he loves so well.

You'll see Kay Kyser, Ginny Simms, and the gang, and you'll see them as they really are, because it was an unrehearsed number. You'll see a Hollywood Mothers' Party, with May Robson dancing with Freddie Bartholomew, and you'll be introduced to the new French star, Michele Morgan, as she appeared at Circus Week in Palm Springs. This is only the beginning folks, and I'm hoping you'll like 'em.

In their last picture together, Adolph Menjou tried his durndest to make Kay Kyser clothes conscious. But Kay said: "My wearing swell clothes would be like putting a $50 saddle on a $10 mule." So when Menjou discovered Kay putting on an elegant Shakesperean costume for "Playmates," he said: "What happened to that $10 mule? Decided to streamline it?" "No," muttered Kay, "Just turning it in on a sixteenth century jackass."

"Our Wife" proves the exhibitors weren't wrong when, in a recent poll, they selected Ruth Hussey for early stardom. As a scholarly scientist who gets love mixed up with her test tubes, she gives a swell performance. Picture's a light comedy dealing with a tipsy musician caught between two dames, his divorced and future wives. And it's most refreshingly handled. Good entertainment, don't miss it.

Ben Piazza, at R. K. O., says that with the mustering of thousands of boys for defense, there's been a definite swing away from the handsome of "glamour" type of male lead. The female yen is now for the rugged he-man with the homely pan and the virile personality. That's why they're trying so hard to deglamourize Ty Power and Bob Taylor. For the first time, their good looks are a serious handicap to them.

On "Reap the Wild Wind" while everybody was getting instruction as to what to do in the scene, there was a pretty little Southern girl standing by who was given nothing to do. She couldn't stand it any longer, and said "Mr. De Mille, what am I just a itty bitty girl?" He's called her that ever since. Her name is Donivee Purky, and yesterday she got a test for a contract.

When Judy Garland was coming from a Glendale preview, two kids in a jaloppy chased her out of town, cornered her for autographs. Right in middle of proceedings the jaloppy coughed a couple of times, then died. So Judy got behind and shoved the trap a mile through heavy traffic, and at the garage discovered the kids had no dere-mi. Yep, the bill was on Judy, too.

They put on that terrific fight scene in "The Corsican Brothers" the other day and John Emery, the only actor who wasn't in it, was the only one hurt. As leader of the band of ruffians he was supposed to make a triumphant entrance on a prancing horse, after the fight was all over. Just as he got square in front of the camera, he took a header and landed flat on his back . . . John says nothing was seriously injured excepting his pride!

Wayne Morris is so hepped on his new desk job in the Navy he's telling all and sundry that he doesn't care when he gets out. With 8:30 calls and weekends free, says Wayne, there just ain't any comparison between Navy and studio hours.

Churchill's Voice To Be in Movie

Prime Minister Winston Churchill's voice, delivering a stirring portion of one of his most historic war speeches, will be heard in "Captains of the Clouds," which Warner Bros. are producing in Canada with the Royal Canadian Air Force.

James Cagney, George Tobias and Alan Hale, cast as Canadian aviators, will listen to the radio when these recorded words come over the air:

"We shall never surrender, and even if, which I do not for a moment believe, this island or a large part of it were subjugated and starving, then our empire beyond the seas, armed and guarded by the British fleet, would carry on the struggle, until the New World, with all its power and might, steps forth to the rescue and liberation of the old."

A record made in London at the time of the speech will be used to put the words on the screen in the Prime Minister's own voice.

Brooklyn Pier Fire Death Toll Mounts to 18

New York, Aug. 21 (AP).—The list of known dead mounted to 18 today when five more bodies were taken from the harbor waters near the Brooklyn pier destroyed by Monday's $1,500,000 fire which ravaged the Cuban mail freighter Panuco and numerous smaller craft.

Harbor police said 12 persons were still unaccounted for, while a Cuban mail line list, compiled from reports of foremen and relatives, showed 18 missing.

The city's largest fireboat returned to her post today after pouring water into the freighter for a record-breaking 68 hours and 40 minutes.

Declining Resources Turning Tide Against Hitler, Former U. S. Attache to Berlin Says

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 21.—Hitler has reached the turning point in the war and from now on will be on the down grade because of declining resources, in the opinion of Douglas Miller, former United States commercial attache in Berlin, whose best seller book, "You Can't Do Business With Hitler," was praised by President Roosevelt and other notables.

Germany probably has plenty of food, because of diversions from conquered territories, but has growing shortages of textiles, alloys and petroleum products, and of skilled manpower, Miller says in an article in the September Atlantic Monthly magazine.

The invasion of Russia cannot ameliorate these shortages much either, Miller says, because "it is a mistake to think of Russia as a lootable country. Russian riches are largely buried in the ground to exploit. . . .

"There has been a great deal of talk about the grain fields of the Ukraine . . . The Germans, however, were in possession of the Ukraine during the summers of 1917 and 1918 and were unable to secure any substantial amounts of grain for their home population. . . .

"Let us not fall into the error of believing that Hitler can make the invasion of Russia pay for itself in materials during this war. This time he is heavily in the red and must remain so."

Germany's synthetic fabrics, made from wood pulp, "really are nothing but special varieties of paper," Miller says. "The German soldiers and civilians are not going to feel very comfortable in cold weather with paper suits and underwear . . . Neither can armies march well in boots made of leather substitutes.

"Another growign problem for the Nazis lie in a shortage of alloys for steel manufacture . . . unless she is successful in Russia, Germany can get practically no tin, no nickel, no chrome, no melybedenum, no tungsten, no vanadium.

"There is no doubt whatever that the performance of much German war equipment is adversely affected by the lack of proper alloys.

"For example, German ordnance has been constructed using only one thirty-fifth as much nickel to harden the steel as is used in the best American practice.

"There is a tendency toward the employment of emergency methods and the use of ersatz materials that is bound to impair the efficiency of all these implements of war."

Although he concedes that the German's supply of gasoline this summer may have been even larger than at the beginning of the war, "it seems most likely that supplies of gasoline in the Reich will become increasingly scarce as the war goes on, and that from now on the situation must turn to Germany's disadvantage. . . .

"Much more serious than the problem of motor fuel is the shortage of lubricants.

"In all Germany, so far as I know, there is only one modern plant for making high-grade lubricants. This is in Bremen and has been a frequent target for British bombs. . . .

"A widespread belief persists that unexplained pauses of the German war machine—failure to follow up the bombing of London last autumn, for instance—may be explained by deficiencies in the supply of lubricating oil. . . .

"German soldiers are wearing out boots on the Russian road that cannot be replaced out of conquered supplies. . . . Never again in this war will the German army have the same wealth of materials it now commands, to shoot away or consume. If Germany has to face a sustained attack on the west or on the south, she will have to encounter it with inferior equipment and inadequate material resources. . . .

"They still face an acute shortage of railway transportation. It is this fact that has almost deprived German civilians of coal for domestic heating. . .

"German newspapers these days contain tremendous numbers of help wanted ads, indicating a shortage of labor, especially skilled labor, throughout the country."

The German army's loss of men in killed and wounded up to the present, Miller thinks, is probably less than in the World War and no more than the general staff counted on, but many of the lost were members of the old professional reichswehr core of the army, and "these men are irreplaceable. . . . I believe that in the Russian campaign, the German high command will begin to feel the lack of trained personnel. . . .

"The summer of 1941 definitely marks the turning point of the war. From now on, Hitler is on the down grade."

Answers To Quiz

1. A redouble is the best call, even though South holds only one trump. The rest of his hand is so valuable that North, even without a strong trump suit, should be able to make his contract with tricks in the other suits.

2. Bid one heart. You have only two honor tricks, but your singleton gives you a plus value and you hold a six-card major suit.

Americans in Japan Fear Concentration-Camp Threat

American and British nationals living in Japanese-occupied China are faced with the threat of being thrown in concentration camps, according to word from an American businessman in Tientsin.

The businessman said that the Japanese have built two large camps at Peitaiho, a summer resort near Tientsin and Chingwantao, and he is convinced they are for Americans and Britons. He said that the Japanese at first said they were building a hospital but Chinese workers disclosed that a sick man would die there. They said it had galvanized iron roofs and the heat would be intolerable.

At the same time, it is reported that American manufacturers and exporters are being intimidated by the Japanese, who have threatened to throw them into camps if relations between Japan and this country grow more tense.

Two Americans, W. A. B. Nichols, head of a rug firm in New York, and Col. G. A. Pande, importer of Chinese rugs, say they saw the camps for the first time last Easter Sunday as they were bicycling near Peitaiho. Nichols said:

"All around the place were sentry boxes and concrete pillbox emplacements for machine guns. The Japanese insisted the camp was for wounded soldiers. But the other day my partner cabled me, via Shanghai, to avoid Japanese censorship, that Japanese officers were openly threatening Americans and Britons with incarceration in the big camps."

The State Department said that it had no knowledge of any concentration camps being built for Americans.

QUIZ: let's ask some questions about PARADE

What is Parade?

Parade is a new 32-page tabloid size Sunday supplement, designed to bring newspaper readers the kind of up-to-the-minute entertainment offered by the picture magazines.

When does it start?

Parade has already started as a publication. It has been tried out in several cities and the public acceptance has been excellent! Parade starts in The Post this Sunday—August 24th.

What's it like?

It's like a picture magazine—except printed on a special newsprint paper. Parade includes 32 pages of pictures and short articles.

Will I like it?

If you like news pictures, you'll like Parade. If you like short, timely articles, you'll like Parade. If you like picture magazines, you'll like Parade. Get the Sunday Post on August 24th and prove it for yourself!

Does Parade replace something . . . ?

No. Parade is an addition to the Sunday Post. The Washington Post will now have 11 sections on Sunday instead of 10 . . . including the rotogravure section, more comics than any other Washington paper, and the complete novel.

WHO WINS THE QUIZ?

You win the quiz—you and every other reader—because now you know about this entertaining new addition being made to what was already Washington's most entertaining Sunday paper!

Get PARADE in Sunday's Post

Roosevelt Hits 'Wrong Party' Democrats

By the Associated Press

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 21.—President Roosevelt said tonight he thought that Democrats in Congress who have joined "obstructionists" of national preparedness were "in the wrong party."

In a message to the national convention of Young Democratic Clubs, the President said:

"I, like the rest of you, hoped that domestic politics would play no part in our defense measures. To some extent our hopes are realized—a multitude of the opposition party is serving the cause zealously and efficiently—but on the other hand the votes in Congress on the various steps in our preparedness, show that partisan politics is still rampant.

Politics Ruled Out

"True, there are a very few who still wear a Democratic label who have joined the obstructionists. I think these are in the wrong party."

That portion of the President's letter may prove to be the only statement of a political nature made at formal sessions of the convention, since Homer Mat Adams, national president of the clubs, has announced that the gathering would devote itself to matters of patriotism and defense, leaving politics aside.

Formally opening the convention, Lyndon Johnson, 32-year-old Texas Representative, who was defeated for the Senate by W. Lee Daniel, appealed for American unity to defeat Hitlerism.

Asks "All-Out Backing"

"There are some people, doubtless of good will," he said, "who continue to profess the belief we can put our heads under the blankets and ignore the dark forces loose in the world.

"We reject the doctrine that the only elightened method of dealing with the apostle of disaster is negotiation. Enlightened people do not negotiate with a Judas."

Johnson referred to President Roosevelt as a great leader whom "petty groups have fought all the way," and urged young Americans to see that he gets "all-out backing" in the international crisis.

U. S. Sports Writer Talks to Schmeling

Los Angeles, Aug. 21 (AP).—Bill Henry, Los Angeles Times columnist, talked by transatlantic telephone today to Max Schmeling, German boxer, and learned that Max had recovered from injuries he sustained in the invasion of Crete.

Schmeling, speaking from Berlin, told Henry he just had come from a Berlin sports carnival, where he was honor guest.

NEW COLE PORTER TUNES! At last! A batch of new Cole Porter tunes, still smelling of printer's ink has arrived in town. They're from the yet unreleased Fred Astaire picture, "You'll Never Get Rich." Included in this feast of tunes are the rhumba, "So Near Yet So Far," "Dreaming and Dancing" and "When I Kissed My Baby Goodbye." . . . It may be that some other bands have these tunes, but Pete Macias and his orchestra have been rehearsing them for two days, and will give them their Washington christening at the Lounge Riveria tonight.

Eddie Chase, the smoothie pianist-accordianist of Burt's Trans-Lux, has blossomed out as a singer for the first time in his life. Why he's been concealing this gift, can't be imagined, for he "gives out" vocally like a young brother of Bing Crosby.

RAMBLING CAMERA. Mayflower Lounge. Leonard Lyons, The Post's Broadway columnist, with Walter Winchell. For tables around the folks didn't dare to speak above a whisper. . . . Olney Inn. Minister Morgenstierne, of Norway, deep in conversation with Col. A. D. Dahl, of Great Britain. . . . Mayfair. A group of bronzed Blackfeet Indians. They'd come in to foregather with Bassist Bud Davis who's a Cherokee himself. Their request number was "Indian Love Call." . . . Hi Hat. Angie Rodante, who sang there for almost two years, and is looking lovlier than ever with her skyscraping black pompadour.

PRACTICAL VACATION. Maestro Bert Bernath is off to New York next week for a few days' relaxation. But in between night clubbing and show going he plans to collect a couple of bushels of fresh music for the Pall Mall Room.

ROMER'S IN AGAIN! "Since Don Baker's V Is For Victory has scored so v-markably in the Neptune Room; your readers may like some vehement vociferations about those vigorous, versatile V-vocalizers, the Musicomics. They vanquish vocabularies with their vivid visualization of "Gone With the Wind," especially in "Rat Butler and Scarlett Oh-Ha-Ha!" Volcanic is the word for Don Baker's "Firehouse," vertiginous for Joe Botchy's 'Butcher Boy." . . . This quotation is from Frank Romer, publicist of the Neptune Room. . . . Mr. Romer, you violet, you vitrify us!

Manager John Connolly, of the Hamilton Hotel and the Rainbow Room's maestro, Milton Davis, are treasuring de luxe scrapbooks of Rainbow's recent anniversary party. They are gifts from Meyer Davis who had them made to order in New York.

STYLE SECTOR. Clyde Kissinger, boy half of Anchor Room's "We Two," is a genuine style expert. He tells us that a woman's dress should always concentrate attention upon her face, her er-r bosom or her hips. On being pressed for details of how to accomplish these results, he allowed that pleated skirts led the eye to the hips, decried sweaters as too obvious. . . . Before you get the wrong idea about Clyde, you should know that he's just become the horse shoe pitching champion of Berwyn after defeating Bob McClue, the local ace.

RARER MELODY ITEMS. The cymbalon rendition of the "Berceuse" from "Jocelyn" by Laczi at the Plymouth . . . The "Czardasfursten" (it means Czarda Queen) being double pianoed by the Heintze Brothers at Restaurant "823" . . . Louis Franco's singing of "You and I" at the Midrillon. An "out of the world" item.

PUZZLING PATRICIA, the Casino Royal's glamor girl magician, has the place a-dither. She takes pearls off a string, waves a hand, and they're restrung! We're thinking of taking some pearls up to her for a quick job or restringing. Equally baffling is the way she pours a quart of wine into a newspaper cone and makes it vanish. But Patricia's best trick, we think, is the way she asks some ringsider to hold something for her—and the next thing the fellow knows, he's out in the middle of the floor saying, "Algazaam!" and a full-fledged member of the revue.

Singer Mary La Marr and Drummer Jimmy Bright, of the Lotus are the only entertainers in town who wear smoked glasses on the bandstand. They're not being Hollywoodish. The high power stage lighting is too hard on their eyes.

COLOR CONTRASTS. The Dancing Debs on the Shoreham Terrace in those stunning frocks of "shocking pink" with matching sombreros. Dancer Nietza's Brazilian frock of lemon taffeta with orange jacket—a real optic-dazzler. . . . The ethereal white frock Lady Vine is wearing on the Starlight Roof. It's of chiffon and silver-spangled tulle.

GLEN ECHO PERSONALITIES. Trumpter Jack Torrey's ambition is to become a music teacher. He's from Rochester, N. Y. . . . Singer-Trombonist Sammy Ferro never took a music lesson in his life. And look at him now! . . . Trumpeter Joe Garbleman has been around the world twice as a member of cruise bands.

BOULEVARD FARMS WEEK-ENDS are signalized by the gayest of ad lib "talent" parties." Many stars from Washington theaters always seem to drop in with results or undiluted jollity. . . . Syd Murray, the Boulevard Farms maestro, has made a smackeroo hit with his novelty dance music. He has made many recordings, came to Washington from New York's notable Pepper Pot. His engagement is limited, but while in Washington he is broadcasting three times a week via WOL.

"It's Peaceful in the Country" and extra peaceful at O'Donnell's Farmhouse where you can sit on the veranda and serenely stuff yourself with the dandiest of fried chicken, hot biscuits and sweet corn. Not to mention the sweet pickles and jellies.

'GALE'S A HURRICANE. There are always big crowds at the Nightingale, but the weekends are jam-packed affairs of 600 or so folks stepping to those high pressure rhythms of Rodd Raffell's band. The boys have something special-special right now in novel arrangements of "Blue Skies" and "It Had To Be You."

Virginia Studies Alternate Route To Washington

Richmond, Va., Aug. 21 (AP).—The State highway department is making a survey on an alternate route for Route 1 from Occoquan Creek to Washington.

The alternate route was proposed originally by the Public Roads Administration and was indorsed by the commanding officers at Quantico and Fort Belvoir. One purpose the road would serve would be to reduce traffic through Fort Belvoir, which lies on both sides of Route 1.

The proposed road would leave Route 1 just north of Occoquan Bridge and would continue north on the western side of the R. F. & P. tracks, coming out near the entrance to Memorial Bridge in Washington.

No money has been made available for the road.

General Calls Third Army's Games Stupid

By the Associated Press

Camp Polk, La., Aug. 21.—Lieut. Gen. Walter Krueger, commanding general of the Third Army, in a blistering criticism of handling troops thus far in maneuvers here, today said there had been a stupid disregard of the danger of air attacks.

He said that troop convoys had so badly clogged roads, laying his 250,000 men open to annihilating enemy air attacks in simulated battle, that his whole army might have been destroyed had this been actual war with real ammunition.

Gen. Krueger, addressing a critique of corps, divisional regimental and company officers here after the first three-day phase of the games, said he had been so disappointed with the lack of proper camouflage protection from airplanes and with traffic jams that he personally had flown about with a megaphone warning troop units of their danger.

His criticism recalled similar comment at the conclusion of Army games here last year when control officers vigorously assailed officers for not detrucking and scattering their men when advancing columns were held up in traffic.

Gen. Krueger demanded his army make itself thoroughly conscious that airplanes could wreck daylight troop movements along open roads, and ordered all roads kept clear of time-wasting traffic jams when the maneuvers resume Monday.

Soldiers Pretend They Are Casualties

With Second Army, in Arkansas, Aug. 21.—Soldiers turned actors today in the Second Army's mimic warfare, pretending by the dozens to be wounded, to give the medical troops practice in handling casualties of warfare.

Only the occasional crack of a .30-caliber blank offered a semblance to actual firing as men feigned being hit by the simulated shooting.

Each medical unit was ordered to go through a session of handling casualties during the second problem of the war games, which found the 75,000 men of Seventh Army Corps setting up a defensive position along a 15-mile front. An enemy, represented by the 107th (Ohio) Cavalry, advanced in attack.

Stretcher bearers scoured the "battlefield" for the "wounded," placing them on stretchers and carrying them to first-aid stations.

Anti-Tank Measures Practiced on Coast

With the Army in Southwest Washington, Aug. 21.—Steps to combat tanks are undergoing daily tryouts in the West Coast's war maneuvers of 100,000 men.

Under the eyes of War Department observers and umpires, the Ninth Army Corps has become a guinea pig in studying antitank defense measures.

Bishop Calls Games German Propaganda

New York, Aug. 21 (AP).—The Right Rev. Henry W. Hobson, national chairman of Fight for Freedom, Inc., said today in a telegram to Secretary of War Stimson that the manual issued to soldiers for the Second Army maneuvers contained "material that might well have been written by Goebbels."

"All of us here shocked beyond measure to find the Army manual dealing with Almat-Kotmk (fictitious nations). Maneuvers filled with incredible justifications of Germany," Bishop Hobson declared.

The Fight for Freedom group said in a statement that President Roosevelt, Secretary of State Hull and Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, director of civilian defense, also had been advised of Bishop Hobson's viewpoint.

[In Washington, Col. Walter P. Smith, highest ranking Army General Staff officer available last night, said he hadn't seen the manual assailed by Bishop Henry W. Hobson, but, said the colonel:

["The German army is the best in circulation. If they know of any better army, let us know."

[Secretary of War Stimson, Gen. George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff, and other high ranking Army officials are out on inspection tours.]

$30 Servicemen Bonus Sought

Legislation to give all noncommissioned officers and men in the Army, Navy and Coast Guard a $30-a-month bonus was introduced yesterday by Senator Downey (Democrat), of California.

The bonus would be retroactive to September 1, 1940, and would entitle all soldiers and sailors to an extra $30 for each month served after that date, the payments to be made in monthly installments beginning after the man's discharge.

The Senate two weeks ago rejected Downey's amendment to the draft extension bill, which would have provided a $30 bonus for every month served in excess of one year.

"I am more than ever convinced," Downey told the Senate yesterday, "that the morale of our Army and simple justice require a reasonable and fair rate of pay. It should be determined by the going wages for men throughout the country as a whole."

Meanwhile a survey showed that the Army payroll in the Washington area will be increased by about $400,000 a month as a result of the action of Congress in voting a $10-a-month increase for each month served in excess of one year.

The "raise" became effective for thousands of Regular Army men when President Roosevelt signed the Military Service Extension Act last Monday. If the necessary orders reach the field in time, officials said, Regulars with more than a year's service to their credit will get their first extra pay in the checks due at the end of this month.

National Guardsmen and selectees, who constitute the great majority of troops in this section, will not begin receiving the pay boost until early next year.

War Department officials said there were no estimates available as to how many soldiers would begin getting the increased pay at once, but it said it probably would go to at least 246,000 men of the Regular Army. None of the draftees has completed a year's service yet and not more than 20,000 or 30,000 will have done so by the end of the year. The $10 increase will boost a private's pay to $40 monthly. Under the old law a private was paid $21 a month for the first three months, then was raised to $30.

Army finance officers said it was not possible to estimate the total cost of the pay raise, but said that if the enlisted strength of the Army remains about 1,500,000, the annual additional cost would be about 270 million dollars.

Nats Win 2 Games Behind Leonard, Hudson

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

A Weary Man Is Mr. Travis

Detroit, Aug. 21.—You'd never make the American League pitchers believe it, but Cecil Travis is tired. The Nats' amazing young man with the .368 batting average is maintaining that figure despite a weariness that is bespoken by his drawn face, his spare frame work and the drag in his stride. He'd like a nice long rest from that shortstop job.

POVICH

He isn't swinging the heaviest bat in the league any more. Incidentally he ditched that 36x36 bludgeon a couple of weeks ago. At the start of the season when he was fresh and ready, a bat that was 36 inches long and weighed 36 ounces felt mighty powerful in his hands, but after 115 games it's too much wood to be swinging, he says. "Ah cain't quite whip it around like Ah like," drawls Cecil. "Ah'm down to a 34-ouncer and that's all I guess I kin stand. It's been pretty hot this summer."

At best, Travis has not been a strong fellow. During one season there were only 155 pounds on his 6-foot-2-inch frame. He did all right by the corn pone and black-eyed peas in his native Georgia last winter and reported to the Nats' camp weighing a healthy 185. That's when he decided to swing the league's biggest bat. "Ah like these big bats on account they got better wood in 'em," he was saying. "That's bad wood they put in those other bats. A bat's gotta be big to have good wood it seems. Ah kin tell soon's Ah hit a ball with good wood."

He Carried a Big Stick

Travis was doing very well with that big bat in the first month of the season. In fact, a new sort of Travis seemed to be unfolding himself. He hit five homeruns in the first few weeks of the season, equaling his home run output for any other complete year. And there were copious triples and two-baggers. Swinging his big bat with his newfound strength, he was turning on the power. No longer was he an exclusive left field hitter. He was putting the ball to right and at Chicago and Cleveland two home runs he hit stand as the longest homers of the season in those parks.

But when the bat began to feel heavy, Travis lapsed into his old style of hitting. He was too smart to overswing. He was content with the singles and doubles to left and left center that had fixed him up with a .322 batting average during his eight-year career in the big leagues. He didn't feel up to going for that long ball any more. Compared to his five homers in the first month of the year, he has hit only two home runs in the last 3½ months.

Now He Can Catch DiMaggio

(So help us if, at this precise moment as we were typing these words in Briggs Stadium, Travis didn't make a liar out of us by belting the daylights out of a ball and banging it against the centerfield fence for a tremendous triple that could have been scored as a home run. The poor, weak, bedraggled lad just belted that pitch 415 feet on the fly, that's all. The guy doesn't believe us when we tell him plain that he can't do that sort of thing any more.)

All that our weak friend, who can scarcely drag one leg after another, will probably end up with this season is the league championship at producing hits. At this writing, Travis is only five hits removed from Joe DiMaggio, who is setting the pace in that department, and with DiMaggio out of the Yankee lineup for two weeks with a turned ankle, Travis is something of a sure-shot to outstrip him. And it will be surprising, furthermore, if anybody beats out Travis for the No. 2 spot in league batting.

Travis might, of course, take it all in the league batting race, but that is unlikely. Ted Williams shows no sign of weakening his sensational .410 pace, but Travis similarly shows no sign of skidding much below .370. He still continues to get those singles and doubles to left field.

The pity is, according to manager Bucky Harris, that Travis is playing shortstop. Harris honestly thinks that Travis would be the batting champion this year if he were playing third base. "There's too much work for Cecil out there around shortstop," says Bucky. "He's got to be on the move so much, that it saps his strength. At third base he could be taking it comparatively easy and be conserving his energy. Then he'd still be giving us that long ball and you'd see him among the real sluggers of this league. If we ever come up with another shortstop, third base is where Travis is going to play on this club."

Three Philadelphia Hits Account for Two Runs in Ninth

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Aug. 21.—The last-place Phils staged a three-hit ninth inning onslaught which yielded two runs tonight to edge out the St. Louis Cardinals, 5-4.

The end came with a suddenness unusual for the Phils. Trailing 4-3 in the last half of the ninth, Emmett Mueller, first up, banged out a sizzling double. Bob Bragan followed suit, sending Mueller home with the tying run. The Cards rushed Howard Krist to relieve Morton Cooper on the pitcher's mound, but Catcher Ben Warren promptly poked one of his offerings for a clean single, driving home the winning run with none out. The Cards got to Si Johnson and Ike Pearson for 15 hits.

Loss Hurts Cards

A night game crowd of 7,209 saw the Cards drop the first game of the series here. The loss kept them one and a half games behind Brooklyn in the National League leadership race.

Morton Cooper apparently had things well in hand until the fatal ninth, keeping seven hits well scattered until that frame.

The Cards jumped into a two-run led in the second inning on singles by Don Padgett, Walt Cooper, Martin Marion and Jimmy Brown.

The Phils scored one in their half of the second when Nick Etten doubled to center and then came home on a wild pitch.

Phillies Rally

The Cards added another in the third. Johnny Hopp singled and went to third on John Mize's single. Don Padgett forced Mize, and Hopp came home on the play.

Both added runs in the sixth, the Cards scoring on Hopp's single which drove in Mort Cooper. Cooper got on with a safety and was placed in scoring position when Estel Crabtree walked.

The Phils scored twice in their half, then. Dan Murtaugh singled with one away, advanced on Stan Benjamin's bingle and came home when Joe Marty also hit safely. Etten beat out a bunt and Benjamin came in from third. Danny Litwhiler got on when hit by a pitched ball, filling the bases. But Mize caught Marty at the plate on Mueller's grounder and Bob Bragan grounded out.

Durocher Banished Twice, Wilson Once In Dodger Madhouse

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, Aug. 21.—The Chicago Cubs up-ended the Brooklyn Dodgers, 6 to 2, today in a turbulent struggle interrupted by numerous arguments, two of which brought about the banishment of Managers Leo Durocher and Jimmy Wilson.

Durocher, in fact, was waved out of the game twice to win some sort of a personal prize for tenacity. He was ejected at the start of the third inning for continued protests of a ball called in the first inning. In the seventh the umpires discovered he still was standing in the stairway leading into the Dodger dugout and presumably still directing his team. This time they forced him on to the dressing room.

Wilson was ousted in the sixth for protesting that a batted ball which was called foul had landed fair.

From the first inning on there never was much question that Brooklyn's six-game winning streak would be snapped.

Little Jake Mooty pitched steady, seven-hit ball and, except for the fourth inning, held the Brooklyn rowdies nicely subdued.

On the other hand Chicago, led by Stan Hack and Phil Cavarretta, blasted 13 hits off four Dodger hurlers, including Whitlow Wyatt, who was called upon for his first relief performance of the year.

Smith Makes Big Comeback With 'Skins

By Walter Haight

Post Staff Writer

San Diego, Calif., Aug. 21.—Getting off punts of 55 and 60 yards, George Smith, attempting a comeback with the Redskins, stole the show at today's practice. Smith, center on the championship team of 1937, played the last two years on the West Coast with the Los Angeles Bulldogs and the Salinas Packers. He reported this week bigger and better than ever, standing 6 feet 3 inches and weighing 222 pounds.

After seeing his kicking Coach Ray Flaherty is making plans to allow Smith to do the punting on one of the two regular combinations. Of course, Sammy Baugh will kick for his team. With Mickey Parks or Vic Carroll to be used as the center, Smith could be dropped back for the booting on the team led by Frank Filchock.

The Redskins, not too strong at the pivot position last year, now have in addition to Smith, the hefty Ki Aldrich and the two speed boys, Steve Andrako and Bob Tichenal. Flaherty plans to carry only three centers, however. Bob Hoffman, capable blocking back, may be near service in the Army. The former Southern California halfback was called to Los Angeles today to appear before his draft board.

The Redskins game at Los Angeles, scheduled for the afternoon of September 14, has been shifted to September 12 and will be a night game. The Pacific Coast All-Stars, coached by Ernie Pinckert, will be the opposition.

With the first scrimmage listed for Saturday, Coach Flaherty stepped off the pace of the drills today. The players are eager to get on the pads and go in for some hard work.

Ed Cifers, the big end from Tennessee resumes action tomorrow after being out with a strained ligament but it will be several days before Steve Slivinski works out due to the burn on his leg.

Bob Feller Turns Back Yanks for Indians, 2-0

Cleveland Pitcher Records 21st Victory As New York Is Limited to Seven Hits

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Aug. 21.—Victory No. 21 finally popped up for Bob Feller today, the twenty-first of August, as the talented righthander shut out the New York Yankees on seven hits for a 2-0 Cleveland triumph.

Feller's fine performance brought the Indians their first win in ten games and stopped the American League leaders scoreless for the second straight day.

Rapid Robert had won only one other game in more than a month and he was given a run for his money today by Atley Donald, a pitcher who had whipped him twice in previous encounters. Donald allowed the Indians only eight hits in this struggle.

Manager Roger Peckinpaugh shook up his line-up and obtained results in the first inning. Russ Peters drew a walk, Roy Weatherly tripled and Jeff Heath singled for the only runs of the game.

From then on Feller and Donald waged a bitter mound duel, with Feller fanning nine and walking only two men. The Yankees threatened seriously just twice.

In the fourth inning Tom Henrich doubled, Bill Dickey was hit by a pitched ball and Joe Gordon walked to load the bases with two out. Then Fellers struck out Phil Rizzuto, who had doubled in an earlier inning. In the eighth with two out George Selkirk doubled and Dickey singled, but Selkirk was thrown out at the plate.

Carrasquel Carries Nats' 5th-Place Hopes

By a Staff Correspondent

Detroit, Aug. 21.—The scent of fifth place is filling the nostrils of the Nats and tomorrow they'll be trying to strike another blow for themselves against the present occupants, the Tigers. Manager Bucky Harris is sending Alex Carrasquel after his seventh straight victory in the series finale.

Carrasquel, who has been troubled for most of a week by a stomach disorder, has volunteeerd to pitch inasmuch as Harris faces a shortage of workers. He will be opposed by Schoolboy Rowe.

Team Attains 6th Place as Tigers Lose

Griffs Rout Newsom, Thomas, Gorsica; Winning Pitchers Allow 6 Hits Apiece

By Shirley Povich

Post Staff Writer

Detroit, Aug. 21.—Henceforth speak of the Nats with a little more respect, please. They're slightly terrific. They're a ball club with a six-game winning streak, honest. Furthermore, you won't find them in seventh place any more. They're sixth. Not only that, but fifth place is only a game beyond. Your Nats have been doing very well lately.

Today, for example, they slapped down the Detroit Tigers, not once, but twice. Yep, they won a doubleheader, and it was just a breeze. Dutch Leonard licked the Tigers, 6 to 3, with a six-hit job in the first game and then Sid Hudson made it unanimous. He shut the Tigers out, 9 to 0. The Tigers weren't making many hits all day. They got six hits in one game and a half dozen in the other.

And were the Nats pasting that ball? They drummed Buck Newsom out of the box while crowding 16 hits into the opener, and they let Johnny Gorsica have it in a 14-hit second game. All that Roger Cramer did was to get five straight hits in the first game and a mere pair in the second.

Hudson's Job Best

No offense to Leonard, but Hudson turned in the pitching job of the day. He was showing the Tigers a fast ball that sang. He didn't walk anybody and he didn't permit anything more than a single. The only two Tigers who got past first base were helped by Jimmy Bloodworth's two errors.

Bloodworth, however, was forgiven in the ninth inning of Hudson's game With one out and Tigers on first and third, the jaunty little second baseman grabbed a wicked grounder off Franklin's bat behind second base, scurried over to the bag and made a superlative throw to Mickey Vernon for a double play that preserved his shutout for Hudson.

In that first game the Tigers gave Bucky Newsom a 3-to-0 lead against Leonard in the first three innings, but that didn't bother the Nats. They started cuffing Buck around and the next six runs of the ball game were scored by Washington. In fact, Manager Del Baker didn't send Newsom back to the mound at the end of the fifth inning, with the Tigers leading, 3 to 2. Newsom had yielded only two runs, but he was being swatted hard. The Nats finally won the game against their old pal, Bud Thomas.

Cramer Hits Triple

They started winning the game in the fifth, when Roger Cramer, who had made only two hits in two times at bat, slugged Newsom for a triple to the fence in right center with one out. Buddy Lewis banged a double to center to score Cramer. Travis moved Lewis to third with a single to center, and Vernon got Lewis home with an infield out.

Going into the seventh Thomas still had a 3-2 lead but the Nats fixed that. Cramer, who had made only three hits in three times at bat by that time, slammed a single through the box to center. Lewis singled left and when Gehringer [illegible] Travis' grounder a run came home and

Espey Has Indian Trouble

Pieces of Haight:

San Diego, Calif.

Dear Boss,

You have heard the one about the fellow who needed a haircut so badly that when he got it cut the barber discovered an Indian village on the top of his head. Well, that isn't exactly the case with Jack Espey, general manager of the Redskins, but he does have Indian troubles. It is getting so that every time Espey opens a door he expects to see an Indian jump at him.

HAIGHT

Not the pale-face football playing type of Redskin, but the real Chief McCoy has Espey daffy at times. It seems that sooner or later every Indian in the United States will hit upon the happy thought of becoming the mascot of the football team. Some want to bring their families. Some would work for nothing, and others are representing whole tribes.

Instead of giving himself back to the Indians, the Indians want to give themselves back to Espey. In looking over the Espey's mail this morning, as I generally do when he leaves the room (You know, Boss, always on the alert for scoops), I discovered the following communication:

San Francisco, Calif.

Dear Chief Espey, How!

I am an Iroquois Indian, 55 years old, 5 feet, 9 inches tall and sober. (Not a fire-water fighter.)

As the big chief of the Washington Redskins professional "pig-skinners," kindly give this (my idea) your thought and consideration.

To further the advertisement of your team and as an added attraction, I would appear in Indian costume on the road and on the field of battle and during game intermission amuse the public with Indian dances, etc.

For these services I ask $150 per month and expenses for season. What say you chief?

Yours truly,
SINGLE EAGLE.

Asked about applications for jobs from Indians, Espey said that he believes he has heard from every red man except Sitting Bull and the wooden Indian who used to be parked in front of that cigar store at Ninth and Pennsylvania Avenue. He might hear from the latter some day, if the termites haven't been too active.

Espey prefers those synthetic Indians like the ones in the Redskin band. He had one experience with real ones at the ball park. They had been recommended to him as a tribe of sober Indians. However, they became unruly anyway. Espey was convinced that if they didn't drink they must have been smoking marijuana cigarettes in their peace pipes.

There is one Indian Espey would like to get for at least a between-the-halves show. He is a giant of a fellow who dances on a massive bass drum. George Marshall saw him perform at some night spot. Espey, with the aid of Postal and Western Union, finally tracked him down, but the Indian was smart and wired that

Apostoli T.K.O.'s McDowell in Second

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 21 (AP).—Fred Apostoli, former middleweight champion, won a second-round T. K. O. tonight over Wild Bill McDowell, Dallas, Texas.

The San Francisco boy, now a boatswain's mate, U. S. N., stationed at the Naval Base here, scaled 158½ to 157 for McDowell. Apostoli floored his man twice before Referee Craft halted the bout.

Georgia Welcomes 'Furrin' Gridders—If They Produce

By the United Press

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 21.—Gov. Eugene Talmadge today said that "furriners" were welcome to play on the University of Georgia football team so long as they produced touchdowns and victories.

The Governor has been threatening to oust from the State's employ those persons born outside Georgia. He classified those who were not native to Georgia as "furriners."

Several University of Georgia football players, including star Halfback Frank Sinkwich, are from the North.

"If they can pack that ball and gain ground, we'll just forget about the furriner angle," Talmadge said of Georgia football players.

Grid Yankees' Owner May Leave League

By the Associated Press

Pegasus, N. J., Aug. 21.—Douglas Hertz, owner of the New York professional football Yankees, announced tonight he had advised the American Pro League he would withdraw his club from the circuit "unless the loop is prepared to go through a full schedule this fall."

The club president, who recently signed John Kimbrough, the Texas Aggies All-American back, to a contract to play with the Yankees, said he told the league, a minor loop in pro circles, it has until Monday to decide on his ultimatum.

"When the league tells me what it is prepared to do," he added, "I'll make a decision about the Yankees. I'll probably have an announcement by Tuesday. Right now, I'm not satisfied the league is powerful enough to warrant a team like the Yankees."

The Yankees, reported to have a squad of 55, are scheduled to open practice Monday at the Pegasus Polo Club here under Manager Jack McBride.

Hertz announced recently he had signed Kimbrough to a $15,000 contract to play with the Yankees this season. Last winter, he also was negotiating for Tommy Harmon, the Michigan All-American.

Kramer and Schroeder Reach National Doubles Semifinals

Bobby Riggs, Mako Score In Five Sets

Two Upsets Recorded In Women's Division; Mrs. Cooke-Osborne Win in Love Sets

By the United Press

Chestnut Hill, Mass., Aug. 21.—Blond Jack Kramer, of Los Angeles, and Ted Schroeder, of Glendale, Calif., defending titlists, reached the semifinal round, and two seeded women's teams were upset today in the sixtieth National Doubles Tennis Championships.

The 20-year-old Californians, defeated once this season and victors in seven tournaments, played with confidence and precision to eliminate the unseeded tandem of Ed Alloo, Berkeley, Calif., and Bill Talbert, Cincinnati, 6—4, 6—3, 4—6, 6—3, in one of two men's quarter-final matches.

Former National Singles King Bobby Riggs, of Chicago, and Gene Mako, of Los Angeles, one-time partner of Don Budge, were extended to five sets to stop the challenge of Charles Mattman, Forest Hills, N. Y., and Ted Olewine, of Santa Monica, Calif., 6—4, 3—6, 6—2, 4—6, 6—4.

Women Stars Upset

Form took a licking in the women's division with the lightly held teams of Shirley Catton and Pearl Harland, of Los Angeles, and Mary Arnold, of Los Angeles, and Hope Knowles, of Philadelphia, advancing with surprising triumphs over seeded tandems.

Miss Catton and Miss Harland, a semifinal round, and two seeded only their second tournament as partners, routed Barbara Bradley and Jane Stanton, of Los Angeles, seeded third, 6—3, 6—1.

The Arnold-Knowles combination overcame a one-set deficit to conquer the fourth-seeded team of veterans Helen Jacobs, of Greenville, Del., and Valerie Scott, of England, 4—6, 6—1, 6—2.

Kramer Is Steady

Kramer's heavy-duty service and Schroeder's speedy, if inconsistent, play gave the top-seeded pair plenty of opportunity to coast despite the aggressive tactics of Talbert and Alloo, both rated among the top 20 nationally. They only were in difficulty in the third set when Schroeder's service twice failed.

Mattman and Olewine, intercollegiate champions, seemed headed for victory when they led, 4—2, in the final set, but Mako, with probably the poorest service in the big-time, managed to hold service in the seventh game. Then he and Riggs uncorked a series of dazzling placements and chops to complete their domination of the tiring University of Southern California team.

Top-seeded Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke, of New York, and new partner, Margaret Osborne, of San Francisco, continued as favorites by smothering Mrs. Virginia Wolfenden Kovacs, of Oakland, Calif., and Margaret Jessee, of Los Angeles, 6—0, 6—0.

Betz-Bundy Win

Paunline Betz, of Los Angeles, and Dorothy Bundy, of Santa Monica, Calif., seeded second, were tested thoroughly by Helen Bernhard, of New York, and 18-year-old Louise Brough, of Los Angeles, but won, 6—2, 6—3, 6—4, by concentrating their fire in the final two sets on Miss Brough, who, kept on the run, committed errors at crucial stages.

Community Center Tennis Commences

Winners in the first round of the Community Center and Playground Department's tennis tournament, held simultaneously at the Mall and at Turkey Thicket, had things their own way in the majority of the matches yesterday.

In only one set of the doubles were the victors extended, when Jacob and Studds, of Montrose, downed Lyon and Browning, of Takoma, 9—7, 6—0.

In the girls' singles, Shirley Kauffman, of Lafayette, defeated Frances Barry, of Montrose, 10—8, 4—6, 8—6, in the toughest match of the senior division.

—With CONSIDINE

DOUBLEDAY'S GHOST VISITS

New York, Aug. 21.—That whirring noise you hear is the ghost of Abner Doubleday, inventor of baseball, whizzing like a bat out of Arlington Cemetery en route to the swank East Side apartment of Larry Macphail, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

CONSIDINE

Sorely tried ever since Macphail came into baseball with such innovations as nightball for the big leagues and track meets during intermission, Doubleday has finally decided to haunt Macphail's joint. The last straw was Macphail's decision to stage a fall fashion show at Ebbets Field tomorrow, before the game between the Dodgers and Cubs. Doubleday believes that enough's enough.

Picture that anguish of two typical Brooklyn bleacherites, Moe and Joe, who either can't read or haven't read about the fashion show. They stroll in the bleacher entrance, burping reflectively from the effects of their fang-baring at a nearby diner lunch, and take their squats.

So We Get Some Dialogue

"C'mon, bum, give us them lineups over the loud speaker," Moe yells, while he's taking off his shoes and loosening his belt. He hasn't as yet looked out on the field where a beautiful model is parading back and forth between home plate and the pitcher's slab. He doesn't notice that Joe is standing petrified in his tracks.

The loud speaker rasps and then a militant dame's voice says, "Miss Nancy Hartung, the perfect college girl type, is now modeling a perfectly thrilling cerise crepe, with crocheted detail and cowl neckline. Her coat is a casual mink, worn with all the charming bravado of youth."

Joe faints, striking his head on an arm rest. Moe, suddenly in a violent sweat, gasps, "I've gone bugs. Where am I at? Lemme out!" But he cannot move in the jammed bleachers. He pours a bottle of coke over the prostrate Joe and partially revives him.

Joe sits up dazed and looks vaguely out on the field, where a stylish stout model is showing a chevron tweed suit.

"I knew yud come back to the team, Phillips, y'bum'ya," Joe bawls, but is drowned out by another blast from the loud speaker. "Football is in the air, girls, and you'll simply be declasse my dears unless you're prepared with the rough wool sweater, krimmer coat and a toque of defense blue. Notice also the model's R. A. F. insignia on the coat lapel, and the spirited lift it gives to the entire ensemble."

Moe stares wildly around. "Is everybody nuts?" he cries. "Where are the bums? Camilli! Walker! Durocher! Help!" But his voice is erased by another message to the slightly muscle-bound hausfraus sitting resolutely in the grandstands. "It's cocktail time, girls, and he must be so proud of you. And he will be if you pour yourselves into a sequin trimmed cocktail dress with a cape of silver fox."

"Foxx? Jimmy Foxx?" the still dazed Joe yells. He stands up and cheers. "Yippee, I knew we'd get him! Good old Larry Macphail. He really goes out and gets 'em. How can them tramps the Cards expect to win now, when we got Foxx, Mamilli, Medwick, Reiser and Walker? Attaboy, Jimmy. Bust one for us. We're good as in."

The Haze Begins to Clear

Moe shakes him. "Joe, Joe, wake up. We're trapped! The field's fulla dames. Everybody's crazy, Joe. We gotta get outta here, quick. Wake up Joe. Listen to me. We ain't got Foxx. That wasn't Blimp Phelps. It was a fat dame. The joint's lousy with dames, all dressed up. There ain't no players on the field. They're settin' in the dugouts, scratchin' and spittin' tobacco. There ain't no game . . ." All further explanations are drowned out by "Girls, look at this perfectly charming kick-pleat skirt needs of a perfectly darling weave of corduroy."

"I thought we got rid of that bum Bordagaray!" the foggy Joe roars. "Hit the ramp, tramp! I know yuh even without that beard on. Go-wan back to them Yankees and we'll give you a licking in the serious, y'bums'ya."

"It's dames, Joe, only dames . . . c'mon, Joe, we'll have to fight our way out of this boob hatch. Everybody here thinks this is okay; that it should be," Moe whispers, furtively putting on his shoes and looking for an escape. He tries to explain but the lady on the loud speaker beats him to the punch line with ". . . and you'll look as divine as Miss Hartung if you slip into this Persian broadtail with lustrous rivulet moire. It's a delightful beau-snatcher and only $850."

"I won't pay it," Joe bawls indignantly. "I'll stay away from this trap before I pay eight-fifty to a lousy scalper for a seat. Four dollars, yes, if I can see our bums beat Terry's bums, the bums. But eight-fifty, no. How did them tickets get in the hands of scalpers, Macphail? Let's blow, Moe. We got the game tied up anyhow. I'm sure glad our bums won today. It's Brooklyn's final ladies' day."

"You're telling me!" says Moe ardently, and they fight their way out without hearing all about the dirndl suit with its long bodice and bell skirt.

Boston Snaps Chisox Streak, Wins, 8 to 5

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 21.—The Boston Red Sox ended the Chicago White Sox's winning streak at nine games today, and also put a stop to a run of 32 consecutive shutout innings compiled by Chicago hurlers. Boston won 8 to 5.

Ted Williams broke the shutout string in the second inning when he scored on a wild pitch. The Red Sox went on to tally three more runs in that frame. They knocked the Sox pitcher, Edgar Smith, from the box in the third inning, shortly after Joe Cronin hit his thirteenth homer of the year.

Bill Dietrich, first relief pitcher used by the White Sox in 11 games, was touched for three runs in the fourth, but held the Red Sox hitless and runless the last five frames, while the Chicagoans kept picking at Heber (Dick) Newsome, Boston hurler. They scored two runs in the ninth and had two men on base and the potential tying run at bat when Mike Ryba came to Newsome's assistance to retire Bob Kennedy.

Seattle Radio Man Makes First Cup Regatta Entry

First entry for the President's Cup Regatta sailing races has been made by Paul Morris, Seattle (Wash.) radio announcer, who will put his boat, Mike Fright, in the penguin dinghy class of the event September 13 and 14.

Arthur H. Clephane, chairman of the race committee, announced yesterday that upward of 100 starters are expected for the three-race series. Although the regatta has no speedboat events this year because of threatened fuel shortage, the weekend will be almost as full as in previous years.

Darkness Halts Recreation's Doubles Match

Considered by many tennis experts as the best doubles combination to invade Washington in years, Bob Underwood and Bill Bennion are nevertheless expected to face a tough battle as they play the final set in the semifinal round of the District Recreation Center tourney today against Bob Hall and Doyle Royal.

Held on the Reservoir courts, the match found Underwood and Bennion winning the first set, 6—1, and dropping the second, 3—6, to their smooth-performing opponents before darkness called a halt. The third set will be played today at 5 p. m.

Meanwhile Davey Johnsen and Don Leavens moved into the finals by defeating Bent and Walls, 6—0, 6—4, after turning back Skeffington and Kelsey, 6—1, 6—1, in the earlier quarter-finals.

In the quarter-finals of the women's singles, Sara Moore stopped Eleanor Voith, 6—2, 6—1, and in the semifinals Frances Rowan bowed to Margo Lee Mahony, 6—1, 6—1.

Yesterday's Results

Men's doubles, quarterfinals—Johnsen and Leavens defeated Skeffington and Kelsey, 6—1, 6—1; Hall and Royal defeated Bensinger and Freer, 3—6, 6—3, 6—2.

Semifinals—Johnsen and Leavens defeated Bent and Walls, 6—0, 6—4; Underwood and Bennion split sets with Hall and Royal, 6—1, 3—6; third set to be played today.

Women's singles, quarterfinals—Moore defeated Voith, 6—2, 6—1.

Semifinals—Mahony defeated Rowan, 6—1, 6—1.

Today's Schedule

Men's singles, quarterfinals, 4 p. m.—Charles Channing vs. Bob Hall, 5 p. m.—Austin Rice vs. Leavens; Rickey Willis vs. Bensinger.

Men's doubles—Third set of Bennion-Underwood, Hall-Royal match, 5 p. m.

Women's doubles, quarterfinals, 10 a. m.—Rowan and Smith vs. Vierra and Stockton.

Center Market, Naval Air Tie In Series, 4-4

The Naval Air Station-Center Market baseball game in the city championship playoff ended in a 4-4 deadlock yesterday on the East Ellipse diamond, and will be replayed today at 4:30 p. m.

After trailing 4-1 in the sixth inning, Naval Air scored three runs in the first half of the seventh to tie the game. Two hits, a passed ball and a wild threw by Pitcher Frank Watt enabled the Airmen to score their tallies.

The game raised $45 toward expense money to send the city series winner to the national tournament at Youngstown next month.

The winning teams of the five week-day leagues are playing in the series here. Heurich defeated the Veterans' Administration in the first scheduled game last Wednesday. Teams beaten twice are eliminated.

Widow of Ban Johnson Found Dead at Home

Spencer, Ind., Aug. 21 (AP).—Mrs. Sara Jane Johnson, 73, widow of the founder and first president of the American League of Professional Baseball Clubs, was found dead at her home here today. Death was attributed to cerebral hemorrhage.

Her husband, Byron Bancroft Johnson, died in 1931. He headed the league from 1901 until ill health forced his retirement in 1927.

'Pop' Chaimson Assists At Post Football School

Les Erhlich (left), displaying the art of tackling as he grasps Sam Fox in showing the boys of the Post's football school at Eastern High how it's done. Close to 100 boys attended yesterday's session. Jim O'Leary is also helping to teach the boys Yesterday's session in the Post's football school consisted of a review of blocking and tackling drills. Calisthentics, as usual, were executed.

Coaches Sam Fox, Jim O'Leary, and Les Ehrlich were assisted yesterday by "Pop" Chalmson, former star lineman at Central High School and now a member of the Metropolitan Police force.

The following boys were cited for their improvement and progress since the grid clinic opened last Monday; ends, Jim Kurz, and Jack Samperton, of Central High; Ed Spudis, Anacostia; tackles, Herbert Hughes, Stanley Gimble, and Joe Zitlmer, all of Eastern; center, Bill Morrison, Eastern; backs, Gene Dunn, Central; Jim Faus, Wilson; Charlie Voigt, Wilson; Bob Giller, Eastern.

Nearly 100 players were out to yesterday's class. Coach Fox announced that next Thursday, Orrel Mitchell, mentor of Georgetown Prep, would be guest coach.

The daily progress of the boys has pleased Fox and the Ohio State grid star hopes the early training will help them when local schools begin practice.

Billows Wins Great Lakes Golf Tourney

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 21.—Ray Billows, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., for six years a star but never a winner in national amateur competition, gave his golf game a smooth tune-up today for next week's national amateur at Omaha by winning the first Great Lakes amateur championship at the Knollwood Club.

Billows took the title with a 6 and 5 victory over husky 19-year-old Frank Stranahan, of Toledo, Ohio, to climax three days of match play in which he easily swept aside every opponent, including Marvin (Bud) Ward, of Spokane, Wash., former national amateur title holder.

Against Stranahan today, Billows had the kind of game which, if maintained next week, will make him a major factor in the Omaha show.

Two up after the first 18 holes, Billows lost the nineteenth as his opponent holed out a 35-foot birdie putt. Then came the twentieth and the match's turning point. With a chance to halve the hole or possibly square the battle, Stranahan three-putted from 20 feet, losing the hole to become two down. Then Billows, firing two pars and a birdie as Stranahan's game wobbled, won the twenty-first, twenty-third and the twenty-fourth to become five up.

Billows took the twenty-seventh with a birdie four as Stranahan scrambled to a bogie six, and they halved the next three. The match ended at the thirty-first green, which he needed to sink to keep the match alive, he conceded a halve on the hole and the match.

Seven Out-of-Town Tournaments Attract District Golfers

Hot Springs, Mason-Dixon Are Popular

Peacock and Elliott Will Defend Crown; Houghton, Spencer Enter Hershey Open

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

District golfers have out-of-town engagements on practically a wholesale scale for the next ten days in seven tournaments, which figure to draw about 75 Washingtonians for near-Labor Day events.

The list includes, with players, the events and place:

August 25-30—Ralph Bogart in the National Amateur Championship at Omaha, Nebr.

August 25-30—About 20 women golfers in the annual Mason-Dixon Championships at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

August 25-28—Mrs. Myron Davy in the Narragansett Invitation Tournament near Narragansett, R. I.

August 28-31—Ten District professionals and several amateurs in the $5,000 Hershey Open, at Hershey, Pa.

August 30-September 1—Between 25 and 30 District amateurs competing for the Fairacre Bowl, at Hot Springs, Va.

September 4-6—Roger Peacock, with Larry Elliott as a partner, in the Tamarack Invitation Tournament, at Tamarack, N. Y.

September 8-14—Three or four local women golfers in the Nationals at the County Club, Brookline, Mass.

Bogart is scheduled to arrive in Omaha this afternoon for a short practice trip around the Omaha Field Club layout. He plans to spend all day Saturday and Sunday on the course in order to familiarize himself with the rugged test of golf.

Mason-Dixon Draws

A score or more of the regular tournament playing members of the District Women's Golf Association will leave tomorrow and Sunday for White Sulphur and the week-long Mason-Dixon which, according to advance reports, will attract the usual strong field. Meanwhile, Mrs. Davy will be further prepping for the Women's National in the Narragansett event.

An early list of the first 37 entries in the Hershey Open, received yesterday, included the names of Al Houghton, Beaver Dam; Cliff Spences, East Potomac, and Bob Barnett, Chevy Chase, in addition to Rut Coffey, Hagerstown, and a half dozen Baltimore pros. Lewis Worsham, Leo Walper, Al Treder, Freddie Bolton and several others will represent the District in the open play.

Jimmy Gips, last year's surprise Fairacre Bowl victor from Beaver Dam, will go back for another crack at the Hot Springs (Va.) Invitation Championship, along with a big delegation from Columbia, headed by Earle Skinker, Martin McCarthy and George Miller, and three Indian Spring title threats, Dick Melvin, Jock Olmsted and Eddie Ault.

Peacock to Defend Title

Peacock plans to take a short vacation, and with his wife made the trip to Tamarack, where he and Larry Elliott, a former Indian Spring member, will defend their title. Sixty-two four-man teams are invited to the three-day test and play two matches a day through the finals.

Meanwhile the stay-at-homes will be busy preparing for two big early September tournaments, including the Washington Open, September 4, at Indian Spring, and the District Amateur, September 9-12, at Kenwood.

Father-Son Golf Entries Close Today

Today is the entry closing deadline for the Maryland State father-and-son championship, to be played Sunday afternoon over the Five Farms course of the Baltimore C. C., at 18 holes. The entry fee is $1.50 per team, and Emmet Gary is accepting entries at 16 McClellan Place, Baltimore. Play will be two-ball foursomes, alternate drives and alternate shots.

Marion Miley, Mrs. Mann Reach Golf Semifinals

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 21.—Mrs. Russel C. Mann, of Omaha, and Marion Miley, of Lexington, Ky., moved into the semifinals of the women's Western golf championship today with impressive victories. They will face each other tomorrow.

Mrs. Mann defeated Mrs. Frank Newell, the former Elizabeth Hicks, of Long Beach, Calif., 6 and 4, and Miss Miley triumphed over Mrs. Lawrence Selz, of Chicago, 5 and 4.

Mary Agnes Wall, of Menominee, Mich., and Georgia Tainter, of Fargo, N. Dak., took the other two semifinal positions. Miss Wall scored a 4 and 3 victory over Rena Nelson, of Chicago, and Miss Tainter defeated Mrs. J. Calvert Shorb, of South Bend, Ind., 5 and 4.

FBI Girls' Ten Tops Census, 5 to 4, In Series Play-Off

The FBI girls' softball team clinched the championship of the Government series by defeating Census, 5-4, yesterday, scoring their fourth straight victory in the playoffs.

Emma Leinum, second baseman, sent in the winning run with one out in the seventh, Wendell, pitching for FBI, allowed Census six hits and made two of her team's nine, one of them a triple.

Her twin sister, Fran, and Elsie Merritt, catcher, also got two hits each. All three girls are from Fargo, N. Dak.

Variety Club, Jaycee Golf Listed Today

The annual golf tournament of the Variety Club and the intercity match between the Washington and Baltimore Junior Chamber of Commerce golfers are scheduled today at Manor and Columbia Clubs, respectively.

More than 100 Variety Club members will compete in the 18-hole afternoon play at Manor and the attractive prize list includes something for just about every contestant. Ed Melniker, one of Woodmont's better golfers, is in charge.

The local and visiting jaycee links squads will each be represented by five two-man teams with the locals in the role of President's Cup defenders. In addition, the District members will compete for a place in the playoffs for the Don Kneesi trophy.

Tentative Washington pairings are: Bob Harvey and Luther Steward; Don DeVeau and Mal Morse; Ken Hays and Hugh Reilly; "Lafe" Franklin and Pom Pomeroy, and Gene Krewson, captain, and Bill Rusher.

Senate Team Downs Census, 6-1, for Title

The Senate ten turned back Census Bureau, 6-1, for the championship of the Commerce League last night at the Washington Softball Stadium.

John Driscoll's homer in the fourth inning for the losers was the only hit allowed by Senate's Rosenfield. Hoffman, losing pitcher, allowed 6 hits in the sixth frame to cinch the game for Senate.

In the earlier game on the card, Bryan Stationery lived up to expectations by defeating City Post Office, 6-3. Hahn and White hit home runs for the winners.

Harry Deming Is Appointed Coach of Washington-Lee High

Former G. W. University Star to Handle Football, Track; Clements Coaches Baseball

Harry Deming, star tackle and captain of the George Washington University football team in 1935, has been made coach of football and track at Washington-Lee High School, according to an announcement made yesterday by Fletcher Kemp, superintendent of Arlington County schools.

DEMING

CLEMENTS

Second appointment is that of Elwood Clements as baseball coach, in addition to his present duties as basketball coach.

Deming, one of George Washington's best players, has been at Washington-Lee for the past three years as line coach under Johnny Baker, with whom he played during his college days.

Baker has returned to his alma mater to be assistant coach under Bill Rinehart.

Dusek Brothers Triumph In Two-Man Rassle Feature

The Dusek brothers, Ernie and Rudy, combined last night to knock off the two-man team of Maurice La Chappelle and Ace Freeman in the feature bout of the wrestling show at Turner's Arena. This was the first tandem loss of the La Chappelle-Freeman duo in half a dozen starts, and came as a surprise to the near capacity crowd that jammed Hysteria Hall.

Last night's scenario was so amusing that the brothers Dusek found it difficult to restrain their mirth and they were slow starting the mayhem. As the foursome squared off at the whistle they began to giggle like so many school girls, and time had to be called until they could feel a malicious mood coming on. Then Rudy and Ernie tossed brotherly affection to the winds and began to openly gripe at each other in front of all those people; there seemed to be some dissension as to who was doing the most work.

Thus disorganized, the Duseks were easy prey for Freeman and La Chappelle, who began to bat their skulls about the premises with glorious abandon.

Finally, the Dusek differences were patched up, however, and Rudy chunked La Chappelle through the ropes into the ample lap of a belligerent fan, who was grounded. While the Frenchman was vainly clambering back to battle, Rudy eliminated Ace Freeman with a cradle hold after 16 minutes.

Feeling his night's work was accomplished, Rudy calmly climbed out of the ring and perched on the press bench, leaving Ernie to finish La Chappelle. Ernie was irked no end, but he had little time for sulking as La Chappelle was battling desperately for a draw.

Pat Fraley maintained his winning streak by trouncing Legs Grobmier after 36½ minutes of a semifinal which produced real blood on the Fraley beak.

After playing the Reluctant Dragon role for more than half the match, the Green Hornet finally disposed of the erstwhile villian, Angelo Leone, with a body press in 17 minutes. In the opener, Young Monday, an oldtimer, sunk Oscar Olson, the Brooklyn Navy Yard sailor, with a body press after 21½.

$100 Bills, Defense Bonds to Be Used As Baseball Bait

By the Associated Press

Atlanta, Aug. 21.—It'll be $100 bills for scoreless innings against defense bonds for base hits in a Southern Association baseball extravaganza here Sunday—with the accent on extravagant.

The whole idea was brewed after Chattanooga Hurleer Buck Marrow recently administered a double-drubbing to Atlanta in one of those "iron man" exhibitions.

Seeking a repeat performance, Chattanooga President Joe Engel (who laughs that he has money to burn) announced he'd hand Marrow a $100 bill for every inning he holds Atlanta scoreless in Sunday's double-header.

Not to be outdone, Atlanta President Earl Mann retaliated with an offer to hand each of his players a $25 national defense bond for every safe hit and said he would double the ante for home runs.

Walters Hurls Reds to Victory Over Braves

By the Associated Press

Boston, Aug. 21.—Bucky Walters collected his sixteenth victory of the season today and gave the Cincinnati Reds their eleventh triumph in the last 12 starts as they defeated the Boston Braves, 8 to 5.

The Reds hopped on Starter Bill Posedel in the opening inning, belting home two tallies on Eddie Joost's single, Mike McCormick's double, Jimmy Gleeson's long fly and a single by Lonnie Frey.

They put the game beyond recall with a four-run third inning at the expense of their former teammate, Johnny Hutchings. Three of the markers were unearned, coming after Buddy Hassett dropped a good throw from Al Roberge for what would have been the final out.

Boston got four runs back in the fifth when Roberge opened with a double and Al Montgomery, Al Javery, Sibby Sisti and Hassett followed with singles.

6 Shoreham Girls Seek Va. Swimming Crown Tomorrow

Six members of the Shoreham girls' swimming team will enter open events in the Virginia championship meeting at Richmond tomorrow.

Headed by Betty Ott, the local representatives include Jean Brunson, District A. A. U. backstroke champion and former 100-yard free style titlist; Lucille Kirsch, a candidate for breast stroke laurels; Harriet Sisk, who is headed for the backstroke and medley relay events, and Mary Miller, for the free style and backstroke races.

Other Shoreham team members are training for the 220-yard free style and diving meet Sunday at the Washington Golf and Country Club. Patsy Palmer, top swimmer, will defend her crowns in both events at the meet.

Meanwhile, another Shoreham girl, Betty Roland, will travel to Bradley Beach, N. J., for the Newark swimming championships.

Burrows Breaks 86 Targets In National Trap Tournament

Event Captured by Elmer E. Lucas With 99x100 Score; Other Results

Special Dispatch to The Post

Vandalia, Ohio, Aug. 21.—W. F. Burrows, only District shooter competing on Thursday's program at the Grand American Handicap Trapshooting Tournament, broke 86 of 100 targets from the 22-yard mark in the preliminary handicap. The event was won by Elmer E. Lucas, Peebles, Ohio, with 99x100 from 18 yards.

Score of Virginia entrants in the handicap follows:

J. R. Hall, Alexandria (22), 87; A. G. Seabright, Winchester (18), 95. A. Scuttle, Petersburg (22), 93. W. Anderson, Gore (22), 88.

MILEAGE INCREASED 34.7%

WHAT CAN A COUPLE OF HANDS PROVE ABOUT MILEAGE?

DO THIS with your hands. Form an oval opening by holding the heels of your palms and fingertips together firmly. This is like the molded shape of the new Armstrong Tires.

NOW DO THIS. Spread the palms of your hands apart until the oval becomes a circle. See how your fingertips compress? Armstrong treads compress like this when the tire is inflated.

Try this simple experiment, with your own hands, and you will see how and why the new Armstrong Tires give

Revolutionary New Mold Shape Compresses the Tread When Inflated for Use On Your Car. Mileage Is Increased 34.7%

Armstrong tires are molded oval shaped like the oval formed by your hands. When the tire is inflated for use, air pressure reshapes the oval into a circle. This compresses the tread, like your fingertips are compressed. Compressed rubber is stronger, tougher, more wear resistant. Thus, mileage is tremendously increased without added cost. This mileage increasing construction is one of the greatest engineering achievements in the tire industry.

THE ARMSTRONG GUARANTEE

Every Armstrong tire is guaranteed unconditionally against all road hazards. If an Armstrong tire becomes unserviceable for any reason during its guaranteed life, bring it back and we will replace it with a brand new Armstrong tire. You pay only for service received. An Armstrong tire can never cost you more per month than the monthly guarantee rate.

Remolee Scores in Marlboro Purse; Schley Al Is Second

Mowlee Colt Is Ridden by Jockey Smith

Jadaan Finishes 3d; Winner Returns $7.80 Price; Gheen's Bright Henrina Wins

By Clocker Mike

Marlboro, Aug. 21.—In the closest finish seen here in many a day, Remolee, racing in the interests of J. E. Simmons, held on to eke out a nose decision over the fast closing Schley Al. Out in the center of the track and going fastest of all came Jadaan, a head behind the nose finish. This picture battle occurred in the fourth and outstanding race on the featureless card.

Jockey Glen Smith, accepting his first mount of the meeting, sent the son of Mowlee to the front at the break but was soon joined by the speedy Mardi Gras. When unable to outrun Mardi Gras, Smith took hold of his mount and allowed the latter to race himself into the ground. It was only with the strongest kind of ride that the Simmons racer held on to the end. Jadaan in the meanwhile had a rough trip and lost ground at every turn.

Paws $7.80 Mutuel

Remolee, which has always been partial to this strip, used up 1:27 1-5 in covering the 6½ furlongs and was well played in the win pool, returning only $7.80.

Mrs. M. A. Gheen's Bright Henrina came up as a good thing in the first race and she performed the way all tips are expected. She was held off the pace for three-eighths of a mile and when Jockey E. Eversole asked her for speed she responded in excellent fashion and gradually wore down Girlie Star, the early pacemaker. Royal Mowlee, after having poor luck from the start, finished third and would have won in another few yards.

Spill in Second Race

A spill marred the running of the second race when My Dottie ran up on the heels of horses in the opening quarter and J. Hernandez went off. My Dottie was running about third at the time and Hernandez was lucky enough to escape with only bruises and a shaking up.

The winner turned up in Mrs. C. W. Williams' Slugger, with Jockey F. Hendricks doing the saddle work. Slugger was up in the last few strides to beat Triphammer by a head. Mr. Jim was third in the field. Slugger completed the 6½ furlongs in 1:28 1-5 and returned a $11.70 dividend.

The daily double bettors holding tickets on Bright Henrina and Slugger turned their duckets in for $63.30.

CALAIS	(J.Hernandez)	113	5	5	4²	4½	8	8	11.90

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BRIGHT HENRINA, $18.70, $8.90, $3.30; GIRLIE STAR, $14.00, $5.60; ROYAL MOWLEE, $3.00.

BRIGHT HENRINA was well in hand while following the pace, went to the outside to challenge and wore GIRLIE STAR down in the stretch run. GIRLIE STAR was sent into an early lead, held on gamely, but could not resist the winner. ROYAL MOWLEE, much the best, was in close quarters on the stretch turn, found room on the rail in the last sixteenth and was going best of all at the end. SUN MAKER had a rough trip.

SECOND RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:39½. Off at 2:41. Winner, Mrs. C. W. Williams' b. g. (3), by Supremus—Punnacity. Trained by E. R. Mitchell. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:28⅘.

†Lost rider.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SLUGGER, $11.70, $4.40, $3.20; TRIPHAMMER, $3.00, $2.30; MR. JIM, $3.30.

SLUGGER was far back in the early stages, came to the extreme outside and was up in the concluding strides. TRIPHAMMER was off in a tangle, worked his way up to take command, opened a good lead and was just nipped. MR. JIM, off slowly, shot up fast in the opening quarter, responded well and was going good at the end. SHOTAGIN had good speed, but was through early. DUPLIKET quit. MY DOTTIE was in the first flight when she ran up on horses' heels and lost her rider.

Daily Double—BRIGHT HENRINA and SLUGGER Paid $63.30.

THIRD RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:12. Off at 3:12. Winner, J. L. Friedman's ch. g. (5), by Chance Play—Courtly. Trained by C. Beal. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:27⅘.

SISTAUR	(Bernhardt)	106	3	5	7¹	8	8	8	6.15

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHANCER, $8.80, $4.80, $3.60; BARRACA, $6.80, $4.70; KNIGHT'S HAVEN, $6.90.

CHANCER opened a long lead but was all out to outlast BARRACA. The latter, much the best, trailed for three-eighths, came to the extreme outside and would hav gotten up in another stride. KNIGHT'S HAVEN ran an even race. ACE OF TRUMPS raced between horses early and held on well. DONA MONTEZ was used up forcing the pace.

WEATHER, CLEAR; TRACK, FAST.

FOURTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:41. Off at 3:41. Winner, J. E. Simmons' b. g. (5), by Mowlee—Res. Trained by C. A. Cranford. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:27⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—REMOLEE, $7.80, $5.20, $3.80; SCHLEY AL, $6.20, $3.70; JADAAN, $5.00.

REMOLEE disposed of MARDI GRAS in the first half, opened a daylight lead entering the stretch, but just lasted under a hard drive. SCHLEY AL moved up gradually and was wearing the winner down. JADAAN moved up between horses, lost ground while challenging and was going best of all at the end. MISS MUD closed with a burst of speed after being outrun for a half. MARDI GRAS set the pace but stopped badly when headed.

FIFTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:14½. Off at 4:14½. Winner, T. Lewis' ch. c. (3), by The Porter—Procne. Trained by T. Lewis. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:28 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PURPORT, $14.70, $4.70, $3.40; BUTCHER BOY, $2.80, $2.50; BEACON QUEEN, $3.30.

PURPORT was allowed to settle into his best stride while lacking speed early, came to the outside of the leader and was drawing away in the last sixteenth. BUTCHER BOY replaced BOB'S PASS early, opened a good lead, fought it out willingly, but was not good enough. BEACON QUEEN was within striking distance, but flattened out when placed to a drive. BILL K. raced on the outside from the start and weakened. BOB'S PASS tired after forcing the pace for the half.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:46½. Off at 4:47. Winner, H. B. Langdon's ch. f. (4), by Groucher—Double On. Trained by H. B. Langdon. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:56⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GROUCHY, $5.90, $3.60, $3.20; OUR TEDDY, $13.70, $6.90; CHILLY EBBIE, $5.10.

GROUCHY was reserved off the pace for a half, took the lead when asked and drew clear under intermittent punishment. OUR TEDDY, closer than usual in the early stages, moved boldly, but could not menace the winner. CHILLY EBBIE was running easily while following the pace, responded to pressure, but moved too late. TRANSDAY was close up early, but faltered when asked for speed. PRINCESS LADY was used up forcing the pace early. CAUTIOUS BO set the pace for a half and tired.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:22. Off at 5:22. Winner, C. E. George's br. m. (10), by Runantell—Miss Vaal. Trained by C. E. George. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:56.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GOANTELL, $13.80, $7.80, $5.60; CURVES, $4.30, $3.30; BROOKE HEROD, $6.90.

GOANTELL was under a strong hold while following the pace, moved when asked in the final stretch, but just lasted under a hard drive. SCHLEY AL moved up gradually and drew clear under a hard drive. CURVES was badly outrun for seven-eighths and came with a burst of speed in the late stages. BROOKE HEROD also lacked speed early and was closing well. RIVER BROOM moved with the winner, but on the outside, appeared the winner entering the stretch and hung in the final drive. PRAETOR opened a long early lead and quit.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:54. Off at 5:54½. Winner, Galt Davis' ch. g. (5), by American Flag—Golden Lassie II. Trained by T. Lewis. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:57⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—YANKEE LAD, $9.60, $6.00, $3.90; JUSTA JIMMIE, $7.20, $4.40; ROUGH GOING, $6.50.

YANKEE LAD was under a strong grip while following the pace, ran over the leader when asked and won under a mild drive. JUSTA JIMMIE took command at once, was rated while setting the pace and fought it out willingly. ROUGH GOING raced between horses and closed well. QUILL closed well while being hard ridden. KISSIN KID was through early.

Selections at Marlboro

Dear Al:

Announcement that J. Donald Hay, director of wagering here as well as Charles Town, Cumberland and Hagerstown, had been assigned a similar role for the Pascoag Rhode Island meeting, to be staged from September 29 to November 12, was hailed with much joy to all his associates. Freddie Burton, who you all know well, from Charles Town, will serve as race secretary at the meeting. Another Charles Town official who will travel North for the session is Starter John Morrissey. George P. Mahoney, newly appointed member of the Maryland Racing Commission, is taking a real interest in his work. Mahoney has been seen at every meeting since he took over the position. Jockey Hilton (Rabbit) Dabson motored in from Washington Park and announced that he would not resume saddle activities until the coming Havre de Grace meeting. George C. Brenton's Judge Hasten, which broke down during the opening day's card, will be shipped to a nearby farm and turned out. At the conclusion of this meeting Trainer Dan Chamblin will ship Frank H. and Secreta back to Hillbrook Farm to be fired and turned out. Leon Garrett, who has been on the ground since the Hagerstown meeting, arrived from his home in Nashville, Tenn., and announced that he would ride here the opening week and then go to Wheeling. The boys brought up a brand new one when Officiate, owned by J. W. Heinicke, scored here opening day. Officiate had been no better than sixth in seven previous starts this year. Jockey (Buddy) Root showed no signs of being stale after his layoff. Root rode a perfect race to get High Hedge home in the opening day feature. Joe Farrell, popular and efficient general manager here, was all smiles yesterday. He has all the reasons in the world to be smiling. The wagering opening day was up 45 per cent over the same day last year. Assistant Manager Alton S. Jump was giving Farrell all the help he needed in both the working and smiling line. Willie Postal is in charge of the pressbox here and has everything running along smoothly. Willie was idle during the Cumberland meeting and took it easy down on the shore. Got a card from Bill today. Here is the message: "Regards, Bill." That is all.

CLOCKER MIKE.

First race—HEPZIBAH appears a look in this field of maidens. Was second to Conqueror III at Bel Air and should score off that race. MY EXIT is cheap but should like the track. GOLDEN DIAL may wake up.

Second race—I'm going to try to bring a new one up here and take SETTLER to down this field. QUICK VINE is strictly the horse to beat and will probably be the favorite. DANCING CLOUD always has favored this track and will be picking up horses at the end.

Third race—GOOD GRASS should have very little trouble taking this field into camp. All races have been good and works say this one will even be better. LITTLE SUZANNE has plenty of early foot and should be in front at some stage. CHIEF TEDDY is still a maiden, but has shown promise.

Fourth race—CUT EMERALD is strictly a speed horse and should lead this field from end to end. NEW STEP is another that has a high turn of early foot. EXHORT will be coming in the final eighth.

Fifth race—It may look like I'm shooting for the moon but I'm going to try to make BULLET B. the winner here. Has been rested since that winning effort at Bel Air and may score despite better company. BERWYN could easily take this field if able to stay in on the turns. MARANDAN is another with the run-out habit.

Sixth race—PLAYMORE is as fit as he has been for a long while and I can't find anything capable of beating him. OVERALL has shown little of late but could be dangerous over this track. DUCHESS DEL is coming off a winning effort.

Seventh race—JOAN ASBESTOS has always been partial to this strip and I believe this is the right one. BRILLIANT ONE easily won over good ones here last year. LYDE will be in front early.

Eighth race—WEST SEA showed an excellent race here to be second to Officiate and I'm going right back. COUNTER PASS always gets to the winner's circle here. CHAGRA has disappointed several times.

Best bet—PLAYMORE.

CLOCKER MIKE'S SELECTIONS
1—Golden Dial, Kennet, My Exit.
2—Doctor's Nurse, Waush Scout, Way Out.
3—Signboard, Good Grass, Trapping.
4—Repeat, Exhort, Cut Emerald.
5—Hirh Bud, Lula Khayyam, Marandan.
6—Time Scout, Playmore, Blind Brook.
7—Joan Asbestos, Tar Miss, Lyde.
8—West Sea, Schley Buck, Olivilo.
Best bet—Repeat.

Capital Stores Register 43% Surge in Sales

With a new leap of 43 per cent, Washington department store sales in the week ended August 16 continued their sharp advance over last year. Cumulative sales in the four weeks ended August 16 were 41 per cent above the same period last year, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported last night.

The gain for the Fifth Reserve District was 45 per cent during the week and 41 per cent for the four-week period, according to the bank's weekly survey. These averages are based on reports from 18 leading department stores in the Reserve district.

Auto Profits "Hold Own"

Earnings reports for automobile companies for the first half of 1941 indicate that the industry as a whole just about held its own in the face of rapidly rising taxes.

For the smaller independent manufacturers, however, it was a period of large profit gains.

Sales reports were not available for all companies, but partial figures showed that the dollar sales volume of 11 companies increased roughly 40 per cent. By comparison, their net income rose only 3 per tcent from $145,357,000 to $149,385,000.

Excluding General Motors and Chrysler Corporation, however, profits of nine smaller motor companies for the first six months increased to $10,232,000 compared with $1,288,000 in the same period a year ago.

Two Agents Rewarded

William D. Macy 3d, and Laurance H. Roggles, of the Washington agency of Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Co., will be rewarded for their production records by attending the ninetieth anniversary conference of the company at Hot Springs, Va., on September 1, 2 and 3.

Local Dividends Voted

Directors of the Lincoln Service Corporation, local industrial bankers, have declared regular quarterly dividends as follows: 1½ per cent on the cumulative participating preferred stock, 1¾ per cent on the cumulative prior preferred, and 25 cents on the common. All dividends are payable September 12 to holders of record August 30.

Bank Loans Spurt

Preston Delano, comptroller of the currency, said yesterday the defense program and other factors caused the 5136 national banks to increase their loans and discounts 500 million dollars in the second quarter of 1941 and $1,750,000,000 in the last year.

His statement was based on June 30 condition reports received from all the banks. On that date their loans and discounts amounted to $10,922,000,000.

The June 30 survey also showed that the total assets of national banks were $41,315,000,000, higher than ever before.

The Outlook

Depression-Bred Policy of Remaining Liquid Reversed as Crisis Brings Material Shortages

The economic textbooks can be thrown out of the window for the duration, as the national economy moves further into an emergency set of rules.

For example, during the emergency, money, bank deposits, and other circulating medium do not necessarily constitute purchasing power, as in normal times. For example, the capacity of cash or credit to buy gasoline is conditional on the discretion of the man at the gas tank, whose total allotment on the Eastern Seaboard has been cut down 10 per cent. Other priority orders against aluminum, and a large variety of other scarce, strategic and critical materials have negated the customary purchasing power of money in those special categories.

Thus, the old economic truism that money is an option on all goods and services needs to be modified. Hoarding money nowadays may bring the evils of Midas.

Such restrictions should come as no great surprise to readers of this column, for at the very outbreak of World War II I pointed out that that event had reversed the desirability of the depression-bred policy of remaining liquid. This column on September 6, 1939, forecast the current trend when it said: "Any piling up of substantial war demand on American business facilities will tend to accentuate the shortages in consumer stocks and the accumulation of pent up demand over here as a result of a decade of subnormal business.

"Thus, in limited spheres at least, we must soon see a practical demonstration of the fact that the fears of chronic general overproduction and surplus manpower represented mere optical illusions.

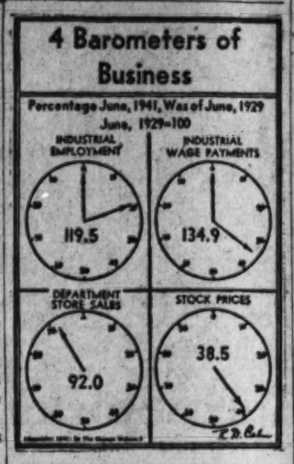
"If normal demands for consumer goods and capital goods should be supplemented by clamor for these things from unusual sources incidental to war, then at last the time will have come when prudent families will recognize the desirability of bringing their consumer inventories at least up to normal.

"The fetish for liquidity, instead of for goods and investments, may be challenged by the new course of events."

This thesis, which provided a preview to what is now happening rapidly in the business world, was further developed in my book, "Financial Security in a Changing World," some 14 months ago, as follows: "Under present conditions and prospects (June 1940) a husbander of family surplus could reasonably put a small portion of his total savings in durable household supplies, including canned goods. When, as at present, such items are in plentiful supply at moderate prices, it is socially respectable to build up a reasonable inventory; on the other hand, to do so later, in times of possible shortages, or if this country should be involved in a war, would be frowned upon as socially disgraceful.

". . . In view of the threat to stability from war and potential inflation under way, it is not unreasonable to provide now for family needs for durable comfort goods for the coming year or two. This includes cars, radios, washing machines and other electrical appliances, furniture and similar items for comfortable living."

The new rationing of gasoline and silk stockings, the drastic cut in automobile production schedules, and the widespread use of priority orders indicate the extent to which these anticipated developments are now coming to pass.



German Oil Stock Suspended From Curb

Because the North European Oil Corporation, holding company for a German subsidiary, has been unable to get any information from Germany about the condition of its subsidiary and has thus been unable to file financial statements for the past two years with the Securities & Exchange Commission, the SEC yesterday ordered its stock to be withdrawn from the New York Curb Exchange.

Since the only assets of the corporation were its interests in its German subsidiary, its bank balance has declined, the commission was informed, to exactly $2.43.

Bank Idle Cash Up 30 Million During Week

By the Associated Press

Idle money in banks increased 30 million dollars to a total of $5,060,-000,000 in the week ended August 20, the Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday.

Treasury spending accounted for much of the increase, until last week, when there was a $10,000,000 increase, lendable excess reserves had trnded downward for several wks.

Th board's statement said:

"During the wek eended August 20 member bank reserve balances increased 80 million dollars. Additions to member bank reserves arose from a decrease of 134 million dollars in Treasury deposits with Federal Reserve Banks and from increases of 25 million dollars in Reserve Bank credit, seven million dollars in gold stock and six million dollars in Treasury currency, offset in part by increases of 48 million dollars in money in circulation, 17 million dollars in nonmember deposits and other Federal Reserve accounts, and 16 million dollars in Treasury cash. Excess reserves of member banks on August 20 were estimated to be approximately $5,-080,000,000, an increase of 30 million dollars for the week."

Bank Deposits And Resources Set New Peaks

Preston Delano, Comptroller of the Cuprrency, announced that total loans an ddiscounts outstanding as of June 30, the last call date, were $10,922,000,000, an increase of about $500,000,000 over the previous call period of April 4, 1941, and $1,750,-000,000 above aggregate outstanding loans as of June 29, 1940.

The statistics, based on reports of 5,136 active banks, show total assets of $41,315,000,000, the highest on record, and $1,122,000,000 above April 4, 1941, and $4,430,000,000 above the total of June 29, 1940.

Deposits aggregated $37,381,000,-000, the highest in the history of the national banking system. The increase above the previous call date measured $1,064,000,000, while compared with June 29, 1940, the rise measured $4,277,000,000.

The deposits at the recent call consisted of demand and time deposits of individuals, partnerships and corporations of $19,194,000,000 and $8,042,000,000, respectively.

Deposits Are Listed

United States Government deposits totaled $525,000,000, while deposit sof tSate> and political subdivisions were $2,529,000,000. Postal Savings deposits were $16,000,000; certified cashiers' checks, cash letterf of credit and travelers' checks outstanding of $453,000,000; deposits of banks totaled $6,592,000,000, the latter including deposits of $343,000,-000 on banks of foreign countries

Savings included with time deposits of individuals, partnerships and corporations amounted to $7,-153,000,000 and represented 16,567,-579 accounts.

The 5,136 active banks held $11,-136,000,000 of United States Government, direct and guaranteed obligations, $540,000,000 more than a year ago. The direct and indirect obligations held on June 30 were $3,857,000,000 and $2,279,000,000, respectively.

Other bonds, stocks and securities held totaling $3,819,000,000, including obligations of States and political subdivisions of $2,020,000,000, showed a decrease of $173,000,000 since the previous call but an increase of $25,000,000 in the year.

Cash Account Rises

Cash of $710,000,000, balances with other banks, including cash items in process of collection, of$6,360,000,000, and reserve with Federal Reserve Banks of $7,452,000,000, a total of $14,522,000,000, increased $278,000,000 since last April and $645,000,000 since June of last year.

Bills payable, rediscounts and other liabilities fo rborrowed money of $2,00,000 showed decreases of $425,000 and 905,000 in the last three and 12 months, respectively.

The unimpaired capital stock of the banks was $1,523,000,000, including $184,000,000 of preferred stock. Surplus of $1,336,000,000, undivided profits of $499,000,000 and reserve accounts of $240,000,000, a total of $2,075,000,000, increased $29,000,000 since April and $133,000,000 since June of last year.

The percentage of loans and discounts to total deposits on June 30 was 29.24, in comparison with 28.74 on April 4 and 27.75 on June 29, 1940.

Copper Shortage Faced by REA

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 21 (AP).—C. A. Winder, of Washington, D. C., operations chief of the Rural Electrification Administration, estimates the REA has on hand only one month's supply of copper for new line construction.

"After that's gone, I don't know where we'll get any more," Winder told officials of 60 rural electrification projects in seven Western States last night.

Winder told delegates the Electrification Administration was hampered in its buying when copper was available in quantities several months ago because "we were nearing the end of a fiscal year and did not have the money or the authorization."

"But private power companies' warehouses are bulging with copper, stored for future line construction and maintenance."

J.-M. Corp to Redeem More of 7% Preferred

New York, Aug. 21 (AP).—Directors of Johns-Manville Corporation, makers of building supplies, today authorized the redemption by lot of 25,000 of the presently outstanding 50,000 shares of 7 per cent preferred stock at $120 a share.

Of the originally issued 75,000 shares, 7,500 were called on April 1, 1940 and 17,500 on January 1, 1941.

New York Cotton

New York, Aug. 21 (AP).—The cotton futures market today was thrown for final losses of 18 to 24 points, which canceled a considerable part of the previous day's rise.

There was a steady flow of profit selling, with the principal support coming from trade and mill accounts. In contrast with yesterday's apparent confidence the cotton freezing bill would receive executive approval, gossip around the cotton exchange ring today indicated rising doubts the measure would be become operative.

Cotton belt weather was more favorable, although further unwanted rains occurred in sections of the Eastern area.

Nation's Steel Capacity Rises 2 Million Tons

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 21.—American steelmaking capacity has been raised two million tons within the past six months to a new high total annual capacity of 86,148,700 tons of steel ingots and castings, the American Iron & Steel Institute reported today.

This is 18 per cent greater than the 72,985,000 tons of capacity available in 1929 and exceeds by 40 per cent the total of 61,021,000 tons available at the height of the World War, the institute reported.

Blast furnace capacity of the industry was expanded by 300,000 tons in the first half of 1941 and is now rated at 57,937,000 tons of pig iron and ferro-alloys annually. Plans are now being considered to construct an additional 6,500,000 tons of blast furnace capacity.

Of the total new tonnage, 6,500,000 tons represented additional open hearth furnace capacity and 686,000 tons represented the capacity of new electric furnaces.

Earnings Reports

Columbia Gas & Electric Corporation reported for six months ended June 30 net income of $8,046,717, equal to 39 cents a common share, against $10,589,850, or 60 cents a share, in the first half of 1940.

Pan American Petroleum & Transport Co. and subsidiaries reported net profit for the June quarter of $1,899,565, or 40 cents a share, compared with $1,652,006, or 35 cents a share, in the like 1940 quarter.

Union Pacific Railway for the seven months ended July 31 had net income of $7,957,905, equal after dividend requirements on the preferred stock to $2.53 a share on the common. This compared with $4,771,491 or $1.10 a common share in the first seven months last year.

South American Gold & Platinum Co. and subsidiaries reported net profit for the six months ended June 30 of $417,152 after provision for U. S. and Colombian income taxes, equal to 28 cents a share, compared with $239,691, or 13 cents a share, in the first half of 1940.

American Potash & Chemical Corporation reported for six months ended June 30 estimated net loss of $72,222 after charges, Federal income taxes and depreciation of $371,183. This compared with net profit of $921,174 after depreciation charges of $294,243, equal to $1.74 a capital share in the comparable period of 1940.

The corporation's plant at Trona, Calif., was closed by a strike from March 14 to July 2 this year.

Pere Marquette Railway July net income was $320,539, against a $147,-568 net loss the same 1940 month, the road reported. The seven-month net was $2,151,293, against only $196,362.

Bank Clearings Up 40% in Week

New York, Aug. 21 (AP).—Reflecting the rising tide of business activity, bank clearings in leading cities recorded the widest gains this week for more than a decade.

The total, as reported by Dun & Bradstreet, was $6,421,146,000 in the week ended Wednesday, an increase of 40.6 per cent over $4,566,-968,000 in the like week a year ago. The aggregate was $562,398,000 higher than transactions in the preceding week.

Light Selling Drives List Into Mild Retreat; Traders Depressed by New Nazi Successes

New York, Aug. 21.—A tired-looking stock market today ran up against sufficient selling to stem the mild rally of Wednesday.

The list started with minor advances in the majority but these soon were eliminated in many cases and mixed tendencies prevailed from then to the close.

Faltering trends were accompanied by a slow-down in dealings. Transfers for the five hours totalled 388,590 shares, compared with 486,-580 the day before when the direction was upward. The Associated Press average of 60 issues today finished off .1 of a point at 43.1.

Business and industrial news generally was hopeful but boardrooms were a bit depressed, brokers said, by apparent German successes in Russia and persistent Japanese tension.

Tightening of governmental controls was seen as a flaw in the speculative picture. Motors were listless throughout and, in the afternon, Washington announced automotive output would be cut 26½ per cent during August, September, October and November and progressively more in successive months. Curtailment of 50 per cent for the model year ended in July, 1942, was expected.

Most rails were a shade easier although today's figures for last week's freight loadings disclosed a more than seasonal expansion. Steels still had to contend with materials shortages. Recently buoyant amusements took a rest at lower levels.

Sunshine Mining turned active at the last, ending with a loss of ½ at 7⅛ when directors cut dividends from 40 cents a share, paid previously, to 25 cents.

Losing fractions were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Santa Fe, Southern Railway, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific, U. S. Rubber, Consolidated Edison, Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, Paramount Pictures, Loew's and Warner Bros.

Holding modest improvement were Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Glenn Martin, Pathe Film, Standard Oil (N. J.), Texas Corporation, Cerro de Pasco, American Smelting, Du Pont and Union Carbide.

A few miscellaneous issues pushed up 1 to 2 points in today's bond market, but the main list hovered in a narrow range with gains and losses about evenly divided at the close.

Transfers expanded to $7,404,800, par value, from $4,936,700 on Wednesday. Except for a drop of .5 of a point in the foreign group due to weakness in Belgium and Australian loans, the Associated press averages showed little change.

Max Butcher Beats Giants For Pirates

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 21.—The Pittsburgh Pirates shook off a four-game losing streak tonight with a 5-to-3 victory over the New York Giants. Big Max Butcher allowed 13 hits, 2 more than the Pirates picked up against four New York pitchers, but kept them better spaced.

Babe Young smacked his eighteenth homer with one on in the first inning, to send the Giants out in front, but after that the huge right-hander was more careful and the only other run he allowed came in on three singles in the seventh. It was the sixth time this year that Butcher has beaten New York.

The Buccaneers nicked Bill McGee for a run on two singles in the second and then poured out four runs in the fourth on five successive singles. Three other New York pitchers took turns on the mound thereafter and held Pittsburgh scoreless the rest of the way.

Nats Aim for Fifth Place Today

them to within a game of the Tigers, and has been accompanied by a timely blend of sensational pitching and consistent socking. In their last four games the Nats have averaged no less than 16 hits per game and are now challenging the Red Sox for the No. 1 spot in the league in team batting.

As the success of the Nats begins to unfold, Jimmy Bloodworth's fielding has been manifesting itself as a powerful factor. Bloodworth, a streak hitter who has no great success against right-handed pitching, has been earning his salary with sensational fielding in recent weeks, and Manager Bucky Harris is no longer looking for a second base replacement. If Harris is the Nats' manager next year, he will be willing to abide with Bloodworth because of his fielding.

Sid Hudson has never been faster, never more effective, than in his last three games, in which he has beaten the Yankees, the Red Sox and the Tigers with ease. He apparently has lost his home-run pitch and recovered his control. Today he was literally throwing the ball past the Tigers. They were popping it up, for the most part. Aside from their six hits, they hit only three ground balls.

Manager Bucky Harris held up the first game in the ninth inning with Higgins on second base, and one out, to walk on the field and tell Leonard to pitch with a wind-up and let Higgins go to third unmolested . . . Jake Early got a brutal break from a Detroit eye specialist who was called in to examine Early's trouble with his vision . . . The specialist, after taking tests, declared that Early's eyes were allergic to dirt, of all things, in which a catcher literally wallows . . . Early may soon don eyeball lenses to protect his eyes . . . they fit on easily but must be taken off with a small suction pump . . . George Case is getting positively fancy with his catches in leftfield, taking them now with the nonchalance of a good outfielder . . . When he beat out a grounder to York in the first game this afternoon Mickey Vernon was making his first hit in his last 18 times at bat . . . one of the reasons Manager Del Baker of the Tigers is not very gay is because young Dutch Meyer, who was supposed to succeed Charley Gehringer at second base, has an .078 batting average with the Detroit club.

he was not available for single performances. Of course, Espey could have gotten him by paying for a week's engagement but the Indian wouldn't work the rest of the time at the laundry.

By the way, Boss, I have been looking ahead a little. I have been taking out some insurance by helping Espey. In case I do a rotten job out here and you fire me, Espey is going to put me to work. You know that wigwam at the ball park used by the band? Well, there's smoke coming out of the top of it.

For making the smoke, there is a smudge pot and a bellows. Well, Espey is going to put me in charge of that smudge pot and let me into the games for nothing. He says it would be an economical move, too, because with me on the job he could do away with the bellows.

Always your ace,
POUNDS HAIGHT.

P. S.—What time is it in Washington?

Nats Score Twice Over Detroit Tigers

Lewis was on third. Lewis scored when Vernon beat out a hit to York and the Nats were ahead, 4-3. They got no more runs in the inning because Travis was thrown out at the plate on Archie's grounder.

But in the eighth they fortified themselves with another run. Case commenced it with a single to short and Cramer, who had made only four hits in four times at bat emerged from his slump with a single to right. Case scored from third on Lewis' infield out. As if that were not enough, the Nats came up with another run in the ninth which Leonard squeezed home with a bunt after Archie and Early had singled.

All this time, Leonard was sort of wonderful. In the second inning he pitched a home run to Rudy York with Higgins on base, and in the third he gave up another run because Early put Newsom on base by muffing a knuckle-ball third strike, but in the last six innings, Leonard gave up only three hits and no runs whatsoever.

In that second game Gorsica was making it tough for Hudson for five innings. The Nats' young right-hander had only a 1-0 lead procured for him in the second inning by Mickey Vernon who singled, Jake Early who also singled and Jimmie Bloodworth who fetched home the run with an infield out. Hudson, however, gave up only three hits in those five innings, and wasn't letting anybody get to second base.

In the sixth, the Nats crashed through for him. Cecil Travis commenced it with an enormous swat to the center-field fence that fell for a triple, and he scored when Croucher was lax in handling the relay from McCoskey. A bit later, Vernon and Archie singled, and Bloodworth got another run home with another infield out. Whereupon Hudson himself, drove in the third run of the inning with a single to center and the Nats had a 4-0 lead.

Manager Del Baker of the Tigers trotted out Rookie Les Mueller, late of Beaumont, in the seventh and the Nats rapped him for three runs right away. Cramer greeted him with a single, Lewis walked and with two out Archie singled to left for one run. Then Jake Early crashed a long double to the right center wall and they had two more runs.

In the eight they surged back at young Mueller and got two more runs after two were out. They got 'em very simply. Cramer simply waited for a walk, and Lewis simply banged his eighth home run of the season into the upper deck of right field. That's all there was to it, especially with Hudson pitching shut-out ball all the way.

Arlington Girls Win Pin Match

Tom Murray's Arlington Acettes won their third straight match last night against Astor Clarke's Lafayette girls, the final score being 1623 to 1585. Eleven pins down at the end of the first game, the Acettes topped that by 12 pins in the second contest and went on to win without particular trouble.

Thelma Simmers, southpaw ace of the Acettes, led for set with a 363 count with Mary Fike posting high game of 127, which led to a 329 set. Mildred Peacock was next high with 123-326, Kitty Rice had 307, while Virginia Wright had an even 300. Lillian Copeland, former Arlington star, rolling her first game against the home team, led the Lafayettes with 127-353, showing splendidly under fire.

Springfield Options Cuban Juan Montero

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 21 (AP).—The Springfield Nationals of the Eastern League today optioned Juan Montero, Cuban right-hander, to the Pittsfield Electrics of the Canadian-American League and handed Infielder Charles Brickley, jr., son of the noted drop-kick artist, his outright release. Montero goes to join George Comellas, another Cuban hurler, who already has chalked up one victory in Pittsfield's behalf.

U. S. Dept. of Commerce, Weather Bureau.
Thursday, August 21, 1941—7:30 P. M.

Forecasts

For the District of Columbia—Fair, but with some cloudiness Friday; Saturday considerable cloudiness with likelihood of a few showers; moderate temperature, gentle southerly winds Friday becoming south and southwest Saturday.

For Maryland—Fair, but with some cloudiness Friday; Saturday considerable cloudiness, but with a few scattered showers; moderate temperature.

For Virginia—Considerable cloudiness with a few scattered showers in extreme south portion Friday; Saturday mostly cloudy with a few scattered showers, moderate temperature.

Conditions For Last 24 Hours

The high-pressure system which has been attended by fair, pleasant weather over the Ohio Valley and the Middle and North Atlantic States for the past several days is now passing out to sea. This is being followed by rapidly increasing cloudiness over the most of the Eastern States in connection with a disturbance of increasing importance which has made its appearance over the upper Lake region since Wednesday night. Showers and local thunderstorms have already begun to develop over the Mississippi Valley and in the upper Lake region in connection with this disturbance. Somewhat cooler and much drier air is beginning to spread southward and eastward over the Northern Plains States. The weather continues rather cloudy and there has been numerous showers and thunderstorms over Florida and the South Atlantic States, Texas and the Rocky Mountain region. Seasonable weather prevails over most sections of the United Stats except in south Texas and Arizona, where temperatures of over 100 degrees were again reported Thursday afternoon with some of the higher temperatures Yuma, Ariz., 107 degrees, and Laredo, Tex., 106 degrees.

Local Weather Report

Dr. Harry Kenner, D. C. Pharmacist, Dies in Bethesda

Dr. Harry Roland Kenner, widely known pharmacist, died at his home, 4906 Edgemoor Lane, Bethesda, Md., yesterday. He was 48.

DR. KENNER

Dr. Kenner, a native of Washington, conducted a pharmacy in the Dupont Circle Apartment Building. He was graduated from George Washington University in 1915.

The son of the late Harry Walton Kenner and Mrs. Ada Kenner, Dr. Kenner married Miss Clare Warfield, of Howard County, Md., a cousin of former Gov. Edwin Warfield of Maryland.

Dr. Kenner is survived by his widow and three children, Miss Mary Ann Kenner, Miss Clare Warfield Kenner and Harry Raymond Kenner, Bethesda; three brothers, Col. Albert Kenner, Fort Myer, Va.; Dr. Augustus Kenner, of Silver Spring, Md., and Rodman Kenner, Washington; two sisters, Mrs. Brooks Parkinson, Warrenton, Va., and Mrs. Albert Stoddard, Chicago.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow.

Md. Congressmen, O'Conor Invited To Play Baseball

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 21 (AP).—Gov. O'Conor, United States Senators Millard E. Tydings and George L. Radcliffe and Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer were invited today to participate in a baseball game September 21 at Beverly Beach for the benefit of the United Service Organizations.

The contest, for players over 40, is one of numerous events listed on the program for an all-day outing at the beach.

Those invited to speak in the afternoon include Gov. O'Conor, Senators Tydings and Radcliffe, Representative Sasscer, Mayor Howard W. Jackson, of Baltimore; State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes, Rear Admiral Russell Willson, Naval Academy superintendent, and Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, former adjutant general of Maryland.

A county team will play a city nine in the baseball game, to begin at 3 p. m. Delegate George A. Schmidt (Democrat), of Arundel, will captain the county team and County Commissioner Thomas Johnson will direct the city nine.

Last Rites Today In Gaithersburg For Mrs. Freeman

Last rites will be held today for Mrs. Nettie Greenwell Freeman, 56, wife of Joseph C. Freeman, who died Wednesday at her home in Gaithersburg, Md.

The funeral will take place at 2 p. m. from Ascension Episcopal Church, Gaithersburg, with burial in Loudoun Park Cemetery, Baltimore. The services will be conducted by the Rev. Raymond P. Black, rector of the church, assisted by the Rev. Spencer Dunbar, former rector.

Mrs. Freeman leaves six children, Nettie Clark Freeman, Ellen G. Freeman, Elizabeth G. Freeman, T. L. Hebb Freeman and Joseph C. Freeman, all of Gaithersburg, and Mrs. Ralph M. King, Darnestown, Md. She also leaves a brother, T. L. Hebb Greenwell, Baltimore.

Mrs. Freeman was a native of St. Mary's County, Md., and before coming to Gaithersburg about 20 years ago lived in Baltimore a long time.

Union Conference Offers Program For Silk Workers

Copyright by New York Times

With hundreds of workers already jobless and thousands of more layoffs expected, the Office of Production Management announced yesterday that a conference of American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organization textile union leaders has proposed a program to alleviate the effects of the shutdown of silk imports.

The union representatives who met as members of the OPM silk labor committee, recommended adoption of the "Buffalo plan," a formula for the training and replacement of workers which was successfully applied at the General Motors plants at Buffalo recently closed for retooling for airplane production.

The program includes:

1. Application to the silk industry of the Buffalo plan.

2. Formulation of a national policy providing for the training, retraining and replacement of labor dislocated either by curtailment of silk supplies, shortages of other yarns, or by the closing of plants during retooling periods.

3. Regional conferences of representatives of labor, industry and Government to discuss the peculiar problems arising from such dislocation in particular areas.

4. A comprehensive study of industry needs aimed at achieving an equitable distribution of substitute yarns, including Nylon, and rayon, among factories.

Labor Opposes Menzies' Visit To London

Copyright by New York Times

Canberra, Australia, Aug. 21.—Party meetings discussed Prime Minister Robert Gordon's proposed London mission this morning in the light of yesterday's Parliament debate, public and secret.

The joint meetin gof the ministerial parties approved the mission, but the Labor Party declared opposition to his going to London as prime minister and stated that arrangements should be made with the United Kingdom government for representation in London insuring that the Australian point of view is constantly before the war cabinet.

Menzies has declared that approval of his proposed mission should be unamimous.

The party based its opposition to the Prime Minister's departure on the ground that, owing to the gravity of the Pacific situation, it was essential that he direct the administration of Australia's total war effort.

Tonight, while the House of Representatives discussed the problem of supply, the cabinet held a prolonged meeting. There are apparently two courses open to Menzies: First, to relinquish the prime ministership and go to London as minister plenipoteptiary, assuming that he will be invited to attend the War Cabinet; second, to request British Prime Minister Churchill to give another minister access to the War Cabinet, which, it is felt here, Churchill, in view of the opposition's decision, would be most unlikely to refuse.

The fact that John Curtin and Francis M. Forde, leader and deputy leader of the Labor opposition, were summoned to the cabinet room late tonight gave currency to rumors the cabinet is trying to persuade Labor to revoke its decision, and might even send the Prime Minister to London in the face of it.

Canadian Premier Sees No Need of Imperial Cabinet

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

London, Aug. 21.—W. L. Mackenzie King, prime minister of Canada, said today he saw no reason for the creation of an imperial war cabinet since "I cannot conceive of a more effective means of communication than exists at the present time between the differe etnmmebosrflstr tween the different members of the Commonwealth."

"Under the present arrangement, when the government of the United Kingdom wishes to know the mind of the Canadian government on any question, the prime minister of Canada, in replying to that question, is expressing not only his own voice, but the collective voice of the cabinet, and the cabinet, representing the Parliament, is speaking for the people of the country as a whole, he said.

The minister said the purpose of his visit to England is "simply to emphasize the determination of Canada to be at the side of Britain until the end of the struggle . . . to discover how our war effort can be made more effective."

Deposit of a check or postal money order for $25, payable to the Chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks, is required, and as security for the safe return of the drawings and specification. B. MOREELL, Chief of Bureau, August 15, 1941. 22,29

Federal Works Agency, Public Buildings Administration, Washington, D. C., Aug. 13, 1941—Sealed proposals in duplicate will be publicly opened in this office at 1 p. m., standard time, Sept. 5, 1941, for the motion picture equipment, sound reinforcement, etc., in the hearing room of the Social Security Board Building, Washington, D. C. Specifications and drawings (if any) will be supplied free to each general contractor interested in submitting a proposal. The above drawings and specifications MUST be returned to this office. Specifications and drawings (if any) will not be furnished to contractors who have consistently failed to submit proposals. One set upon request, and when considered in the interests of the Government, will be furnished, in the discretion of the Commissioner, to builders' exchanges, chambers of commerce or other organizations who will guarantee to make them available for any sub-contractor or material firm interested, and to quantity surveyors, but this privilege will be withdrawn if the sets are not returned after they have accomplished their purpose. W. E. REYNOLDS, Commissioner of Public Buildings, Federal Works Agency.

William L. Shirer, lately C. B. S.'s Berlin correspondent, as all of you should know, since his reminiscences, under the title of "Berlin Diary," are now the best-selling non-fiction on the market, is to cooperate with the best-selling author in the fiction field on the production of the forthcoming motion picture, "Passage to Bordeaux."

The picture is based on a new novelette by Budd Schulberg, who wrote the sensationally successful novel, "What Makes Sammy Run."

Shirer has been signed by RKO Radio Pictures to prepare special material for the film and act as technical adviser. "Passage from Bordeaux" relates the adventures of a group of Americans in France during the exciting moments between the French government's removal from Paris and the Franco-German armistice in Compiegne.

The picture is to be produced by Eric Pommer, who directed many of the Charles Laughton pictures in England and who, before that, was connected with U. F. A. in Berlin. He is to be assisted by George Stevenson, who directed "Tom Brown's Schooldays."

But the Hollywood job doesn't mean that Shirer is going to give up any of his radio broadcasting—he's been serving as commentator on "The World Today" programs since his return from Berlin in December.

He'll just fly out to Hollywood on weekends.

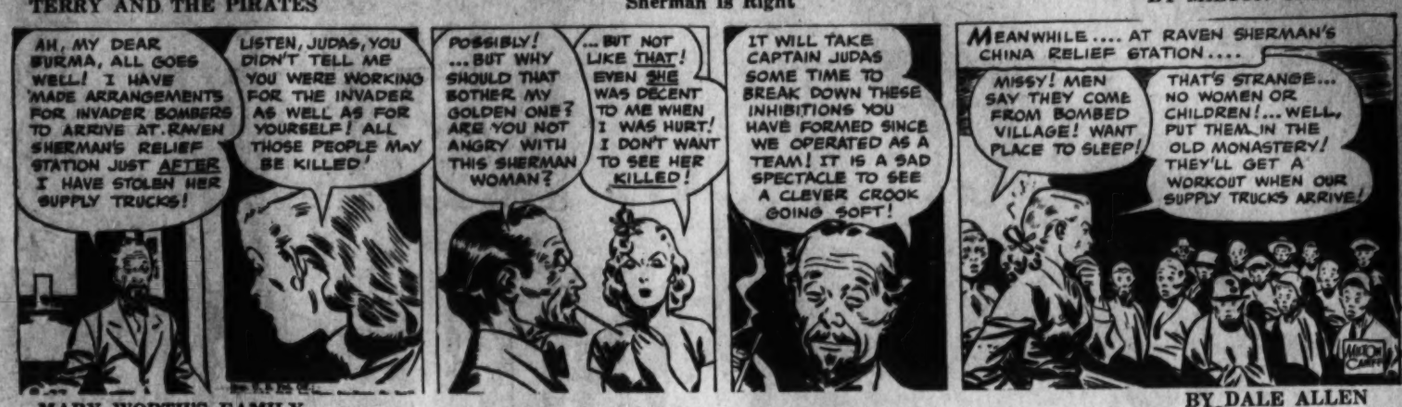
TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Sherman Is Right — BY MILTON CANIFF



AH, MY DEAR BURMA, ALL GOES WELL! I HAVE MADE ARRANGEMENTS FOR INVADER BOMBERS TO ARRIVE AT RAVEN SHERMAN'S RELIEF STATION JUST AFTER I HAVE STOLEN HER SUPPLY TRUCKS!
LISTEN, JUDAS, YOU DIDN'T TELL ME YOU WERE WORKING FOR THE INVADER AS WELL AS FOR YOURSELF! ALL THOSE PEOPLE MAY BE KILLED!
POSSIBLY! ...BUT WHY SHOULD THAT BOTHER MY GOLDEN ONE? ARE YOU NOT ANGRY WITH THIS SHERMAN WOMAN?
...BUT NOT LIKE THAT! EVEN SHE WAS DECENT TO ME WHEN I WAS HURT! I DON'T WANT TO SEE HER KILLED!
IT WILL TAKE CAPTAIN JUDAS SOME TIME TO BREAK DOWN THESE INHIBITIONS YOU HAVE FORMED SINCE WE OPERATED AS A TEAM! IT IS A SAD SPECTACLE TO SEE A CLEVER CROOK GOING SOFT!
MEANWHILE.... AT RAVEN SHERMAN'S CHINA RELIEF STATION....
MISSY! MEN SAY THEY COME FROM BOMBED VILLAGE! WANT PLACE TO SLEEP!
THAT'S STRANGE... NO WOMEN OR CHILDREN!... WELL, PUT THEM IN THE OLD MONASTERY! THEY'LL GET A WORKOUT WHEN OUR SUPPLY TRUCKS ARRIVE!

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — A Coming-Out Party — BY DALE ALLEN

MISS BARCLAY! YOU'RE CRYING! IS IT BECAUSE YOUR UNCLE HAS--GONE AWAY?
I'D BE BETTER OFF IF HE'D GONE YEARS AGO, MRS. WORTH! I'VE JUST LEARNED THAT HE'S USED UP MY INHERITANCE IN HIS REAL ESTATE DEALS!
WHAT AM I GOING TO DO? ALL THE CASH I HAVE ON EARTH IS A FEW DOLLARS IN THIS BAG!
YOU'RE AN INTELLIGENT GIRL -- I'M SURE YOU CAN FIND SOME SORT OF WORK!
OH, SURE! BOOMVILLE NEEDS GIRLS WHO MAJORED IN ENGLISH LITERATURE AT COLLEGE!
NOW--WAIT A MINUTE! MAYBE I'VE GOT THE ANSWER!

MICKEY FINN — As Age Creeps On — BY LANK LEONARD

WE'LL STAY AT THIS HOTEL UNTIL I CAN GET A NICE APARTMENT, MICKEY—I'M GOING TO START LOOKING FOR ONE TOMORROW!
FINE! NOW I'LL TELL YOU WHY I REALLY CAME OVER! MA WANTS YOU AND YOUR MOTHER TO HAVE SUPPER WITH US TONIGHT—AND SHE WON'T TAKE NO FOR AN ANSWER!
I'M SO GLAD TO SEE YOU AGAIN, MRS. TAPP!
LET'S GO RIGHT INTO THE DINING ROOM, TOMMY—I'VE GOT A LITTLE SURPRISE FOR YOU!
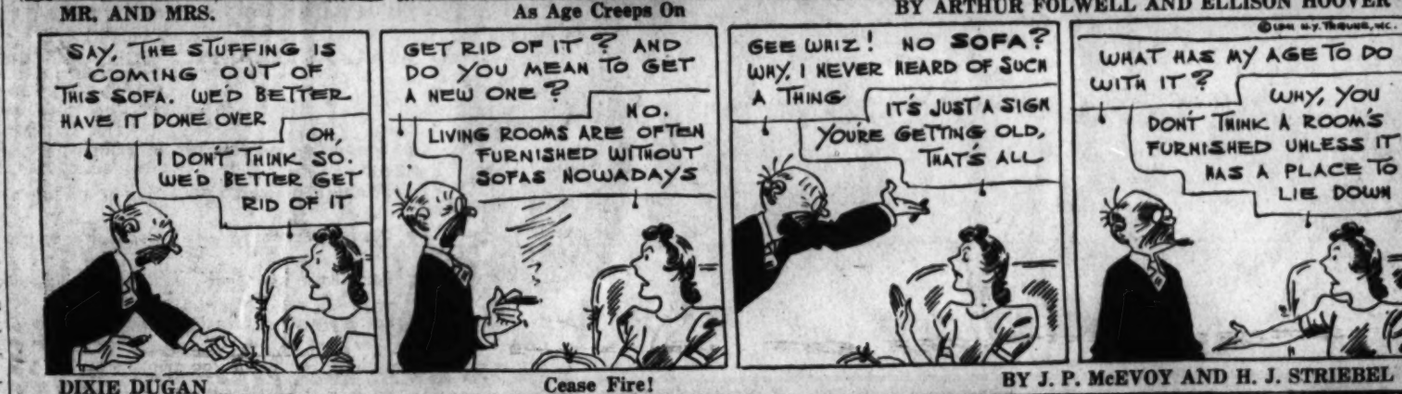
-FOR HE'S A JOLLY GOOD FEL-LOW- THAT NOBODY CAN DENY!!

MR. AND MRS. — Cease Fire! — BY ARTHUR FOLWELL AND ELLISON HOOVER



SAY, THE STUFFING IS COMING OUT OF THIS SOFA. WE'D BETTER HAVE IT DONE OVER
I DON'T THINK SO. WE'D BETTER GET RID OF IT
GET RID OF IT? AND DO YOU MEAN TO GET A NEW ONE?
NO. LIVING ROOMS ARE OFTEN FURNISHED WITHOUT SOFAS NOWADAYS
GEE WHIZ! NO SOFA? WHY, I NEVER HEARD OF SUCH A THING
IT'S JUST A SIGN YOU'RE GETTING OLD, THAT'S ALL
WHAT HAS MY AGE TO DO WITH IT?
WHY, YOU DON'T THINK A ROOM'S FURNISHED UNLESS IT HAS A PLACE TO LIE DOWN

DIXIE DUGAN — BY J. P. McEVOY AND H. J. STRIEBEL

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — Draftee — BY FRANK MARTINEK

ONE THING AT A TIME, WINSLOW. THIS IS MY CONFERENCE. I'VE GOT TROUBLES!
SENN SAYS THAT SOMETHING'S GUMMING UP HIS NAVAL RECRUITING PROGRAM HERE IN CHICAGO
THAT'S RIGHT. YOUNG FELLOWS ARE BEING SCARED OUT OF ENLISTING SOMEHOW. IT MUST BE A PLOT!
WELLS, HERE, IS DISTRICT INTELLIGENCE OFFICER SO IT'S HIS JOB TO—
I'M SURE WELLS IS LOADED WITH WORK ALREADY! SUPPOSE I TAKE THE CASE?
DON'T THANK ME! PENNINGTON AND I HAVE BEEN NOSING AROUND FOR A CERTAIN SCENT. THIS MAY BE IT.

BIG CHIEF WAHOO — BY SAUNDERS AND WOGGON

GOODNIGHT, PRINCESS! TRY NOT TO AWAKEN GRANNY TUTTLE WHEN YOU GO IN THE COTTAGE!
I'LL BE VERY CAREFUL, VIC!
I SIMPLY CAN'T AGREE WITH CAP'N TRAWLER'S SUSPICIONS ABOUT VIC! AFTER ALL, AN ARTIST HAS A RIGHT TO GO LOBSTER FISHING, EVEN IF HE NEVER CATCHES ANY!
I WONDER IF HIS SHREWD OLD GRANDMOTHER BROUGHT ME HERE THINKING I MIGHT FALL IN LOVE WITH HIM? MAYBE SHE'S SUCCEEDED --I DON'T KNOW--I SEEM TO THINK LESS ABOUT STEVE ROPER EVERY DAY!
FOR TWO PENNIES, I'D WAKE GRANNY UP FOR A HEART-TO-HEART TALK! --MY! SHE SLEEPS QUIETLY! ONE WOULD ALMOST THINK THERE WAS NOBODY IN HER ROOM!
